With the usual Saturday night traffic in town again for the summer and fall months, it is time that some restrictions regarding parking on the two avenue between Main street and 1st street South were made. This is apparently a narrow street, and is also the favorite parking spot in town, with the result that with cars parked at an angle on both curbs, and an occasional long truck jutting further into the little remaining thoroughfare, the passage for traffic is hardly wide enough to allow two vehicles to pass. Two solutions are possible for this trouble, one is frequently seen in busy portions of the city, that of parallel parking to the curb on both sides of the street, the other is by allow the cars to park on one side of the street only. A few parking restrictions hurt no one and are soon observed automatically. There is usually plenty of space to be found on Sulyea both north and south of the two main intersections. A few no 'parking' or 'parallel parking' signs would soon accomplish their objective.

THE AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

J. F. Andrew Is Given Important Duties

Complete reorganization of the provincial agricultural department, which has been under way for some time, was announced on Wednesday by the Hon. P.E. Gridale, minister in charge.

By this reorganization there has been effected a reduction in the inside staff at headquarters in Edmonton, to provide for de-centralization and enlargement of outside service, with closer contact with people on the land.

J. F. Andrew, assistant deputy minister, in addition to his former duties, will take over supervision of farmers' meetings, boys' and girls' club work, and school fairs, formerly supervised by George Buck and he will also have charge of the activities under the new Dominion government policy of assisting junior work at A and B class fairs. He will also have charge of the work of co-ordinating field days held under the auspices of the various provincial interests. S. G. Carlyle, live stock commissioner, has assumed the additional duties of supervision of district agriculturists and remains as fairs superintendent. E. H. Burtinghan, who has been assistant live stock commissioner, in addition to his other duties, will act as supervisor of junior grain clubs and seed cleanup in special work for encouraging production of forage crops. School fair work will now be largely in the hands of district agriculturists and the staffs of the two agricultural schools.

ISLAY NEWS

A meeting was held on Tuesday May 28th in an effort to organize a sports day, but apparently failed miserably. No sports day try will be made, however, and something worth while emerge.

An Islay attended football practice was held in spite of the inclement weather on Sunday, 2nd, and seven stalwarts signed on. There prib be more practices and it is hoped to be expected in at least double that number. We were very pleasantly surprised to see one of the "teen age generation turn out to practice with a brand new pair of boots. That's the spirit kids, keep it up boys, and girls, young! Never be a spectator till you're too old to run!

Islay team's softball team (?) journeyed to the Holyrood diamond on Sunday afternoon and indulged in a 17 13 defeat.

Saturday night the Islay girls trimmed the Holyrood outfit 20-10 in town, the cold wind made things generally miserable for both teams.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gay, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costume for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all he had, and his family is faced with the possibility of a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an uncertain relative in Canada, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be reasonable conditions.

Now Go On With The Story

There were also plans to make for Aunt Judy, who was to sail in a fortnight. She was filled with the subtle confusion and unrest. And then one late afternoon, returning from a tea to which her mother had urged the girl in vain, she found a telegram on the hall table. It was addressed to Jack, but she grasped the meaning eagerly, her heart pounding as she tore it open. A dim hope that Cousin Columbine would wet-blanket the whole thing was quickly dispelled. The telegram, even wet-blanket the whole thing was quickly through her, but the message, eccentric and to the point, read briefly:

YOUR LETTER RECEIVED TODAY STOP AM A TRUE BLOOD WESTERNER STOP OWN RANCH THREE MILES FROM BOW RIVER STOP WILL MEET YOUR FATHER'S FAVORITE STOP IF SOMETHING HAPPENS STOP SEND CHECK TO COVER EXPENSE OF TRIP FOR BOTH OF YOU STOP WOMEN AS SOON AS POSSIBLE—COLUMBINE NELSON.

Nancy read this twice, her hands gripping the paper roughly. She was still staring at what seemed an irrevocable sentence at hard labor, when her father entered the room so quickly that she had no chance to conceal the tell-tale yellow message He asked, a touch of alarm in his voice, "What's happened?"

She glanced up, forcing a smile of reassurance.

"Nothing to worry about. It's a—a telegram for Jack. No bad news, Daddy."

"Let's see, daughter."

He stretched out a hand, but Nancy thrust the paper into her coat pocket.

"No," she said, "Jack'll want to wait till Jack comes home and tells you. He took Aunt Judy over to the Spears' on some last errand."

She moved away, his eyes following her, puzzled.

"But who's it from, Nancy?"

The girl laughed.

"You're just as curious as an old woman, Dad; but I promised not to tell, and I'm not going to. You won't have long to wait. It's almost dinner time. Here's Aunt Louise."

She darted off before he could question any further, but as she reached her room a voice recalled her, and Jack, who had come in close on his aunt's heels, was up the stairs.

"Hi there! Dad says I've got a telegram. What luck?"

Nance held it out, watching him read it. The boy drew a deep breath of relief.

"Good! That's settled then."

"It's not if Dad objects, or—or Mother."

She couldn't keep the shamed hope out of her voice, and catching its meaning Jack said scornfully: "Don't be a slacker, Sis. Come down and see how they all react. Every one's there, even the biddie. We'll take a vote. Buck up, Nance. It's a pity if you can't help out when all the rest of us are trying to."

That hurt. Nance turned away to hide the tears which sprang into her eyes. A slacker! Well, she'd show Jack! If only she wasn't so beastly scared at the idea.

She down in a second," she said as her brother made an impatient gesture; and then added angrily: "And don't you call me any names before the others!"

"Oh, see here!" He followed her into the room, closing the door. "I didn't mean anything, Sis, honest. I was only afraid they'd see how much you hate to go, and put their feet down Come on now. Let's get it over before dinner."

The family's rebellion was very nearly unanimous.

Said Dad: "If you must have jobs, why, of you, surely we can find something nearer home."

Said Aunt Louise: "You're too young and impressionable, Jack, to have designs on a man in rough neck roundings; and Nancy would die of boredom if of nothing worse. What put such a wild idea into your head?"

"His was only trying to help," declared Aunt Judy, with her unswerving loyalty, "but Colorado is terribly far away, Jack. I'd worry my head off" while Phil, the ten-year-old, exclaimed excitedly:

"Gee! folks, I'd like to be a cowboy! Just think of quitting school and staying outdoors all day!"

And strangely, this innocent remark of the youngster son was what stopped the protest on Margaret Nelson's lips. In a flash she remembered that not many months ago the family doctor had said of Jack: "If he'd only stay here I'd let him forget school for a year or two and live outdoors. A job on a farm would be wonderful—wonderfully more to him than a diploma."

Yet because Jack seemed reasonable over this good advice had not been taken very seriously. But now, looking up at the five-feet-eleven-inches of handsome boyhood, those warning words came back, and in the complete surprise of everybody, Mother said: "It would be a splendid thing for Jack to go outdoor winter in a milder climate; but—"

"You're not implying," broke in her brother, "that I'm not fit to look after children go off there all by themselves?"

"Children!" This exasperated exclamation came from Jack. "I'll say if Nance is old enough to be launched in society with a big splurge, she's old enough to be away from home for a few months—with a relative too. As for me, Dad, you bet I'll have to do a man's work or lose the job. Why, I'll be eighteen so—well, on my next birthday."

Since his previous birthday was only six weeks back, this brought a laugh. Then Aunt Judy said: "And what does Nancy think of all these plans?"

The girl hesitated. All eyes had turned upon her; but glancing up she found her brother's dark and despended gamely: "It would be something new, wouldn't it? And it couldn't be very much duller than Edgemere."

"But, Nancy!" protested her father in distress, "you'd be living with an old lady, one you've never seen and who we've reason to believe eccentric. And if she paid your fare you'd be in duty bound to stick it out a while, no matter what you found."

"But I'd be earning my living," she retorted, wondering why she was arguing on the wrong side, and what had got into her. Why, in fact, didn't she tell them the whole truth —that she was frightened stiff at the prospect—would almost rather die than spend a winter with Cousin Columbine, but was ashamed to admit it before Jack?

"Well," declared Aunt Louise, "it's the most extraordinary plan I ever heard of. And from Nancy! As I said before, what put such an idea into your heads?"

"Circumstances, of course," spoke up Aunt Judy. "They want to help through the hard sledding; and I think they're splendid. But how could we let you go so far from home, dears? You might be sick."

There followed a silence before Mother said: "I'm not in favor of this move—yet; but I'll have to admit that according to Doctor Strong Jack's more likely to be sick if he stays in school." She went on to tell them of the doctor's chance remark, and added: "I thought at the time that he was over cautious, Jack seemed so well; but the boy has grown appall'ngly, and I dare say life in the open air would build him up if he didn't have to work too hard."

Aunt Judith sank back and stared at her sister.

"I'd never have expected that—from you, Margaret. But if you mean, Nancy will expire of loneliness in about one month What will she do with no young friends to run around with, and Jack three miles off on a ranch?"

The boy laughed.

"You talk as if the population of Pine Ridge was made up of inhabitants over seventy, Aunt Judy! Aunt Louise, eyeing them with disapproval started to say something in "fluff-fashion extravagance," and then held her tongue After all, she thought, with a sudden pang, Aunt Judy wanted to spend money for something perishable in these hard times. It was her own business.

So Judith Hale's "extravagance" (the last she was to indulge in for many months), remained unreasoned, and but a note of cheer for Cousin Columbine, as she meant it to; yet as the moments passed Mother kept thinking sadly of how soon they would all be scattered—separated. She, Dad, and the little boy at Edgemere—Judith in Europe — Louise alone in a city boarding house—Jack and Nancy ——

This last she confessed to face just then, and said when Jack resumed the subject "Oh, let's forget it, dear, while we eat dinner."

"That we've got to decide, Mother," he persisted with impatience. "I dare say Cousin Columbine's expecting a telegram to-night."

"Never mind" put in his father. "It won't hurt the old lady to wait for a message until tomorrow But we'll decide the question this evening Jack. I promise you. After all, it's not easy to face things now as later"

CHAPTER IV

Jack took the telegram staring at it for a surprised moment. Then Phil cried out impatiently "Why don't you read it? I bet you anything that Cousin Woodbine has changed her mind!"

"Woodbine!" Jack shouted while even Dad forgot his worries in amusement at the little boy's mistake. "The lady's name is Columbine, you crazy kid, and—" he tore open the envelope and read:

ADVISE BRINGING PLENTY OF HEAVY UNDERWEAR AND FURS. SHIPPING NOW IS UNSAFE STOP NIGHTS AND EARLY MORNING AFT TO BE COLD—COLUMBINE NELSON

"I'd give a lot to see Nancy in a flannel nightgown," observed Phil dryly. "Mrs Grant had one on the night I slept over at Tim's house and she came in to give him some medicine It made her look like an old lady. I bet Nance wouldn't be found dead in one, or Mother either. Come on. Let's eat."

The meal still dragging as they moved towards the dining room; but once seated, he looked across at Mother and his eyes clouded. Both were thinking that this would be the last well served dinner in the old home Two maids were leaving next day, and only the cook was to remain until the city house was closed.

Remembering this fact, Aunt Judy had stopped at a florist on her way home, and a dozen jonquils nodded gaily from the centre of the table. Aunt Louise, eyeing them with disapproval started to say something in "fluff-fashion extravagance," and then held her tongue After all, she thought, with a sudden pang, Aunt Judy wanted to spend money for something perishable in these hard times. Germany Plans Five Swift Movement Of Troops

Authoritative sources disclosed in Berlin that the German military command plans a highly mobile infantry and artillery which will enable the army to move at 50 miles an hour "over almost anything except woods."

Two motor vehicles for every four infantrymen is the new army's ratio to obtain an unprecedented flexibility and speed.

Open automobiles carrying powerful guns will be used over most roads, sturdy trucks with a capacity of 20 men will be employed on congested highways and near the fronts and tanks or armored cars are planned for front line service.

Light field pieces, specially highways strategically extending to the frontiers, commissariat equipment, motor vehicles, and tanks are included in the array of improvements that a foreign expert described as "leaving nothing, not even the weather, to chance or the luck of an enemy."

The underlying principle, he said is that a future war will be a "fast" one, requiring rapid movement of men and arms to any number of fronts while swift air patrols sweep over an enemy city to destroy communities and morale, to keep rival planes away, and to conduct reconnaissance.

Little Helps For This Week

"If we hope for what we see not, then do we with patience wait for it." Romans 8 25.

"One day is with the Lord as a thousand years and a thousand years as one day" 2 Peter 3 8.

Lord, who Thy thousand years
Dost to eternity unite,
To work the thousandth part
Of Thy vast plan, for us create
With zeal a patient heart.
— J. H Newman.

I believe if we could only see beneath the surface it is that our Heavenly Father means us to be, the soul, beauty and perfection and glory, the most spiritual body this soul is to live in through all eternity, if we could have a glimpse of this we should not grudge all the trouble and pains. He is taking with us now to bring us up to that ideal but we do not think of us. We know that it is God's way to work slowly, so we must not be surprised that He takes a great many years of discipline to turn a mortal being into an immortal glorious angel

Mahatma Refuses To Sanction The Killing Of Rats

Mahatma K. Gandhi caused a sensation in a plague-infected territory of India by refusing to sanction "even the killing of a rat" as part of the anti-plague measures by which natives were hoping to save human life

Being an advocate of non-violence, the Mahatma said he would die before killing a single rat. He suggested strict observance of sanitation rules which would prevent rats breeding and he advised adherents against killing them under any circumstances.

AUTO CAMP TO BE RESTORED TO FORMER SPLENDOR

Is Board of Trade Project

Another well attended members' luncheon was held in the Elks hall on Monday, June 10th. Mr. J. A. M. Craig as vice-president, took the chair in the absence of President C. W. Robinson. After an excellent meal had been disposed of, a number of matters were discussed and the following action decided on.

On motion of Mr. S. C. Heebert, a committee consisting of Messrs. Pilsie, Capston and Watts, was appointed to supervise the Auto Camp, in cooperation with the town council. This picturesque spot will soon be in an excellent condition with every convenience for the camper.

Plans for the proposed Community Picnic next month were considered and suggestions made for a suitable location. A meeting of the main committee was arranged for next Thursday evening at C. W. Robinson's office.

Mr. R. H. Norton brought up the matter of arranging to have the elevators here remain open on Saturday nights, as it is understood that considerable business will otherwise be lost to the town. This is due to the fact that the elevators in Wainwright remain open, in common with the stores, on Saturday evenings, and farmers living on the half-way mark between the two towns and who go to town by truck, have got into the habit of loading up the machine with grain and going to the town where they can dispose of it in the evening. After some discussion the matter was tabled until next luncheon.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem

PROTECTION IS ASKED FOR PHEASANTS HERE

The School of Agriculture liberated thirty-four more of the beautiful ring necked pheasants a short time ago and the protection of these birds is asked of everyone. The birds were freed in the country to the west and south of town. Each and every person should take it on himself to see that the pheasants are protected as much as possible

A LITTLE COMPANY GROWN BIG

IMPERIAL OIL was a little Company in 1898. There was then only a handful of employees. A dozen or so products were the Company's stock in trade.

Today nearly 18,000 Canadian men and women are engaged in making and selling 714 different Imperial Oil Products. So, counting their families, there are about 90,000 people directly dependent for livelihood on this Company and its operations. 90,000 is a lot of Canadians.

Imperial Oil's growth depended upon more than growth in population and demand. Fair dealing, honest value and the ability to meet new needs with new products and new services all played their part. Of course, a loyal, capable staff was indispensable. Such a staff was built up by fair and considerate treatment. Good wages, sickness and death benefits, retirement pensions, group insurance, industrial councils—these are some of the measures by which the Company has recognized its responsibility to the men and women in its employ.

These men and women have recognized in turn their responsibility to the Company. By loyal, whole-hearted service they have helped it to make better products at lower cost and thus become "a big company."

Vermilion Wins Ball Tourney At Clandonald

Win Three Games, Two Shut-outs; Trim Vegreville 7-0; Blast Chief Rattlesnake, Huchulak and Mydansky from Mound

KNOCK 3 HOME RUNS

Playing superb ball Vermilion's baseball team walloped all opposition and were credited with four wins at the Clandonald sports on Wednesday. Two firsts and one second has been the tournament record of the locals to date.

They were first drawn against 37th Point, who defaulted. They then played Buffalo from west of Lindbergh and trimmed them 7-3. Our boys knocked the famous Chief Rattlesnake from the box in two innings, stan Waldenberger starting the rout with a home run on the first ball pitched in the game. Locals' battery Jim Banks and Bill Mead.

Vegreville created the strong N. Elburg outfit and for Vermilion in the semi finals Mead got into form and then Jess pieced, allowing them only 7 hits, just when the western team was beginning to get comfortable. Then Huchulak started for Vegreville and lasted three innings before being pulled after Stephens and Jack Smith had hit safely. Lovell allowed but four hits in the remaining innings, while Vermilion were getting to Mydansky for seven hits, including a home run by Bill Mead.

Funerals Without Flowers

Within recent months the writer has attended a number of funerals, some of them other friends and loved ones in paying respect to a deceased friend. Some of those funeral services have been held quietly and simply in the home, with only a few of the nearest relatives and closest friends of the departed one present, others have been held in churches in order that the larger circle of the deceased's friends and associates in his or her life's activities might be present, or where the religious tenets of the departed might be properly observed. In one case just a few persons were present, people who had voluntarily made small contributions to prevent the remains of the one who had passed on from being consigned to the potter's field.

In the vast majority of cases there was evidence in profusion, wreaths, emblems, sprays, crosses and scores of them representing an expenditure of many dollars. And the thought constantly protruded itself whether such lavish display of floral tokens was right, in good taste, even in keeping with our Christian beliefs. It could not be questioned that in many, probably most, instances these flowers were sent out of love or a sincere respect for the deceased. Equally true, no doubt, on numerous instances flowers were sent because it has become the custom to send them.

As a matter of fact, as in the case of weddings, the tendency seems to be in the direction of making funerals more and more elaborate, more expensive more and more something of a spectacle. The quiet and simplicity in funerals of former days has largely passed, until now it has become a source of heavy expense and consequent worry to people who are not blessed with an over-abundance of this world's goods. Just because of prevailing custom, nobody wishes to appear mean in the eyes of others when called upon to discharge the last duty to a loved one

Many people think it unwise to believe present customs are wrong but seldom openly express themselves. In a recent spirited article entitled "Decent Christian Burial", Martan J Castle attacked the extravagance attending funerals. He showed how unnecessary, tombstones are, how pomp and ceremony, often impoverish the living families of the deceased She wisely inferred that the deed might be happier if the funds showered upon their inanimate bodies were used instead to brighten the lot of the living

Discussing this same subject, Alma Hedin sister of Sven Hedin, the famous Swedish explorer says it is in the spirit of the times in her country to seek the simplest and in all the world the most dignified memorial for those we have loved. She outlines various steps taken in this direction, including the provision of funeral insurance through the agency of a society, which takes charge of all funeral arrangements, which are the same for every individual Payment can be made to the society at any time during the lifetime of the insured, the premium be ng smaller for the young than for the old. The highest premium be paid by those who are over 70, and is about $75 in all. This provides for a dignified funeral of a kind that might otherwise tax the resources of the bereaved family, especially when the deceased happened to be the breadwinner

In Sweden, too, they have had since 1921 an organization called the Flower Fund, formed to honor the dead "in a more worthy and more lasting manner" than with ornate floral tributes for the bier. Instead of sending an expensive wreath, the friends of the deceased remit the money to the Flower Fund, which sends to the bereaved family a simple memorial message in the name of the giver The amount contributed remains a confidential matter between the donor and the fund.

It was decided that the money received in this way should be applied to obtaining houses with small apartments for old people in straitened circumstances. When three such houses had been passed, the Flower Fund has erected a large building on a site donated by the city of Stockholm. Soon a second house rose by the side of the first, and before long six additional houses were built. By this means the Fund provides for more than a thousand old people. These pay a lower rent than they would pay elsewhere and receive care if they are ill. Otherwise they are quite free, and there is nothing institutional about the place. It is like a private home.

There is a restaurant in each building where residents can buy lunch or dinner for a quarter of a dollar. They may have meals sent to their rooms or prepare them in the small kitchens which form part of the apartment. Food can be purchased in the buildings, and there is also a hairdresser and a bakery. The old people seem to be happy under these arrangements, for there are always more applications than can be filled.

Swedish death notices often contain a line asking that the Flower Fund be remembered. Sometimes another charity is named, for the example is contagious. The important thing is not that the money is donated to a single cause but that the memorial be given a form that will honor the dead by benefiting the living

Does this Swedish idea not offer a suggestion to the people of other countries? Can we not make our tribute to our deceased loved ones something more lasting than quickly withered blossoms"

Fatal Kiss

Frutchel Method Of Transmitting T.B. To Children

"The kiss of the tuberculous mother is often the kiss of death," stated Dr H. E Kleinschmidt, director of health education of the National Tuberculosis Association, New York.

Dr Kleinschmidt, who addressed the national health conference of the Toronto, said "kissing is a high road in the spread of tuberculosis." While parents always kiss their children full on the mouth, "they should realize that unless they have been examined and are certain that they have not tuberculosis in a transmittable form, their kiss may be a kiss of death."

Ottawa.—Information which will be of assistance to the provincial bureaus of statistics at Ottawa is sought by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, through the issuance of questionnaires to all farmers in the Dominion, in connection with the census of agriculture, which is to be taken in June of each year, the bureau, in co-operation with the provincial departments of agriculture, distributes cardboard schedules to farmers for the purpose of collecting statistics of acreage under crop and the numbers of livestock and poultry on farms. An innovation of 1931 extended this survey to cover the breeding and marketing intentions with regard to livestock. In all of the provinces except Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Alberta and British Columbia, these schedules are distributed to the farmers through the rural school teachers.

Bodies Of Man And Woman Found On Scorching Sands Of Sahara

A searching party found the bodies of an Englishwoman and an Englishman on the scorching Sahara sands, recently and rescued two Frenchmen near death from thirst.

The woman, Mrs. Knight, widow of an English aviator who committed suicide recently at Agadez, French West Africa, had stabbed her wrist apparently in an attempt to end her torture from thirst and heat.

After the quartette were long four days a searching party left Agadez for them. It found the Frenchmen in a serious condition beside the truck near a dried-up river bed.

Control Of Press

Irish Newspapers Apprehensive Of Free State Policy

Hints thrown out in Dublin that the department of justice is contemplating to control the press, have created some apprehension among Irish newspapermen. Spokesmen of Eamon de Valera's Republican government declare it has never got a square deal from the press, home or foreign.

Weekly letters sent from Dublin to papers published in the Irish provinces have also incurred displeasure of the government, acting through its official information bureau, and determine the general political branch of the police have been ordered to pursue inquiries as to the correspondents responsible.

Following is reported set up by the government of William T. Cosgrave, Mr. de Valera's administration has begun the practice of withholding government advertisements from certain newspapers which actively support the opposition. The Cork Examiner, a daily newspaper in Munster, was deprived of advertising when it refused to publish a news release on the "Grow More Wheat" plan in full and without comment.

A Farm On Wheels

Man Gives New York Children A Real Thrill

A crowd of New York school children of Manhattan, who get little chance to see living potatoes growing, ate Broadway, went into a state of virtual delirium as they watched a farmer plant a crop.

The farm on wheels, complete with a farmer's daughter, was the idea of James W. Mulholland of the Park Department, who wanted city children to see what a real barn looked like. Described as a sort of land ship, the mammoth farm, when it played a number of three-day stands at various city parks.

Before it began its barnstorming tour it was viewed by hundreds of school children who flocked to see it in Central Park at 5 o'clock.

The personnel of the traveling "stock company" included a red Jersey Cow and her twin calves, a sheep and two lambs, a goat and two frisky kids about a month old, a white turkey gobbler, a little russet pig and a hen and four chicks.

This station, the first in the West, will be used to carry on tests this year, according to Professor Grant McEwen. It will accommodate 25 litter tests, and is equipped with a modern scale. Professor McEwen was that it is feared this station will not be sufficient to handle all applications. The first three litter representatives arrived for testing in the Saskatchewan station early in May.

Medical World Endeavors To Discover Virus For Treating Common Colds

There is a virus that has something to do with the common cold and that's what so far has eluded the medical world. When it is discovered, and it is hoped it is, then the cold may be squelched.

"The germs of the common cold are well known," Dr. H. C. Sewall, of San Francisco, told the convention of the American Laryngological Association in Toronto, "although I believe there is a virus which is not yet known. This virus, in my opinion, is the cause of all these germs that go to cause the common

Persons who suffer from frequent colds are probably suffering from the same cold all the time, he said. He said a cold creates an immunity of six months or so.

"This," he said, "is probably the reason for the endemic source of colds. These germs carry the source of infection in chronic sinus trouble and spread infection to other people."

Would Abolish Military Aviation

Londoners Vote For Limitation Of Armaments

Universal abolition of military aviation and drastic limitation of armaments were favored by an overwhelming majority in a straw-vote conducted by the League for Nations union in Greater London, the union announced.

On three questions and on the question of supporting the league and forbidding the manufacture of arms for profit, the vote favored the proposals by 1,400,000 to 100,000

Londoners voted 1,373,061 to 68,-571 for use of economic sanctions against an aggressor, whatever the nation might be, and 872,275 to 386,-664 for use of military sanctions if they were found necessary.

Young Lambs Make Trip

Long Jaunt Did Not Appear To Bother Them

Young lambs are good "trailers". Recently the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, moved its own flock to summer pasture at Beaver Creek and the ewes, with lambs at foot, walked the 12 miles the first day and completed the journey easily the second. Some of these lambs were no more than four days old.

"The long jaunt did not appear to hurt the lambs a bit," said Dean A. M. Shaw, "and after their 10 mile trip they were fresh and perky. Of course, the weather was cool, but the observation is of particular interest to ranchers and B.C. shippers when moving their stock from winter to summer range."

BYNG OF VIMY HERO OF WAR DIES IN ENGLAND

Thorpe-Le-Soken, Essex.—Stanch warrior in war and in peace, Field Marshal Julian Hedworth Byng, first Viscount Byng of Vimy, commander of the Canadian Corps in the Great War and later governor-general of Canada, is dead. He was 72 years old. Death came to end a long illness of heart disease and gutted of fighters after a last-chance operation. Byng had been failing in health in recent years. He returned only a few months ago from another cure journey to Canada and California.

Byng, a soldier all his life until summoned first to the governor-generalship of Canada and then to reorganize the Metropolitan Police of London, at the time shattered in morale, had the hearty respect of the empire's foremost military men, among them that of civilian who later the late Sir Arthur Currie, who succeeded Byng in command of the Canadian corps.

Genial with reserve, courteous to a fault, Byng of Vimy performed his duties and followed his career like gentlemen whose jealousy or honest disagreement with superiors found vent in statements or autobiographies. He was called to the western front a few weeks after the opening of the Great War; he was perhaps the last man in history to make the valuable cavalry campaigns that now find no place in major warfare; he was the father of the Battle of Vimy Ridge, when a hundred thousand Canadians under his leadership over-ran that vital height on Easter Monday, 1917, in the only major success of much-promising general offensive.

Byng after that was promoted commander of the Third Army which had support of the Canadian Corps, and near the close of the war, one of the most brilliant military conceptions of the entire war, neutralized for the Allies the German use of the Hindenburg line.

Byng was promoted general after that effort late in 1917, and in the spring of 1918 his "Third" Army, with the Canadian Corps, Gen. J. L. Raimo, Liberal financial critic, suggested members should be allowed expenses for living expenses in Ottawa. He claimed it was unjust to tax members for the full indemnity when it was necessary for them to spend most of it to earn it.

The finance minister agreed, but went further. He believed the $4,000 indemnity should be exempt from income tax and was prepared to recommend a change in the law to the incoming parliament.

The clause inserted provides that in any prosecution of an employer for breach of the act, the court may order payment to the employee concerned of the amount of wages proved to be unpaid or short paid.

Tariff Changes

Ottawa Since Aug. 1, 1930, there have been 471 increases in the tariff schedule by act of parliament and four by order-in-council with 306 decreases by parliament and seven by order-in-council, according to a return tabled in the House of Commons. The information was requested by J. F. Pouliot (Liberal, Temiscouata).

C.N.A. For Fair Wages

Evidence Of Manufacturers Not Favoring Employees Fairly

Hamilton, Ont.—Question of whether or not the Canadian Manufacturers' Association should frown on "improper wages" featured the association's 64th annual convention here.

Discussion followed the report of the executive council. A. J. Reden, Toronto, introduced the subject in the section of the industrial relations committee report which recommended the association should still adhere to its traditional policy of insisting wages, hours and conditions of employment generally should be agreed upon between employers and employees.

This was urged in connection with the Ontario Industrial Standards Act, which had been opposed by the association.

"In theory the tradition is right, but it does not always work out in practice," Mr. Reden said. "Some firms always succeeded in engaging employees and pay a very low scale of wages. Perhaps the time has come when some form should be protected against ones which buy labor at a cheap price."

H. P. Burton, Toronto, supported Reden, declaring there was too much evidence of manufacturers not treating fairly.

"It is time something was done in this regard," he said, in urging passage of a resolution which would have members were not in favor of condemnating unfair wages.

Melville White, Toronto, thought the word "improper" covered the matter, but Mr. Burton pointed out an employer could agree to pay low wages.

"What I referred to was the 'take it or leave it' type of employment," he said. Mr. Burton's motion was carried.

After Alexander Donald, Hamilton; Elmer Davis, Kingston; W. C. Coulter, Toronto, and others had spoken, the association passed a motion instructing the resolutions committee to frame a motion on the point.

May Be Tax Free

Proposal To Exempt Members And Senators From Income Tax

Ottawa.—Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes may introduce a bill later this session to exempt the indemnities of members and senators from income tax. To abolish members from the tax legislation for themselves, the bill will not apply to the present parliament.

There was some discussing income tax changes, Hon. J. L. Raimo, Liberal financial critic, suggested members should be allowed expenses for living expenses in Ottawa. He claimed it was unjust to tax members for the full indemnity when it was necessary for them to spend most of it to earn it.

The finance minister agreed, but went further. He believed the $4,000 indemnity should be exempt from income tax and was prepared to recommend a change in the law to the incoming parliament.

Dismissal Of Byrnell, Sued By Calgary Nurse, Settles Suit

Calgary. — Alberta's millionaire ranchman, the Earl of Egmont, sued for $66 by Miss Etta Kerchoff, a Calgary nurse, has settled for an "unspecified sum," it was announced in the Egmont court.

Judge W. A. Macdonald, who ruled there had been a breach of contract, was advised of the settlement.

Miss Kerchoff claimed she was entitled to $66 from the 11-year-old earl, representing a "waiting fee" prior to the birth of Viscount Percival last year. She was dismissed before the heir to the Egmont fortune was born.

The title Tweedsmuir recognizes the distinguished author's youthful associations with the river Tweed, the name on the Tweed. Elsfield Manor in the county of Oxford is his home.

LEGAL RIGHT OF PROVINCES TO TAX INCOMES

Ottawa.—A province has a legal right to impose income tax, Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes told the House of Commons when T. L. Church (Conse., Toronto-Rosedale) expressed alarm at the prospect of Ontario duplicating the federal impost and abolishing municipal income taxes.

The finance minister expressed hope that before long a settlement would be reached on the over-lapping of provincial and federal taxation fields. It had been on the agenda of the Dominion-provincial conference and would be discussed at the next one.

The house gave third reading to two bills implementing sections of the last budget. All changes in the tariff and income tax were enacted into legislation without prolonged debate. From the day the budget was presented until approved the actual debate in the house has been less than in any recent session.

The Toronto member suggested Canada follow the lead of the United States and publish income figures. A Washington investigation, he said declared members should be allowed expenses for living expenses in Ottawa. He claimed it was unjust to tax members for the full indemnity when it was necessary for them to spend most of it to earn it.

The finance minister agreed, but went further. He believed the $4,000 indemnity should be exempt from income tax and was prepared to recommend a change in the law to the incoming parliament.

Ottawa.—Minimum penalties for false or unjust weights under the weights and measure bill increasing the punishment for short weights were reduced by an amendment adopted by the senate banking and commerce committee.

Maximum penalties provided in the amending measure were passed without change

For a first offence, an individual engaged in trade would be liable under the amendment to a minimum fine of $10 and a minimum of $50 for a subsequent offence. The bill as received from the commons had provided for a minimum fine of $50 for a first offence and $100 for a subsequent infraction. The maxima stand at $100 for a first offence and $250 for a subsequent infraction

In the case of a corporation, the minimum for a first offence was reduced from $500 to $100 and for a subsequent infraction from $1,000 to $500. The maxima set out in the measure of $500 for a first offence and $5,000 for a subsequent infraction remain

Drouth At The Coast

Crops On South Vancouver Island Suffer From Lack Of Moisture

Victoria.—Scorched by the sun and dried by the wind, southern Vancouver Island is experiencing one of the worst drouths in recent years Crops in many areas are parched and withered from the unusual dry thirst. In many cases they have been reduced 50 to 75 per cent while in others they are pronounced to complete failures

Much uncultivated land is bone dry to a depth of one to three feet, while in some places the drouth has reached the hard pan A three-inch coating of dust protects the moisture on well-cultivated fields, plantations and orchards, but how long before the heat will dry it out is a matter of conjecture

Flome plowed fields are dreary stretches of dusty grey-brown In most of them, seed which has been sown a month ago has not yet germinated

London The air ministry announced approximately 38,000 inquiries had been received up to June 1 for tradesmen and mechanics for the Royal Air Force. More than 8,500 inquiries had been received for pilots, officers and airmen. Many of these so far had been accepted or interviewed

The ministry said it was too early yet to give details regarding the origin of the recruits. The inquiries came from all parts of the Dominion and from the United States as well as a number of other countries. The announcement was made in connection with the expansion of the royal air force

SEEK APPROVAL OF NEW MIDGET N.R.A. PROPOSAL

Washington With President Roosevelt's midget N.R.A. proposal headed for quick approval, Democratic Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader predicted no further legislation on the subject at this session

Mr. Roosevelt, in extending the life of the N.R.A. for one year, but with a drastic curtailment of the administration's powers, asked congress to limit the agency to the regulation of codes of fair competition already in effect, and to the drafting of new codes for industries which have not yet established them.

Administration supporters in the senate and house immediately began drafting legislation to carry out the president's recommendations.

Meanwhile, before such measure could be introduced in congress, the president's proposal was submitted to the Industrial Advisory board of the N.R.A. for consideration.

Legislative developments were also under way in the senate where the finance committee began consideration of the administration's $2,000,000,000 public works bill, and in the house where the committee on labor began hearings on the Wagner bill to establish a permanent federal labor relations board.

Administration leaders in the senate predicted that the public works bill would be passed by the senate before the end of the week.

DECLARES PUBLIC CONTROL OF RADIO IS THREATENED

Ottawa.—An active movement exists in Canada to destroy public control of radio, Premier R. B Bennett warned the House of Commons. He declared members to pay no heed to it and strengthen, not weaken radio as a public utility.

At the same time it was announced the government will introduce a bill in a few days to extend the life of the radio commission until March 31, 1936. This would permit, as Minister of Marine Alfred Duranleau said "another parliament to decide whether it should be abolished or its power modified"

"The truth is" said Mr Bennett minimum for a first offence was reduced from $500 to $100 and for a subsequent infraction from $1,000 to $500. The maxima set out in the measure of $500 for a first offence and $5,000 for a subsequent infraction remain

POLITICAL ACTIVITY IN VERMILION CONSTITUENCY.

In spite of the stress of times and the dead carbuncles of the parties involved there is remarkable animation in the air over the prospective political situation in the Vermilion constituency. In the election of 1926 the contest was among the Farmer, our premier and the Liberal candidate with Mr Reid having a comfortable majority of some 3-400 votes. The picture has changed — five candidates are in the field — and two of the new parties will derive the bulk of their support from certain of U.F.A. votes. The fourth new contender is the widely and spectacularly known Social Credit candidate. It will get its strength chiefly from some U.F.A.'s. While also gathering the city field a good many tailors-off of the old line parties. The name of Liberal candidate has not been announced which seemed to be enjoying a wave of popularity heretofore some months ago has apparently slipped since the inception of Social Credit. Liberals will no doubt reserve their activity as soon as the election date is announced and will receive a goodly share of votes. The Conservatives are not to be feared as far as winning the seat is concerned but will likely make a creditable showing. The battle as a preliminary step in organizing for the federal election. In the north-eastern section another large block of votes will be lost to the U.F.A. that which will go to the Communist candidate. There is a solid vote in for the Liberal runner for this party and a sprinkling of sympathizers can be found throughout the constituency.

So there we have it — five candidates instead of two, in a five-way split in a landscape poll, anything may happen. Will the number of contenders be detrimental to the U.F.A. cause or will it be their salvation, breaking on the contenders for the seat? The U.F.A. will have to lose sixthly to allow one of our contenders to slip among whom the vote is divided enough to win the provincial battle.

Bright Stories about Wine

SPECIAL GRAPES

● It is true that a wine can be made from any grape. In the same sense it is true that one could make a race between a team of horses which had spent the best part of their lives in the plow. If the grape is to be regarded merely as an agent of intoxication, then the end can be gained with potatoes, dandelions or any other vegetable matter that ferments. But the truth is that comparatively few kinds of grape are used by reputable vintners to make wine. This is a fact not generally known, or perhaps the public is interested not so much in the reasons as the results. Nevertheless we think it appropriate enough as part of an educational campaign to note some of the differences in the various grapes.

● When one says that all that is required of a grape is that it should be palatable or readily converted into wine, he speaks with a generalness and positiveness that grape growers and wine makers might well envy. Most of our own wines come from the Concord grape, but there are scores of grapes which are cultivated, each having one or perhaps more than one desirable quality. For instance, the Catawba grape has several advantages except that of early maturity, and it is restricted to an extremely narrow district. The Elvira, a white wine grape, has a skin that bursts easily, and therefore it is a bad shipper.

● The Delaware is a meagre yielder and is not vigorous. The Norton matures too late for our Canadian climate and is difficult to propagate. Other varieties have what is called a foxy flavor. This is characteristic of the Concord, of course, but some connoisseurs admire it. There is a demand, however, among experts for a grape that lacks this characteristic odor, and experiments to this end are going forward. But undoubtedly the science of viniculture will overcome this obstacle, if indeed it is an obstacle. In some of our wines this peculiar bouquet is almost

VERMILION BASEBALLERS DEFEAT VEGREVILLE 7-4

Vermilion's baseball team journeyed to Vegreville on Sunday and downed the home aggregation three by 7 runs to 4, and this was despite the fact that the Vegreville boys were minus a couple of their regular players and then presented a patched-up infield. Letty McAnany, last year a star hurler for the Cadomin ball team, one of the best in the province according to the players, did the mound work for Vegreville and suffered his first defeat of the season. Don't get the idea that he had an off day, either, as he struck out the unbelievable number of 20 batsmen during the nine innings. Our stick wielders got to him in clusters, though, and thus notched their seven tallies. Jack Smith did a masterly batting job for Vermilion only two of the westerners' runs being earned and two resulting from costly errors. Bill Mead was on the receiving end of Smith's slants and did a good job of it. Jack English was on first, while Stan Waldenberger had to be moved from the outfield to fill in hole left by Fred Blumenabe's absence. Art Wiebe was at short with Slim Robinson holding down the pepper corner. The outfielders were Fred Brimacombe ,Frank Mead and Gilbert Brimacombe.

A POSSIBLE IMPROBABILITY.

A project has been advanced to unite all old parties against the threat of Social Credit in Alberta. Imagine, if you can, the Liberal and U.F.A. groups sinking their differences after all the mud-slinging of the past years and old staid Conservatives lining up shoulder to shoulder with the Communists.

HERE'S A Triple Value
NOW AT A NEW LOW PRICE

MAZOLA, an absolutely pure vegetable oil, is preferred even by chefs to imported oils for Mayonnaise and French Dressings, because it blends perfectly and quickly and will not separate.

You'll like your own home-made salad dressings so much better. They are always fresh and more delicious.

MAZOLA is ideal for sauteing and deep frying. It brings out the flavor of meats and fish, makes golden French fried potatoes, and gives foods a most appetizing appearance.

MAZOLA, because it does not absorb or transmit the flavor or odor of foods, can be used over and over again. This is an important economy that, combined with its low price, makes MAZOLA an outstanding Triple Value.

The Higher Yields From Small Plots

Scientific agriculturists at Governmental institutions have often noted the superior yields that come from small plots managed by hand, as compared with the lower yields obtained from large fields managed with machinery. Investigations that have been made, particularly at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Swift Current, have revealed that the differences in yields are mainly due to the fact that on small plots weeds are usually all removed by hand, whereas on large fields the troublesome pervert a certain percentage of the weeds as thieves.

It is evident, therefore, that much valuable moisture will be saved if weeds are well kept down on summerfallow

ISLAY NEWS

ISLAY DRUG STORE CHANGES HANDS

Gordon Edwards of Edmonton, an experienced druggist, has purchased the Islay drug store from the former owner, Jas. Carney. Mr. Edwards took charge over a week ago and now appears to be quite at home in his new position. The best wishes for the future of the business are offered to Mr. Edwards.

NEW TOWN HALL TO BE BUILT

The village council are now taking definite action for the erection of a new town hall, for which debentures were advertised some time ago. This will be a real acquisition to the Islay people who have been without a hall for several years.

The Rev. W. D. Lourd, for the past year in charge of the United Church here, has been appointed to the Rusby field, according to United church changes announced in daily papers.

The Islay hospital is receiving an interior decorating at the hands of Frank Joy of Vermilion.

Miss Jean Fyfe attended the Eastern Star convention in Edmonton last week.

The C.G.I.T. girls enjoyed a hike and weiner roast on Thursday evening last.

Wilfred Potvin and Mrs. F. Kennedy motored to Vermilion last Saturday week to attend the funeral of their little two-year-old neice, who was the daughter of Mrs. Roberge, (nee Alma Potvin).

Mark Williams of Fort Pitt stopped off at Islay on his return trip from Edmonton last week end. He was travelling by car.

The report in last week's paper regarding the meeting to organize a sports day was incorrect. Far from being a failure the meeting was well attended, was enthusiastic toward the project, and various committees were appointed. Just what further action will be taken, owing to the town hall project being uppermost in the minds of the townspeople, has not been decided.

Promise of rain has not been fulfilled to the extent needed and moisture is urgently required.

Football Notes

A good work out Sunday showed the boys are rounding into shape and just rarin' for the re's whistle to send them into action against St. Andrew's on the Saints' grounds on June 16th. Leaving Islay 1 p.m. — be on time.

Softball Sittings

Islay softballers took a work out on Sunday and are scheduled to play the "married men" on Wednesday.

Thursday, 6th, Holyrood and Kenilworth clashed on the latter's ground and after a real bang-up game that kept the fans on their toes, Holyrood won out 13-9. They meet again on the 11th.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES
o o o o
From the Neighborhood of the South-East

The "good old days" returned once more Thursday when the well known Gobblers descended on Woodvale and obliged us with a very enjoyable afternoon. The whole Woodvale team lined up for the first time as a unit and surprised itself very much by taking the first set-to out of the Gobblers' claws. Another round brought the Turks out one ahead and so everybody was happy. A nice crowd of our reliable old-timers were present, and Mr. Powell escorted visiting members of the Rosebourgh family to the grounds.

The Turks have indulged in "the blues" this summer, as each of the team (and many rooters) appeared in some variation of that color. We also noted that every young member of the Gobblers was at least six inches taller. And therefore have hard to pick 'em.

Most people now (Sunday) are wishing heartily for a rain. Gardens are slept in the vicinity, some a little touched by frost. Mrs. Connaughton reports the first radishes we've heard of.

For those interested in keeping telephone lines in the district, word has been given out that a meeting will be held at Woodvale school on Tuesday evening, June 18th. A government official is expected to be present to give definite information in regard to rates, etc.

The Tolland U.F.W.A. meet at the home of Mrs. Thos. Doyle on July 12

And don' forget the Tolland dance on the 14th!

Miss Ina Roberts was a visitor to the Neighborhood and her home on Sunday, having motored up from the Waterright district, where she is employed.

Social Credit had an inning or two Sunday, but not on the diamond. There it was taboo. Once in a while as last year's running shoe gave out under the strain, one just heard a muttered shout that "twenty-five."

It is not considered proper to mention the weather in polite circles — since no mention of the present was ever heard to proper in polite circle!

Mr. and Mrs. Artie Friedland and daughters went to Jarrow last week-end and took in the celebration of the 3rd in that neighborhood.

While stalking a pesky crow the other day, Clarence Potter set a record — two birds with one shot! Friend wife did not join in the rejoicing however, since the second bird was a nice laying pullet. No further details are available'

ISLAND HILL

It was decided unanimously and spontaneously by upwards of one hundred persons present at a softball match Sunday at the football grounds here that Bob Butler be awarded the Carnegie Medal for extraordinary skill shown in the game. It was further decided that the Medal be presented next Sunday at the same grounds by Bill Hall, Bert Searle and J. C. Allen. A crowd is expected to witness the ceremony that will be unprecedented in the annals of the district.

A proud father whom we met in town Saturday bringing home his first-born — a fine baby girl — was Mark Cooney, Chandonald, the popular captain of the Clan football club.

In a friendly tryout Rosyln Colvin were they possess a number of sharp-shooters by scoring seven goals against their nearest rivals, St. Andrew's. By the way, a match worth seeing will be the first league encounter between Rusylvia and Chandonald at the latter's grounds Saturday.

Jim Crawford has returned here after a prolonged visit to the East.

At a U.F.A meeting held Monday it was decided to hold a picnic some date in July.

It was also decided to invite leading members to speak on the U.F.A. and Social Credit policies on the same date as the picnic. Full particulars will be given later in the Standard.

HERE IS ONE FOR RIPLEY!

"Biddy Goes To Town" — or — "The Stowaway"

Den Arneton, while on his way to town one day last week, happened to glance through a small opening in the dash of his car, and noticed a hen, comfortably ensconced beside the motor of his automobile. He stopped the car, opened the hood and took the hen out, and much to his surprise found that she had laid an egg there. Mrs. Hen finished the trip in the car propriety wrapped in a sack.

ASK FOR Kellogg's

Every package of
Corn Flakes we have ever made has borne the name Kellogg's

THERE is no such thing as a package of corn flakes made by Kellogg and sold under another name. If you are ever told that a substitute brand is "the same as Kellogg's" or "made in the Kellogg factory," the statement is false — a deliberate attempt to palm off an inferior product.

Kellogg's Corn Flakes have won their undisputed place as the world's leading ready-to-eat cereal because they are the best corn flakes made.

From the selection of the fine white corn and other ingredients that produce Kellogg's matchless flavor — straight through the immaculate kitchens and great, shining ovens to the final packaging — purity and quality are the first considerations.

If you are ever in the vicinity of London, Ontario, we cordially invite you to visit the Kellogg factory. After such a visit you will appreciate — as thousands of other housewives have — the extra value that makes Kellogg's Corn Flakes outstanding.

Ask your grocer for Kellogg's — the original Corn Flakes — in the red-and-green package. Quality guaranteed. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

The 680th anniversary of the first printed English Bible will be celebrated next October 4, it has been announced.

The U.S. bureau of agricultural economics has estimated the total wheat area for harvest this year in 26 countries at 190,954,000 acres, compared with 185,774,000 acres in 1934 and 191,132,000 acres in 1933.

The United States treasury summed up its financial situation for the first 11 months of the year ending in June and discovered it had gone "in the red" $5,123,471,326 during that time.

Soviet Russia's policy in the Far East will be one "unbending as steel" in all matters regarding defenses of the country's interests, Karl Radek said in an article in the official newspaper Izvestia.

The venom of the black widow spider is good for relieving the pain of angina pectoris. Its use for this was described to the American Institute of Homeopathy by Dr. Lloyd V. Boyd, of the Homeopathic College.

Recovery Obstacles

United States Writer Calls For Reciprocal Trade Efforts

Commercial policies of the United States were described by Peter Molyneaux, editor of the Texas weekly and a trustee of the Carnegie, Mr. de Valera's advocate for peace, as "the greatest obstacle to world recovery." Writings in "International Conciliation," a publication of the endowment, he added:

"I mean the policy embodied in the rates of the Hawley-Smoot tariff act; the policy exemplified by the American attitude on war debts, the policy which prompted the almost monopoly enactment by congress of the Johnson Foreign Security Boycott act, the policy which every foreign country encountered as we shoved and elbow our borders when it attempts to ship its goods to us in exchange for our own."

Molyneaux called the reciprocal trade efforts of Secretary of State Cordell Hull a step in the "right direction." Cordell Hull's efforts were held "absolutely essential to world recovery" and he added that so long as the United States pursues its present policies "any lasting of international exchange will be impossible."

Reciprocal Judgments

Five Provinces Take Advantage Of Dominion Legislation

Judgments of Alberta courts become enforceable in Ontario as the Ontario cabinet passed an order-in-council taking advantage of the reciprocal judgments enforcement act Alberta's four similar acts to make Ontario judgments enforceable there a short time ago.

Five provinces have taken advantage of the Dominion legislation which applies to both supreme court and county court decisions. They were British Columbia Saskatchewan Alberta New Brunswick and Ontario.

Vimy Pilgrimage Becomes Great Peace Movement

Registrations Of Ex-Service Men Pouring In To Canadian Legion

The Vimy and Battlefields Pilgrimage of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League of which the famous Padre of the Canadian Corps, Canon Scott of Quebec, is Pilgrim No 1, has already received 548 applications from ex-service men, despite the fact that the ships arranged jointly by the Canada Pacific Steamship and Canadian Pacific lines do not sail from Montreal until July 15th and 16th next year, 1936. In addition twelve hundred applications have been received by the government from ex-service men to the Civil Service for leave for the duration of the Pilgrimage.

The event is going to be one of world significance. It is a Peace movement on a colossal scale. It is anticipated that over 25,000 Canadians—ex-soldiers, their wives, children, fathers, mothers, sisters and brothers—will visit the cemeteries, the battlefields, and attend the unveiling of the Canadian Memorial at Vimy Ridge.

The all inclusive cost of the entire trip—as outlined below—is $180.00.

Sail from Montreal, July 15th or 16th, 1936; arrive France, July 24th; visiting graves, battlefields, towns in France and Belgium, (ships built in French port), July 24th, 25th, 26th; attending Vimy Ridge Canadian Government War Memorial, July 26th; arrival England — London — Tilbury Docks, (whole bold four days), July 27th; London (four days), July 27th-30th; arrival in Canada (Montreal), August 8th.

After prolonged negotiations the Allied Airways Conference granted an ocean rate of $130.00 return—the lowest rate possible to obtain. Staterooms (3rd class) and the regular meals will be provided. Freedom of the ship will be granted. Cabin Class will be available to those wishing to pay higher rates. Please remember too that Ocean Travel accommodations are in very short supply at that time of 1936-1939.

Upon submitting $40.00 of the $180.00 is to provide for rail and road transportation in France, billeting accommodation and meals in France and beds and breakfasts for four days in England. Further details will also be provided for visits to France, Belgium and England. Accident insurance will also be provided in respect to those attending as pilgrims to the Insurance Companies for this purpose. In addition, an official badge, beret, haversack and guide book will be provided. This indicates exactly how the amount quoted is made up.

Railway ticket agents, Ocean Line agents and Land Tour Companies are supplied with full information and application forms to take care of the many who will be participating in the Pilgrimage.

The Legion will not profit by this venture. The organization expenses will be taken care of through ordinary commissions. Any balance that may remain in the special Pilgrimage bank account, after organizing expenses are met, will be placed in a special fund and allocated to such veteran purposes as the National Pilgrimage Committee may decide. Commissaires have no bearing on the price of the ticket. The ocean rate is set by the Atlantic Conference of Steamship Lines and commissaires are also set by the steamship lines so that whether commissions are accepted or not the price of the ticket remains the same.

The organizers of this Pilgrimage stagger the imagination. Never before in the history of the world has a nation so far removed from the scene of hostilities left so many of its dead buried in foreign soil in a Battle for Freedom. In a War in which Canada sent 500,000 troops to France. Sixty thousand are buried in 1,000 cemeteries scattered from Ypres to Albert—from Etaples to Paris. On Sunday, July 26th, thousands of Canadians and a brilliant company of the representatives of all nations, will gather on Canadian soil at Vimy Ridge to unveil Canada's War Memorial—completed after seventeen years of unremitting labor.

This memorial, designed by Walter S. Allward, R. Canadian, is awarded by the Canadian Government on Vimy Ridge—dedicated by the French Government to the Dominion of Canada as "That bit of foreign soil which will forever remain Canadian."

Major General The Honourable S. C. Mewburn, C.M.G. chairman of the Canadian Battlefields Memorial Commission, has the assurance that the Government will co-operate and participate in the unveiling ceremonies at the time of this Pilgrimage.

Relief Measures

You'd think ones was enough, but When Police Sergeant Charles Mc-Williams of Cleveland went to the home of Mrs Mary Kralick to question her about the gypsies who stole $900 from her while reading her fortune, he found the woman was not at home. She had gone to exchange a dime-tier to "have some tea leaves read," her husband said.

Novel Transportation

A method of transporting wounded persons on stretchers suspended under the wings and fuselage of an aeroplane was successfully tried out at Moscow. Three red cross doctors who volunteered for the experiment were tied to stretchers with rope aluminum covers. One was suspended from each wing and one under the fuselage.

Manuscript

The late Laurence of Arabia left a manuscript recording his life in the Arabian Desert, it was disclosed, with instructions it should not be published before 1960. The manuscript, entitled "The Seven Pillars of Wisdom" or "of Revolt," contained comment on the Royal Air Force which made immediate publication impossible.

It is possible to sell an Ox-tail for four days without seeing it.

Planning National Park

King George's Jubilee

A plan to establish a national park for Scotland in the heart of Argyllshire, one of the country's most picturesque beauty spots, is being promoted. A committee will meet shortly in Edinburgh to discuss the project. The area suggested covers over 50,000 acres in the Loch Lomond district, and the park would be known as the "Silver Jubilee Forest Park" to perpetuate the memory of King George's 25 years' reign.

Well Qualified For Post

New U.S. Minister To Canada Highly Spoken Of

Norman Armour, the new Minister to Canada from the United States, received complimentary send-offs. The New York Herald Tribune, leaning spoken highly of his training and temperament, said: "Mr. Armour has the useful—and for a diplomat, the rare—quality of being a 'good mixer'. Incidentally, warm sympathy for the Canadian people and a keen sense of the importance of Canadian-American relations adde to his other qualifications for this post."

The New York Times, having remarked that the appointment of Mr. Armour is a merited promotion and also a recognition of the importance of the Canadian post, went on to say: "His appointment to Canada 'regularizes' the position and gives fresh assurance to Canada that we are sending a representative of our best to American capitals. Experienced in wilderness, the serpents and scorpions, the lack of water, and how fresh water and manna were given to them that they might realize their dependence upon God.

It is God who Given Power to Acquire Wealth. Deuteronomy 8:18. "The first and fundamental principle of stewardship is the finding of ownership of all things. The God who created the heavens alone knows the priority claim upon all life. There can be no property either without ownership or title; neither would there be value to property without society or use. Society is he who guarantees all life" (Steward-ship Lessons.)

God Loves a Cheerful Giver, II. Corinthians 9:6-8. Generosity in giving will enrich one's own life. Paul wrote the Corinthians. A man who enjoys the privilege of his supply of wheat, being loth to part with it, would have a scanty harvest from the smaller amount sown, and the blanted grain, if kept too long, would spoil. It is from a bountiful sowing that a bountiful harvest is reaped, whether of wheat or of good

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JUNE 16

CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP

Golden text: It is required in stewards that a man be found faithful. I. Corinthians 4:2.

Devotional reading: Psalm 96:1-8.

Explanations And Comments

Pride of Possession May Lead To Forgetfulness of God, Deuteronomy 8:11-7. The children of Israel are about to enter the Promised Land after their long wilderness wandering, and Moses, their leader, fears lest they may there become so prosperous that they will be in danger of forgetting Him and of failing to keep His commandments. Against this temptation he prays (lest their heart be "lifted up") because of fine houses, numerous flocks and herds, and abundance of silver and gold, Moses warns them, and reminds them of what they once possessed, brought them out of bondage in the land of Egypt, and led them through the great and terrible wilderness. He asks them to recall the dangers of the wilderness, the serpents and scorpions, the lack of water, and how fresh water and manna were given them that they might realize their dependence upon God.

½ cup grated carrots

Pare oranges and cut in thin slices. Cut slices in halves. Arrange covered salad plates, arrange a circle of orange slices, being generous with fruit. Sprinkle with grated coconut and grated carrots. Serve cream dressing with mayonnaise, into which ½ as much orange juice has been thoroughly blended.

ALMOND WAFERS

¼ cup butter
Flavoring of vanilla
½ cup confectioners' sugar
Few grains of salt
¼ cup sweet cream
Scant cup bread flour
Grated sweet almonds.

Cream the butter and add the sugar slowly, then the salt. Add the milk as slowly as possible, not more than a drop at a time. Then add the flour and almonds. Spread this in a very thin sheet on the bottom of an inverted roasting pan. Sprinkle over with sugar and bake in a moderate oven until delicately brown. Remove from the pan while warm with a sharp knife and roll them up while warm. They may be filled with whipped cream for serving.

CHLORINE

(By Gordon H. Cossé, M.A.)

Chlorine is a greenish yellow gas which possesses a very disagreeable odor. When breathed it has a very irritating action upon the membranes of the throat and breast, producing coughing, inflammation, and even death. Hence it is quite rightly called a poisonous gas. Chlorine may be easily condensed to a golden yellow liquid, and as such is stored in strong lead-lined cylinders holding about fifteen, forty to sixty pounds. It was the first poison gas used in the World War. The first attack was made by the Germans on April 22, 1915. They connected tanks of liquid chlorine in the presence of their trenches and the substance was used in the form of gas (vapour). As chlorine is about two and a half times as heavy as air, the clouds were carried over the ground by the wind. When there is one part of chlorine to ten thousand parts of air, the struggle for breath becomes acute, and to recall the dangers of the wilderness, the serpents and scorpions, the lack of water, and how fresh water and manna were given them that they might realize their dependence upon God.

Chlorine is also used in preparing certain chlorine compounds such as chloroform and carbon tetrachloride (used in fire extinguishers). It is also used in the preparation of many compounds which are needed in the synthetic dyestuff industry.

Liquid chlorine is used in water purification to some extent. Disinfection for chlorinating water supplies, which is usually carried out, is used in a minimum in many of the great cities of the world. Recently liquid chlorine has been used in recovering gold from its ores, and also in recovering tin from the tailings of scrap tin plate.

One of the most important compounds of chlorine is hydrochloric acid gas. This acid is an important product of the gastric juice of man and of animals, the gastric juice of man containing from 0.2 to 0.4 per cent., while that of dogs contains about 0.4 per cent. The acid plays an important part in digestion.

Dominion Drama Festival

A Royal Charter Has Been Issued To Assure Perpetuation

To assure perpetuation of the Dominion Drama Festival after the death of Lord Bessborough, a royal charter has been issued, it was announced by Hon. C. H. Cahan, secretary of state. The charter corporation will be under the name of "The Governors of the Dominion Drama Festival."

In a statement Mr. Cahan said the charter was being issued as a memorial to His Majesty King George Jubilee. The charter recited the stimulation of interest in and the encouragement of the dramatic art in Canada the purpose of the festival.

The charter gave the new body power to hold real and personal estate and to receive gifts, but it cannot hold more than $25,000 in real estate. Provision was made, the charter stated, for the investment of general and district officers, granting prizes and awards on such conditions as might be prescribed.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gay, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costume for the evening's party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all his fortune, and his family is faced with the necessity of a drastic method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who asks the girl a favor, and what seems to be impossible conditions.

Now Go On With The Story

Thus before they slept that night, the two young people knew that they were to go "out West". The arguments pro and con had waged for a good two hours, Aunt Louise protesting vigorously to the very last that her nephew could not treat Kent with the manners "of a bum."

"And I warn you too, young man," she asserted grimly, "that you won't find life on a ranch the romantic dream you're picturing to yourself at present. As for your sister—"

At this point even Nancy had risen and she ended with a tragic gesture which caused even Nance to smile a little. There was no doubt whatever that Aunt Louise regarded work as a virtue in what she termed "this wild, ridiculous scheme of Jack's"; and even Aunt Judy suggested with some reluctance that if the boy must go, it might be wise for him to go alone.

"All right," he retorted, impatient at what seemed a deadlock, "if Sis is too much of a hot-house flower to stand transplanting—if she can't put up with a few hardships a time like that, I will go alone, though possibly—"

He hesitated, and his father ended for him: "You're thinking that it's Nancy whom Dorothy Columbine really wants to come?"

Jack nodded.

"You've not pay my carfare if I went alone, Dad."

"No if you go, it looks as if I'd have to go, too. I'll be darned if I suppose if I get unbearably fed up with everything I can walk back."

"Two thousand miles on the hoof!" grinned her brother, though perfectly aware that she spoke with sarcasm. "That's where your pioneer blood shows up, my dear! If you had one ounce of it in your veins you'd never think twice about the distance between one town and another. Why, Kansas had always seemed as far away as Mars to Nancy, and fully as unattractive! People lived there, of course, but not people quite like themselves. At least, that was how the girl had thought about it; yet that waitress in the lunch room looked—why she looked every bit as up-to-date as the girls behind the lunch counters at Thompson's or Page 'on Washington Street in Boston.

The comparison brought a wave of homesickness to the unwilling exile. What a few weeks it had been since Jack received those telegrams from Cousin Columbine! Such a hectic time. Judy starting off for Europe with those crazy Spear girls. Hurried trips to Ridgefield and the stables. Packing. Deciding what to take and what to leave behind. Getting rid—as she had supposed—of Jack's problem. Then the sudden crash, with its train of agonizing moments at the South Station with Phil wanting to know how they made the sections into beds and asking blunderbuss questions. Aunt Mother smiling unnaturally to keep from crying Aunt Louise arriving with a huge basket containing a bottle of candy, and Dad, his face so terribly set and stern. . . .

"Cheer up, Nancy!" Nance shouted. Even Jack had lost his enthusiasm for a time and hadn't talked much. He'd stuck to Phil West-Chester. But a meal in the diner had restored his courage, and since then he'd been the jolliest of companions. Nancy remembered suddenly that nice her brother really was. Not once had he compared her to a bothouse flower, and he was quite right, too, even when he caught her whirling away some tears as the train pulled out.

Nancy slept after a while, but not for long. It was Jack who wakened her, and from the upper berth and snapping up the window shade.

"Wake up, sis!" he commanded in an excited whisper. "Look where we are! Why, that's—that must be prairie!"

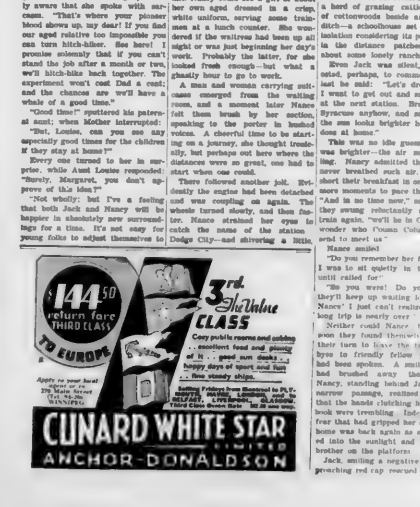
It was!

Nancy sat up, almost as excited as her brother. Prairie! Miles and miles and miles of it, stretching sheer away into a far horizon. Neither of them had dimly realized the vastness of the Middle West, and even to cross—plains which lay dappled by morning sunlight, softly undulating, as far as their astonished eyes could see.

For the first time since starting on this journey, Nancy forgot her home and Dorothy Columbine. She flew a breath born of both amazement and delight. To one whose eath had been bounded by some convention; just a crowded city or surrounded by the sheltering, green hills of New England, this sudden vastness was almost unbelievable. For a time she watched this unfamiliar world slip by, too awed to say anything save exclamations. It all seemed wonderful; a herd of grazing cattle—a clump of cottonwoods beside an irrigating ditch—a windmill here and there. It never dawned if the waitress had been up all night or was just beginning her day's work. Probably the latter, for she looked fresh enough—but what a ghastly hour to go to work.

Then Jack and Nancy carrying suitcases emerged from the waiting room, and a moment later Nance felt them brush by her section, heading for the porter in hushed voices. A cheerful time to be starting on a journey, she thought irritably, but perhaps out here where the distances were so great, one had to start when one could.

There followed another jolt. Evidently the engine had been detached and was coupling on again. The train started suddenly, and then faster. Nance strained her eyes to catch the name of the station Dodge City—and shivering a little



"WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT SASKASAL"

Says Sophie Wiemer

Indigestion Gone, Can Eat Anything

Read this letter: "For several years I had been troubled with indigestion and could eat very few foods, which caused me much pain. A friend of mine suggested that I try Saskasal. I did so, and it has entirely cured me and I can eat anything. I would not be without a bottle of Saskasal in the house. I hope others may benefit as I have done when they know of this wonderful remedy as Saskasal." Saskasal is Nature's own Mineral Salts. In alkalizing the system it liberates over-acidity in the blood and thus makes it a valuable natural remedy in all cases of Rheumatism, Eczema, Liver and Kidney trouble, Indigestion, Biliousness. 75c from a pile of luggage, and moved toward the station. Another jolt station that made Nance think of an English manor-house. To the west, beyond the station, a wooded sky-lowered snow-capped Pike's Peak, seeming so near in the clear atmosphere. Then the girl felt she could reach out and touch it.

"This place certainly looks civilized enough," she observed brusquely as Jack dropped the bags and stood looking about in search of the expected escort.

"Civilized!" Her brother laughed. "What did you think you'd see? Wild Indians? Of course it's civilized, but not the love o' Mike, Nancy, look there!"

Nance looked. An Indian squaw with papoose strapped to her shoulders covered by a gay, striped shawl, a wee black-eyed papoose strapped to her shoulders, in fact, as she appeared around a corner: "That relic of old times must have been reserved for our especial benefit. I didn't think they allowed their kids like that in these days."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

CIRCLES

The stars, the moon,
The golden sun,
This spinning Earth
We ride upon
Are circles.
Circling on their way;
More circles bring
Us night and day.

From birth to death
Our whole life span
Is but a circle,
Caravan.
From young to old
From low to high
We pass in circles
Till we die.

Yet gladly all
In circles move;
A circle means
Eternal love.

The Flu Menace

Disease Not So Dangerous If Isolated As Soon As Diagnosed

If influenza is isolated as soon as diagnosed the death rate now attributed to the disease would drop to one per cent., said its present figure, Dr. J. W. McIntosh of Vancouver said in an address before the Medical Association of the Province of Ontario.

Public Health Association.

"I am perfectly convinced influenza is not a fatal disease," he said. "We had influenza in Vancouver and distributed to the but it had been found in all cases death had actually been caused by pneumonia, which always contracted because of overcrowding in hospitals and because of lowered resistance brought about by the head cold."

Were Voluntary Exiles

Famous Doctors Have Spent Months Alone In Interests Of Science

It is not only in the frozen regions that men have exiled themselves for the sake of science. The famous Dr. Koch spent eighteen months, alone except for the white helper, on a desolate island in the centre of the great African lake, Victoria Nyanza.

He was investigating the dreaded sleeping sickness which was destroying the natives of the islands and shores of the lake, and made the discovery that the fly which spreads the disease lives on the blood of crocodiles, which it sucks between the scales. Destroy the crocodiles, and the carrier perishes, too.

Another man of medicine, Dr. Adrien Verhagen, banished himself to the centre of the vast island of Sumatra to investigate beri-beri, another terrible tropical disease. On the way he was wrecked, and he and one companion who reached the shore in safety tried to make their way to the nearest native village.

They got into a swamp and were attacked by leeches, not the ordinary bloodsuckers, but a far worse kind. Dr. Verhagen lost one eye and came very near to losing his life but after he had recovered from the combined his journey and gained valuable information about a cure for beri-beri.

Largest Music Library

Recognition Given To R.S.C. Collection In World-Wide

A music library that began thirteen years ago in a tiny top floor room in the Strand, London, has now grown to be the largest of its kind in the world. Housed on the steel shelves of the British Broadcasting Corporation, this working library comprises 30,000 musical titles, ranging from a simple ballad for soprano and piano to a symphony in several movements. There are 40,000 vocal scores, covering the entire field from grand opera to musical comedy. The library contains some music not to be obtained elsewhere and thus brings in many valuable productions within reach of the general public. Already ten million British homes rely on the B.B.C. Library for their musical fare, the excellence of which has received world-wide recognition.—The New Outlook.

Pageant Scene Banned

Garden Riots Will Not Be Depicted In London

Depicting the Gordon riots of 1780, one of the 12 historical episodes being staged during the Tower of London Pageant in London, has been banned by the British Home Office. No reason, it is understood, has been given for the ban, but another episode is to be substituted. The object of the pageant is to raise funds for the Tower Hill Improvement Organization, of which the Prince of Wales is patron. Lord George Gordon, headed the mob which, in June, 1780, marched in procession to the House of Parliament to present a monster petition against the Catholic Relief Act. A riot followed and continued for several days, during which the city was virtually at the mercy of the mob.

Little Helps For This Week

"Thou shalt love they neighbor as thyself." Matthew 19:19.

So others shall Take courage, labor to their heart and hand.
From thy hand, and thy heart,
and thy brave cheer.
And God's grace magnify
through thee to all.
The least flower with a brimming cup may stand
And share its dewdrop with another near.

What is meant by our neighbor we cannot doubt, it is everyone with whom we are brought into contact. First of all, he is the one who is thrown across our path by the changes and chances of life, he or she whomsoever it be that we have occasion to help, the unfortunate stranger we may meet in travelling, the friend whom no one else cares to look after.

FAMOUS STALLION ARRIVES IN VERMILION

On Saturday last the imported Irish bred stallion "Teagle Tom" arrived in Vermilion and is now at Mr. Caney's farm, north of the town. The horse is a big bodied, strong boned dark bay or brown of excellent conformation and is of an extremely gentle disposition. He weighs 1700 pounds and is a getter as the owner, Mr. Jenkinson, has over 100 pure bred mares and horses owned by him at the ranch near Medicine Hat.

HIT, RUN DRIVER STRIKES 'POLICEMAN' ON MAIN ST.

An observant citizen was stunned by a heartless act on the main street intersection Wednesday night, when a motorist struck the brand new trail fic policeman and continued unperturbed on on his way — without even stopping to ascertain the extent of the victim's injuries. This was in face of the warning contained in a recent issue of the Standard. Investigation and clues followed up lead to the belief that the driver of the car was no less a personage than the Town Secretary Treasurer. Tsk! tsk!

New York Doctor Has Treatment For Nonsensical Sneezing

With the hay fever "season" drawing near, Dr. William H. Dieffenbach, of New York, revealed what he believes is an effective treatment for that ailment, and also for common colds, abscessed teeth and certain types of sneezing.

The treatment, he said, is by ultrashort radio waves, and is administered by a small recondensed apparatus not unlike a short wave radio set.

Dr. Dieffenbach, speaking before the convention of the American Institute of Homeopathy, explained the machine was developed after a study of the reactions of various organisms working in close quarters on shape and subjected to short waves, did not have room.

The patient is placed on a table the physician explained, with his head between two electrodes which do not touch him. The cold treatments last from 10 to 15 minutes and are given daily for five or six days

Our Beautiful Snow And Blue Geese

By JACK MINER
Canadian Naturalist

Readers please pardon a few words of my wild geese history. The nearest facts are that I was from 1904 to 1906 putting the first 11 Canada Geese to alight at Kingsville, and by 1912 the flock had grown to be known all over the continent. That spring one blue goose came with the honkers and to tell the whole truth I had not been fair enough from the start to know what I was about or caused her dusky white head. In 1915 we started banding the Canada Geese and soon got in touch with the Fishing and Missionaries of the far far north. We found that the Eskimo called these Blue and Lesser snow Geese, Wavies. Wall grader ally more and more wavies came until it I found myself wasting water and using away into wavy anticipation as wavies were sent all Point Pelee Rondeau, St. Clair Flats, Cedar Creek, and Anderson Marsh. In fact we came to know what I was doing around our sanctuary and I got the snow and blue goose fever so badly that I wrote Mr. Paul Reddington who was then Warden of the United States Biological Survey, at Washington, D.C., asking permission to go to the Arctic Ocean to study the blue goose in avian. He replied at once stating he would allow me all privileges providing I would put the United States Biological Survey Bands on them. To this I made no reply, but about two weeks after I received another letter offering me the privilege to put my band on one leg and the United States Survey Band on the other. Readers please pardon me for these personalities, but if Mr. Reddington had written me in the first letter that I would have banded five thousand of those wavies in less than three years. I did not think I could be trusted with all the schools in America But by this time I knew what I was about and I had changed my plans and I planned a refuge forest banded four thousands wide around a ten acre back field then I built a small pond in the centre of the field and named the ten acres the wavy field and I placed live wing-tipped wavies in that enclosure, and last spring, 1934, we caught 34 baby wavies, seven adult wavies and one snow, and according to a report I saw in the Toronto Globe there was a blue goose seen near London. This is fully one hundred miles east of my sanctuary and has gradually drawing the wavies from the Gulf. Now in this report stated the goose had orange color on its head Now that color is merely a green color at all, it is an orange stain gathered from feeding in the Gulf Bags and not taile where they nose about for the tender roots below [illegible] all about May 10th. Observer being wide circled high and low the southern air line special for point Pelee put unknown to me, and nothing worthy of mention would allow me to report. And two A M October 20th when I was awakened by the startling cry of goose honks, and when daylight came we found that fifty-three honkers had arrived. Not all white geese of course We named this goose Lucy and Lucy Goose Bags, as she had banded Monday, October 29th was a beautiful cool morning and the bright blue sky was dotted here and there with white fleecy clouds. The sun shining through in different places gave the heavens a glorious [illegible] I feel sure that I heard whispering effect I was, of course, out cleaning up all around, when my north eye picked up as thrilling a sight as I have ever witnessed. There were about fifty honkers with their honks and whistles right off the ice, down out of the Heavens They were not moving a feather, but remained in that V formation and settled down just sat down on the air with their wings bowed downward in a half circle, as perfect and as uniform as so many new moons with their faces down. Following them was not a honk, but a small swarm of wavies— yes, there were over five hundred of them. Some of the V-shaped lines would be most all snows, while the others would be blues Some lines were mixed about fifty-fifty. The adult snows being pure snow white. The adult blues have a pure white head and slate colored breast. The young blues very from light to dark slate color, and some are quite smoky white to dark slate—seldom two alike. These honor snows and blue geese are one and the same birds in habits and size. They differ in color and markings only. They will cross as readily as Wyandotte chickens, and I am sure they cross in the wild state, for I have a high-bred wild one here right now. So it is plain to be seen there would be at least six different colors in that beautiful flock of wavies. Yes, the Eskimos have it right. They are wavies and how they did wave in the sunlight and shadow as they passed over this sanctuary, and will you believe it, this swarm of wavies followed my kaadlo flock, then Blue on another six-other until five flocks passed over, and in all there would be at least fifteen hundred. They passed over Kingsville on Monday, October 29th

I believe they were headed right for the London area, but they had been only fifteen my twenty in that first flock. My picked-up bird knowledge causes me to believe they would have landed here with the fifty honkers that they were following. I believe they likely had rested somewhere between James Bay and here as the majority were young birds, and they were still flying high and strong. In closing I just will say I must use thrills I am getting out of having been a small part in the gradually influencing these beautiful wavies to come here, and that I have been able to catch and band seven in my little bird-trap enclosure, home and bird sanctuary, brings me more heart pleasure and thrills [illegible] than self-centered [illegible] appreciative of the possibilities of the wild life in my home than if I had gone into Louisiana and bandaged a thousand. Therefore I conscientiously say I am thankfully glad I did not receive that last letter of

No Leather Shortage

Situation Here Not Parallel With United States

Canadian consumers and boot and shoe manufacturers have no need for concern if a shortage of heavy sole leather due to drought and increased slaughtering of heavy cattle in the United States develops in the republic, Dominion government officials said today.

"The feared United States situation is not paralleled in Canada and the slaughter of heavy cattle in the Dominion is almost negligible, as the tendency is to market our cattle slightly heavier, officials said. Approximately 95 per cent. of boots and shoes worn by Canadians are manufactured in this country, it was estimated. Of these imported the great bulk was from the United Kingdom.

CHRISTIAN MISSIONS

Golden text: Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation. Mark 16:15.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 67.

Explanations And Comments

Power for Witnessing, Acts 1:6-8. In their last interview with the Risen Lord, His apostles asked him when he would restore the kingdom to Israel. Their question shows how well-nigh impossible it still was for them to rid themselves of the conventional expectations of the Jews that the Christ would rule over Jewish nation independent of Rome and herself dominant, politically and religiously, over the other nations of the earth. "It needed the Pentecostal outpouring of the Holy Spirit to teach the apostles that Christ's Kingdom is not of this world."

In his answer, "It is not for you to know times or seasons which the Father has set within his own authority," Jesus does not stop to teach his followers that knowledge of the future is not a good thing, but that they had a wrong view of his kingdom, that it had nothing to do with their selfish ambition to Rome; instead, he warns them about speculations of the end times and seasons. And then he promises them power through the coming of the Holy Spirit, and bids them be his witnesses in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth. "They were all thinking of Kingdoms," but the kingdom of the disciples was a spiritual kingdom alone, while the Kingdom of Christ was the whole universe and purpose of God."

The Acts records the story of how the apostles carried out this commission. The witnessing "unto the uttermost earth" is represented by Rome, the capital of the world, and that is where, as Irenaeus said, "All met from every quarter."

Wherever and wherever men and women are unitedly spiritual, prayerful-serving, carefully taught in the Christian truth, and waiting upon the Spirit of God for guidance in a matter of profound importance to His work, there God's will is made plain and the mighty Christian enterprise to have its auspicious beginning or to advance its success.

The Usual Place

Possibly you, too, have wondered where King George puts his hat when he is in church. When His Majesty attended Thanksgiving service in St. Paul's Cathedral in London, he was wearing the special plumed hat that is worn only on state occasions. During the service, the hat was simply put on the floor at his King's chair, but on many other occasions he usually puts his hat when he goes to church.

Recorded Television

Novel Scientific Wonder, "Grammavision", Demonstrated Before Press Representatives

A new scientific wonder, which promises to be one of the great home entertainments of the future, was demonstrated in public for the first time when the inventor, F. Fiver, demonstrated "grammovision", or "recorded television," before press representatives in London.

He put a record on a gramophone turntable and pictures appeared on the screen of a television receiver.

Suitable records can be made for the television sets that will receive the high-definition programmes to be sent out by the B.B.C. in the near future.

"I have been working for about 10 years on television and for two years on this idea," Mr. Fiver said. "Shortly I shall demonstrate a record containing both vision and sound. The addition of sound is a fairly simple matter."

Light Ray Is Accurate

Determines Whether Pearl Is Real Or Imitation

A tiny beam of light thrown into a pearl has definitely solved the problem of telling natural from cultured pearls, Gordon Fox, Brock, Los Angeles jeweller, revealed.

The endoscope, one of the many scientific tools which have taken much of the uncertainty out of the buying of gems," Brock said, "throws a beam of light into the pearl through a needle. If the pearl is true the light follows the concentric layers of its core and is reflected into the eyes of the observer.

"If the pearl is of the cultured variety the light beam reveals the imperfections in the core and the layers of pearl."

Unexpected Good Luck

Ontario Man Wins Large Sum From Sweepstake Ticket

A half share in an Irish Free State sweepstake ticket, given to him when he visited Dublin in January by Gordon Fox, elderly Kingsville, Ont., resident, $24,500.

Mr. Fox was co-owner with William Plater, commercial traveller, of Kingsville and Toronto, of a ticket on Field Trial, which finished third in the Derby at Epsom Downs. The ticket was worth $49,000.

While refusing to comment on his unexpected good luck, Mr. Fox understood Mr. Fox has never bought a sweepstake ticket in his life. His friends say vainly tried to induce him to purchase a share in the ticket and when unsuccessful had penned both names to it.

Law Is Amended

Rights Of Husbands Over Property In England Is Wiped Out

Long-standing principles of England's law were amended after a three second reading in the House of Lords. Entitled the Law Reform bill, it is designed to "remove handicaps from anomalous legal burdens incurred upon marriage. It practically wipes out the rights of a husband over his wife's property and at the same time removes his liabilities for civil wrongs or breaches of contract committed by her.

Under ancient English law, a man upon marriage took all his wife's property and assumed legal liability for her

"But she had on silk stockings, Jack, and high-heeled slippers! They looked a scream against the rest of her. Well, that'll be something to write home about. I wonder if we ought to go inside. Do you know, I—I feel sort of nervous. I wish whoever's coming for us would come and get it over with."

"Let's stay right here, this air's so marvellous. Do you suppose they often get such days in winter? Watch out, sis!" Jack lowered his voice. "Catch onto the old dame in the fireman's shirt."

Nancy smiled, eyes following her brothers. A white-haired woman had just emerged from the station. She wore a brick-brimmed black felt hat much like a man's, while her long black cape being unfastened, revealed a mighty figure of flaming red. Her feet were clad in stout, black, laced boots, above which an inch or two of cotton stocking met a dark cloth skirt. An eccentric figure, taken as a whole. "And yet," Nancy reflected, "she's dressed more suitably than I am for the climate. I've never seen a woman carry her own baggage before, she has an air about her. See what I mean, Jack?"

"Yeah," he admitted, "but I bet she's a crank of some sort, just the same. You know, what they call a —a character. You'd think—"

Jack stopped short as the woman had turned and was approaching rapidly. "I'm looking for two young people by the name of Nelson," she said crisply. "Have I found them?"

The question was as unique as the woman; but in that moment her somewhat mannish countenance was lighted by a contagious smile. Jack actually grinned, while Nance responded quickly: "It looks as if you had! Did Cousin Columbine send you to meet us?"

A quick nod answered her.

"I dare say you're hungry as two bears, and so am I. Come in and eat. Those Dutch trains always arrive at meal times."

Still talking, she led them toward the station restaurant and motioned to seat at the counter.

"No use in paying a dollar for a dinner when you can get a hot roast beef sandwich for fifty cents, and you like roast beef? In my opinion there's nothing better. Do you want coffee? They don't boil the pot, so pie but I've drunk it every day for more than fifty years and am still able to get about." She smiled at the waitress, and on giving the young people a chance to [illegible] ordered: "Roast beef sandwiches, coffee, lemon meringue pie for three, please; and take your time."

Struck dumb by this breezy individual, Jack stifled a smile and gave his sister a disconcerting nudge. Their escort had flung her cape on a nearby hook, and was a noticeable figure in her short skirt and voluminous middy. People looked at her, mildly amused; but there was nobility in her unpretentious countenance, and her smile was winning.

Lunch was quickly served, and there being no privacy at the counter, was consumed in silence save for a few questions regarding their journey. As the train pulled away from the station, both boy and girl turned to watch it, feeling a subtle, regretful twinge, as if some good friend were deserting them; and as Nance resumed her meal their companion asked: "Sorry to see the train depart without you?"

"I suppose so," replied the girl, and added at this unexpected insight of her mood: "You see, it makes me feel as if the last bridge behind us was burning. Everything's so different from Massachusetts; and not knowing Cousin Columbine at all, is silly enough to be a little nervous."

The woman smiled one of her nice ones.

"You needn't be. I don't think you'll find Columbine Nelson hard to live with."

"Have you known her long?" asked Jack, who was trying to get his bearings in the extraordinary country.

"Ever since I came to Canada, in 1914, just before the great war started over in Europe. I remember the date because it was christening day for tub when the news came, and Aurora (her sister married a German, Otto Weismuller and is Cripple Creek and as good a fellow as ever lived), came rushing upstairs with the paper. She actually rushed in the room, and shouted: "Miss Columbine! Miss Columbine! Don't bother to wash. The Germans have started fighting! You just suppose our Otto will have to go?" Aurora's apt to get flustered in an emergency, but I never saw her so worked up.

This brought a laugh; and Mark said dryly: "I didn't know we'd ever have to remind Cousin Columbine to bathe. Two bad they don't have a bathing machine! It's a long walk to the creek."

"It wasn't, betorted the old lady. "I called back: 'Keep still, Aurora. This is the first tub bath I've had since I came in and meet the—er lady That's it" (as Jack produced the machine). "You'll find the car just on the left of the station. I'll be there as soon as I help Matt with the baggage"

"Mark's a good boy," observed their new acquaintance as the driver strode away. "He and his brother came down to the creamery to-day (they run a dairy ranch), so I roped them in to drive us and get your baggage. There isn't a better driver in Pine Ridge than Mark Adam. Nancy, so you've no call to feel nervous going up the pass. How old are you? They had let the station and were crossing a broad parking space "You're to ride with Mark, Jack. You boys must get acquainted, and I want a chance to get acquainted with your sister."

Jack grinned as he helped them to the car. He longed to ask if their antiquated cousin had given these instructions in order to keep Nance and "that good-looker" at arm's length as possible. Knowing that something of this sort was in his mind Nancy threw him a warning glance, and said, as she sat down beside the eccentric lady whom she was beginning to like immensely: "It's queer, but I feel acquainted with you already; and do you realize we don't even know your name?"

The lined face brightened humorously.

"The truth is, I never tell my name if I can avoid it. That's the only grudge I've got against my parents. I've always wondered if their brains weren't affected by the attitudes when they inflicted such a misnomer on a helpless infant. My name, you nice young things, is Columbine Nelson!"

BABY'S OWN SOAP

Enjoyed by the gamest little fighters.

Nance couldn't restrain a giggle, and Jack laughed outright; but Cousin Columbine remarked severely: "If you expect me, or anybody in Pine Ridge to contradict you, young man, you'll be disappointed. In my day it wasn't considered modest to fish for compliments. The green light's on, boy. Why don't you get going?"

"You crushed to move," he told her, and proceeded to start the engine as quietly as its age allowed "This park reminds me of a side street, Miss Columbine. There's no space in front of the Cash and Carry; but I'm over and get your box. It's only half a block."

Eager to stretch his legs, Jack offered assistance; and as the boys strode off the old lady remarked critically "Jack's thin, isn't he? Grown too fast, most likely, and been cooped up in school. A year in the open will do wonders for him."

Nance thought, with sudden compassion: "A year for the girl as well, poor ut to stay that long!" but managed to answer: "That's why Mother let him come. The doctor said he needed outdoor life more than a diploma"

GREAT JOYS

Laughter is for little joys,
Childhood a thoughtless mirth,
But the great joys, bitter-sweet
Of this whirling Earth.
Words are for the lesser that last
But an hour or so.
Pitting on so lightly we
Can not express our joy.

But the great joys; Silence comes
Hand in hand with them;
Speechless we stand, awed
By the mystery of it all.
Only on a sudden, light
Dazzling to the eyes,
Only, for an instant, wings
Soaring through the skies!

Keep Record Of Graduates

Careers Of Alberta's Commercial Students Followed Up

Business men of Alberta, who seek university graduates for their office or field staffs, will be aided by the University of Alberta. Under the direction of Dr. W. C. Wallace, president, leading firms will be given information about the qualifications of graduates seeking a commercial course in life.

Investigation into careers of the university's school of commerce graduates resulted in reports on 97 of the 177 men and women graduated from the institution since it started in 1923. They are employed in Alberta, Toronto, Vancouver, the United States and one in Honolulu

Some have taken up teaching; others are engaged in secretarial work; in the Canadian trade commission offices and in general commercial fields. One graduate took up farming.

The survey showed that only seven of the 177 graduates had married since leaving the commercial school

Rewarded With Fortune

Lonely Bachelor Leaves Little Nurse Head And Money

Because she looked after an old bachelor when he was dying, the 15-year-old daughter of a Boston, Lincoln Beach, B.C., has now a fortunes of over $20,000.

For five months Benjamin Mohler had been sick. Every day the girl would go from her home, close by, to the small house of the bachelor and look after his needs

A short time before Mr. Death the bachelor told his little nurse that she would leave her his house and 40 acres of land on which it stood. He never told her of the fortune that was in store. In fact, no one in the district thought that he had any money

When the old man died and was buried, the will was read. His whole estate which included the house and grounds and $20,000, was left to his little nurse, who is the oldest of five children.

Tells How He Carried On

A barber who had been "a martyr to rheumatism" writes—

"I have been a martyr to rheumatism from some time years. For five years I was so affected that it was with the greatest difficulty I was able to carry on my business. I may say I am a barber by trade. After having tried numerous remedies I was finally advised to try Kruschen. I am pleased to say that after having used Kruschen for some twelve months I am now free from aches and pains than I have been for the last few years. In fact I consider I am rid of rheumatism, thanks to Kruschen Salts."—W. M

The depressed price of farm products is a problem with which everyone is familiar. The above graph shows that producers' prices have never been so low as at present. Between 1913 and 1920 gasoline did not rise in price so nearly the same extent as farm products, yet since 1920 its price has almost continuously declined. The data for the above graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

A DYING WAGE

WHEN we entered business in 1880 our first rule was to pay a fair living wage.

In 1919 we decided a living wage was not enough. We should pay a dying wage, too. We knew how hard it is for the worker to make provision for his old age and for his dependents in the event of his death.

So we introduced benefits and pensions plans. Sickness benefits—the inexperienced employee to consume drawing pay according to his term of service; pensions—a fair living allowance for the worker who reaches old age; death benefits—a cheque immediately for the deceased worker's family. These things lifted a burden of care from our employees' shoulders—made them happier, more enterprising and more efficient. They lifted a burden from the shoulders of the Canadian taxpayer, too.

We are proud of these plans which have helped so much to build up a loyal organization of thousands of Canadian workers. Their devotion to their work has made it possible for us to serve Canada with quality products at lower and lower prices.

Four Special Sessions At School Of Agriculture

MUCH SUMMER ACTIVITY

Alumni Meeting July 19 & 20

The School of Agriculture is looking forward to holding four special sessions during July and August. The first will be the Alumni meeting and will be held on July 19th and 20th. With the breaks that have occurred from time to time at the School it has been very difficult to hold the ex-students of the various years in a working Alumni Association. The meeting on July 19th is being very widely advertised and every effort is being made to have ex-students return to the school from the time the school was first opened. Eight hundred issue of the School Radio have been distributed as widely as possible and students by the dozens are writing in suggesting that they are planning on coming to the Reunion. Many of them are mailing up bonds and coming in bunches. Some of the Peace River students are even planning on coming in this way.

An Alumni can be of great value to an institution because it is largely through their efforts that students are recruited from year to year. In addition to this the institution ought to be of great value and assistance to ex-students in the distribution of the varieties of seed and as well by distributing shrubs, flowers, fruit stock, etc., so that a very great effort is being made to have every student possible visit the school for July 19th and 20th.

School Fair Winners Short Course

The second course will be that of the winners of the various school fairs that were held in the northern part of the province last summer. The girl and boy from each school fair, standing highest, receives a free trip to the School of Agriculture and a week at the school with instructions in agriculture or household science. These young people come from a very wide territory, stretching from Peerless in the south-east and clear up to Peace River. A very interesting course is being offered them during the week. It is a course that is never forgotten and it offers opportunities to many that will never have them again.

Boys' & Girls' Camps

The third course is that of the Camps for boys and girls which is held in connection with the local Agricultural Society. Many camps have been held in the past where groups of boys gathered at the various agricultural fairs for instruction and recreation, but we believe this is the first time that a camp has been open for girls. The popularity of the school dormitory as a residence for both boys and girls makes this feature possible at Vermilion and it will be a rather unique feature to put on the first Agricultural Camp for girls—possibly the first ever held in Canada.

Mr. S. C. Heckbert, secretary of the Agricultural Society, is expecting 200 students for this camp and already registrations are coming in fast for the week. The plan is to hold the camp at the School of Agriculture and have classes in Agriculture and Household Science on the 29th, 30th and 31st of July. These classes may extend to the first half of August 1st. After that the group becomes the guest of the Vermilion Agricultural Society at the Vermilion Fair for the last day and half of the course.

Such a course was attempted last year and 82 boys registered. It is pretty certain that most of these boys will return again for this year as well as from the interest taken Mr. Heckbert estimates that there will easily be a registration of 200.

The charge for the course is very reasonable indeed and, in fact, does not more than pay for the actual accommodation and meals in the school dormitory.

Farm Women's Week
August 6 to 9

The fourth course will be Farm Women's Week and will extend from August 6th to 9th. This course was suggested in 1929 by some of the wives of agricultural organizations and is designed primarily as a week or so on farm women. All know the common social and recreational needs of the farm for the women and this week is designed to meet that situation.

A full program for four days is at present in the school but those who [illegible] may raise an additional day to [illegible] the full course for two months. [illegible] Vermilion school [illegible] on Tuesday, August 6th and close on Friday, August 9th but delegates may have accommodation at the present rates commencing the evening previous and until the morning following the four-day course. Also find it more convenient for their [illegible] departure.

The school desires to be of as much value to the lady visitors as possible and [illegible] will be provided [illegible] Board and room will be provided [illegible] $15 per day. It will be necessary for being towels, soap and toilet articles. A notebook and pencil will be found useful.

Arrangements are made [illegible] at two babies or small children attend [illegible] to newcomers to bring [illegible] made for children under five. [illegible] children from five to ten [illegible] will be $2 per day. [illegible] $1.50. It is hoped that it will not be necessary to bring children over five.

The course is open to any woman in Alberta up to the limit of accommodation—150 at each school. It is not necessary to come for the whole week. Those who wish to come in for a day will be made welcome.

A communication from the secretary of the Mayerthorpe hospital committee was received regarding the formation of a new hospital district in that area and with which they hoped to link up Townships 53 and 54, Range 7, and the Village of Dawson, which were at present within the bounds of the Vermilion Hospital District. In dealing with this matter, the Board felt that the decision should be made by a vote taken in the areas affected by the change. If the result of the vote in either or both areas favored withdrawal from this district, then the Hospital Board although reserving same, would offer no opposition to such area or areas being detached in this connection the following resolution was passed: That the Vermilion Municipal Hospital Board will not object to the detachment of Townships 53 and 54, Range 7, and the Village of Dawson, provided a separate vote is taken in those areas.

The Superintendent reported for the month of May: Hospital Days, 791; Patients admitted 54, Patients discharged 58, Births 8, Deaths 1, Major Operations 9, Minor Operations 8.

WILDMERE WISPS

Two trucks and a car took 44 people to the Buffalo Park last Wednesday from the Basswood, Wildmere and Tolande districts and how everyone enjoyed themselves, especially the kiddies who had never before seen any of the park animals. At noon tables were laid so that the entire party sat down to eat together. After the meal the park superintendent Mr. Dawson who had come out to the picnic ground gave a very interesting account on how the park was formed, how the first buffalo were bought, how many had been raised how they rate them to ship and many other interesting facts. He also spoke about the deer, Elk antelope and yak. He told him this is too low an altitude for the yak and consequently they do not thrive. Everyone surely enjoyed his talk very much. Mr Dawson then placed his car at the disposal of anyone wishing to see the animals, a car and truck load accompanied him and he explained the habits of the animals visited including the rattler. Those who did not go played a game of softball after which Miss Gibson Basswood treated the sportsmen and the public had an ice for the children and gave small prizes to the winners. Some went in swimming but the water was not very warm. Leach was served when ice freezers of ice cream and a mountain of cake and cookies were done away with. Everyone voted that it had been a day to be remembered and left for home safely at 7 with the day.

Wednesday evening was the Young People's league meeting at Wildmere. A large crowd attended some sleighed off on their way home from the Park. A sociable softball game was in progress when a fly ball to third caused Bill Gee and Mr. Lawson to accidentally collide in mid air in a violent smash. Bill got the hardest jolt and was unconscious for over an hour, his lip was badly cut. As his memory was not coming back very fast Edie Madill rushed him to town and the hospital where he required five stitches in his lip and a rest to recover from shock. He returned home Saturday but is not feeling extra well yet, which is not to be wondered at by anyone witnessing the accident. Neither man saw the other and it all happened too quickly for anyone to warn them. This mishap put a damper on the rest of the evening's program as no one could concentrate on Mr Lawson's speech as they would have liked to

Parishioners Honor Father O'Sullivan

On Eve of Departure for Holiday In the East

On Tuesday evening, June 11th, the people of Holy Name parish gathered at the Brimacombe hall to honor their pastor on the eve of his departure on a holiday to the east. A short program of music and song was followed by cards (whist and bridge) and after the luncheon served by the ladies, the following address was read to Father O'Sullivan by Mr. J. E. McBride on behalf of his parishioners:

Reverend and Dear Father:

This party has been arranged by the Catholic people of your Parish on the eve of your departure for a well-earned holiday, to express their appreciation of your zeal and unremitting labour for their spiritual welfare.

We realize what it means for a Catholic priest to leave his home and parents and all that is held so dear to him and come to a strange land to serve under many difficulties the people entrusted to his care by Almighty God.

During the past ten years you have offered the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass daily in our midst. You have baptized numerous children and have consoled and prepared many of our people in their last hours on this earth, and have been on all occasions a great source of help and comfort in all that has had to do with our spiritual welfare.

We thank Almighty God for the many blessings which only a Catholic priest can bring to us and we humbly pray to Him that you, Father, may long be spared in health and vigour to remain among us and carry on with still greater success the many duties of your sublime vocation.

We wish to take this opportunity of humbly offering to you our loyalty, deep respect and obedience in all that you may demand of us. As a slight token of our sincere appreciation and esteem we ask you to accept this present and wish you a most pleasant holiday, free from care and irrosible and especially, since you are going to Chicago, American as we are.

Father O'Sullivan thanked the people for their kindness and thoughtfulness and assured them of his deep appreciation of this token of their loyalty and esteem.

The jolly evening closed with popular songs in which everyone joined.

Here and There

Two or three times as much rainfall this year between April 1 and May 8 on the Prairies as compared with the same period last year makes the outlook for the 1935 harvest similar to that at the same time of year in 1932 when the largest crop since 1928 was recorded, states T. E. Acheson, general agricultural agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the West.

Leonard J. Pohlman, travelling passenger agent, Canadian Pacific Railway, with headquarters at New York, was recently elected vice-president of the American Association of Travelling Passenger Agents of New York. Mr. Pohlman has been a member of the association's executive committee for the past year.

Hotel Saskatchewan, Regina, distinguished itself recently by staging a Chinese Mandarin dinner dance, said to be the first of its kind on the continent. An stage decoration there was used a hundred-foot runner and side drapes, hand-made by Chinese many decades ago, and labored while in use at a valuation of $5,000. The orchestra was in Chinese dress and provided music with a decidedly Eastern background.

T. J. Jackson, who has just been appointed first assistant manager of the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, in succession to Cyril Chateau Frontenac in 1924, and has had rapid advancement to his present high position.

To Charles Montgomery, one-time switch-tender and at present elevator operator at the Canadian Pacific uptown office building in Winnipeg, go all honors for having constructed what is probably the most perfectly finished model of a locomotive on the continent. It is a five-foot replica of [illegible] class "2300", [illegible] brass, and copper, and took five years to construct.

Out of active service for some years past, Canadian Pacific Boar Merlin has been sold to Italian shipbreakers. She was built in Glasgow in 1916.

"Never betray a trust; be honest; do what other men can do; and work your eight hours a day," is the recipe for success enunciated by Caleb R. Smith, international chairman of the Million-Dollar Round Table, speaking to the Life Underwriters in convention at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, recently.

James G. Millar, Medicine Hat, veteran Canadian Pacific engineer, recently celebrated his 82nd birthday, when railway acquaintances and relatives gathered to congratulate him. He was born in Drummondville, Que., and has been driving a railroad engine for more than 64 years.

A couple of score of fine old railroaders who five decades ago helped push the steel around the north shore of Lake Superior for the Canadian Pacific Railway, gathered near Jacobsh, Ont., recently, to re-enact the driving of the last spike at Nesbo on May 16, 1886. Alex. Anderson, Port Arthur, who held the spike when it was driven fifty years ago, drove home a new gilded spike with a vigor that belied his 81 years.

NEW HOMESTEAD AREA

Arrangements have been completed by the Government for the throwing open for homestead entry at an early date of a tract comprising four townships in the Grouard district, according to Hon. Hugh W. Allen, minister of Lands and Mines. The date on which homesteads can be filed has not been set, but it is expected it will be in the near future. This area, pointed out the Minister was cleared and set aside as a likely settlement area for those families moving from the dried out areas of the south. However, the area did not attract many and so the land is considered good for settlement it will be thrown open to the register way. The Minister said that all arrangements in connection with the immigrants is to be available

ISLAND HILL

The Alberta elections will soon be upon us and the Social Credit plan as submitted by Mr. Aberhart should receive the serious consideration of all voters. Among the good things that will be given by Mr. Aberhart are distribution of purchasing power by means of basic dividends, establishment of a just price on all goods and services and the regulation of the price spread. No. 1 would at once remove the demoralizing effect of unemployment by issuance of monthly dividends based on the cultural heritage of citizenship. Issuance of basic dividends would retain young people long or in schools of training and thus prevent them from entering the labor market. Increase of dividends for people who have reached the age of 55 to remove older men from productive employment. These items are only part of the Social Credit plan. Are they not worth voting for?

Merl Medd is awarded Miss Hope Campbell Lake school principal, for her thoughtfulness in giving her pupils a day's outing by bringing them, per car, to the Chadsmald sports.

Isabella Hawkes, youngest daughter of Bill Hawkes, Campbell Lake, received on Saturday a nasty kick on the forehead by a rearing horse. She was conveyed to hospital, where after medical attention was able to return home.

Her many friends will regret to learn of the serious illness of Miss Mary Atkinson. She is under medical care at Vermilion hospital and the hope is expressed that her recovery will be rapid and complete.

Social Credit meeting will take place here on Monday, July 1st. A special speaker will attend.

A birthday party was held Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. L. Playne in honor of their six children, Betty (Mrs. George Richardson) and Fred. A large party of friends were invited and all had a delightful time.

Until the election is over and Mr. Aberhart and his gallant band are installed in Edmonton we must perforce discontinue this column, as we will be busy in another direction for, good-bye, dear readers, until we meet again.

FIRST HEALTH INSURANCE AREA

Dr. A. C. McGuaan, Provincial Medical Officer of Health, will be appointed to administer the first test area to be set up under the health insurance bill enacted at the last session of the legislature, Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Health stated. This test area probably will be set up at Camrose, which district has applied for the scheme, declared the minister.

ISLAY NEWS

TURKEY HILL TID-BITS

Once more we send in our Tid-Bits to be printed. After the glorious weather typical of Sunny Alberta, we feel that everyone is thinking "Happy Days Are Here Again." With the lovely sunshine followed by refreshing rains we know that our crops will be looking well in the near future. We're contemplating of our worst enemy, which are playing havoc in our gardens, taking heavy toll of the plants we're so carefully reared.

Softball tournaments are the rage again. The young people are practising once or twice weekly and a fairly large attendance is noted. On June 7 the Sports Club sponsored a picnic for the Woodvale Warriors. We're sorry the weather spoiled the event because a good time had been planned for, but even then we are sure those who did attend had a good time. June 8th is the meet of the Gobblers down at Woodvale. The games were played, Wood ville taking the first 15-13 and Turkey Hill winning the second 10-6. After these games Mr. R. de Breville was host to his Turkey Hill guests. We appreciate your kindness, Roger, and the supper was delicious.

On Friday, June 7, the Club held another big dance in the school. Please note this was not Charlie's birthday dance as seems the general impression. A very large crowd attended, representatives coming from all surrounding districts. During the supper interval two splendid solos were rendered by Miss Muriel Curry and Mr. Norman Hobbis; both received encores. A lovely dust was also given by those two dancers. The hours passed all too quickly to the tunes of McCaffery orchestra.

Woodvale, we're hooked in vain for Neighborhood Narratives. Needless to say they are missed.

Mrs. Hawley reports a flourishing apple tree. The bloom is prolific and a night worth seeing.

When asked regarding a life insurance policy a resident on board is to remark that she had only one small turkey to buy one with. Half an hour later this lonely bird received a fatal accident. What luck, Nora!

At a recent Club meeting, Turkey Hill picnic was arranged for Wednesday, July 10. Please keep this date open and we'll do our best to give you an enjoyable time!

Barbara Young was the clever young student of this school who obtained the highest marks in the School Fair last year. This entitles her to a week's free course at the School of Agriculture. We're proud of you, Barbara!

When these Tid-Bits appear the "editoress" will be in Winnipeg spending a holiday with friends there. She bids good-bye to Vermilion and friends for some time.

Junior farmer camps at the horse exhibitions will be a feature this summer, made possible by the new federal grant in aid of this work. Alberta expects to have seven of these camps in operation, at the two large exhibitions at Calgary and Edmonton, also at Red Deer, Lethbridge, Camrose, Vegreville and Vermilion.

The camps will be under direction of officials of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, and a large number of farm boys and girls are expected to participate.

Tourist Enquiries Heavy

Hundreds of enquiries from prospective tourists are now being handled at the provincial publicity office, a new all-time record being established in this connection. The huge increase comes largely as a result of the organized effort put forth in the past two seasons, chiefly through the new Canadian Travel Bureau at Ottawa.

SALVATION ARMY NOTES

A nice service was held in the Army hall on Sunday evening. There were a few vacant seats that we hope will be filled next Sunday. This will be Father's Day and there will be special blessings for "Father" on that day. There were a lot of testimonies given and a number of fine choruses as well as Mrs. L. Fry sang a beautiful hymn accompanied by Mrs Waggie on her lovely violin.

Sunday will be the Captain's last evening service here as she is being removed by Headquarters to another division. Those who haven't been able to attend every Sunday should try and fill the hall on this occasion to show the Captain your appreciation of what she has done among us. It will cheer her up and help her along on her new mission.

Vacation Days

That happy period in childhood the mid-summer school holidays, is near at hand. With shouts of joy, laughter, and on running feet the boys and girls of Canada will announce to all the world "School's out," and they will toss their books aside to be forgotten for a couple of months.

In these later days much is heard of shorter working hours, more leisure for the workers of the world, and all kinds of proposals are advanced as to how those leisure hours may be spent in order that they may prove a blessing rather than a drawback in the development of a better type of citizens in order that they may add to the pleasure and true enjoyment of life's more than tend towards pure idleness and even shiftlessness.

Now with two months of absence from school for their children, what are Canadian parents planning for these energetic boys and girls, to keep them out of mischief and to make this vacation time freed from study wholly beneficial and an asset which will prove of value in better health, clearer minds, and a more wholesome outlook on life—in a word, prepare these citizens of the future to return to the school rooms some weeks hence keen for another period of study and preparation for life?

Older boys and girls are already home from college annual church conferences and assemblies have been held, nursery graduation from hospitals are completed, examinations of all kinds are nearing an end teachers, too will be free of their duties, spring work on the farm is past, and in town and city the quiet time in business is at hand. Thus the older generation is able to devote more time and more thought to making these happy days of th school a real joy and blessing not only to the children but to themselves

And so the question arises, and ought to be faced what can we do individually and collectively to make the summer vacation of 1935 a never-to-be-forgotten period in the lives and town-ships of Canada's boys and girls —your own boys and girls? It is a responsibility to be discharged, just as it is a pleasure to be derived by those who discharge the responsibility And this combining responsibility and pleasure for parents, and unalloyed pleasure for children, should not be neglected in the hurry and rush of modern life. It does, so many years of economic depression and, for many in this western country disastrous crop failure and business reverses

Fortunately, it does not cost much money to give children a good time, a happy holiday Fortunately, again, Canada so blessed by Nature with almost innumerable beauty spots for holiday purposes. There is not a province in Canada which does not abound in lakes, large and small; summer resorts and camping grounds are numerous, places to swim and picnic are to be found in easily accessible places Full advantage should be taken of these to provide outings for the boys and girls, even though individual circumstances may make such outings of brief duration

In summer time especially Canada is a land for out-of-doors. Get the boys and girls out into the open and keep them there as much as possible, They are in school rooms and shut up in houses in the winter time for long months of the year; they need the health-giving properties of the sun throughout the summer holiday season, the clean, invigorating fresh air, the delights of forest and lake. Get them as close as possible to Nature in her happiest moods and most beautiful dress.

And make these vacation days of lasting benefit in other ways See that the boys and girls are taught to swim. It is little less than a crime that so many Canadian boys and girls never learn to swim, and so many tragedies result which are so easily preventable. The art of swimming should be a part of every child's education, and it is one of the best forms of exercise, making for the development of muscle, it is not only a source of great pleasure, but it is a preparation for emergencies that may arise in their own lives or in the lives of others.

Unconsciously too, the work of the school room can be carried forward. Powers of observation can be developed and strengthened during vacation days spent in the open habits of cleanness, neatness, orderliness, can be made a part of camp and holiday life, and accepted as parts of the day's fun, which will stand children in good stead in future years; initiative, ideas in handicrafts, resort to simple invention to meet the lack of usual equipment at home all these things mean a greater all-round development of character

An elaborately organized holiday is not necessary, neither should much expense be entailed. Get out with the children and rough it for a while. They will enjoy it just as much, perhaps more, than an expensive trip or outing where everything is planned and arranged for them. To a large extent, the boys and girls should do a full share of the camp or holiday work. Properly organized and time systematically divided between these duties and the hours of play, boys and girls will enjoy and benefit from doing the camp chores.

Forget the motor car occasionally, and spend a day on a hike. Older heads know the delights and benefits of a walking tour, or a day's hike, which Canadians have not learned to appreciate Try one this year with your older boys and girls.

Think up other things and ways to which this holiday season can be made happy, healthful and useful. Vacation days present an opportunity to get closer to your children than is possible in the busier days of the year. It is an opportunity for you to study them ascertain their weaknesses, or strength; gain their confidence in larger measure learn of their ambitions, and be a result be in a better position to mould their characters along right lines, and check tendencies and habits hitherto un-noted by you, which would prove a handicap to them, and a possible source of future worry and sorrow to yourself as well as to them

Lloyd's hours Vimy Pilgrimage

Stress Necessity Of Making Early Bookings

The Canadian Legion announced to-day that Lloyd's of London, England, have insured the Vimy Pilgrimage, to be held in July of next year, against all contingencies in the event of war, financial panic or other untoward events.

Bookings are pouring into the steamship companies. Hope is expressed by Legion officials that excessive men realize the necessity of registering early in order to insure cancellation of accommodation.

It is difficult to impress a veteran with the idea of making a ten dollar deposit now when he knows he can pay the full hundred and sixty dollars when the time comes," said Captain Ben Allen, Dominion organizer, to the press to-day. "Hasty bookings are necessary, however, so that we can get enough ships to take care of the thousands who intend going.' "And pilgrims only will be allowed to sail in this Peace Armada. Also we must arrange early for billeting accommodation and rail and motor transportation in France. The naval, military and civil authorities in France, Belgium and England are co-operating in every co-operation. It looks like Canada's year in Europe next year."

Nesting Bird Delays Altering .Of Garage Door

Plans to alter a huge electric sign fronting the Canadian National station in Winnipeg were thwarted out of existence for a mother robin whose nest is attached to the letter "r".

Wording of a new sign designed to replace the old had been carefully worked out. Electricians were summoned and plans for the change flash out the attractions of summer excursions Then office workers who had seen the nest on the letter "r" in eggs reported to officials, and it was decided, excursions or no excursions, Mrs. Robin must not be disturbed. Meantime efforts are being made to work out a sign which would leave the "r" in its present position.

Device For Use At Sea Was Successfully Tested

An ingenious life-saving net which experts state will minimize perils of the sea has been demonstrated at Cardiff.

The invention is a raft consisting of a circular cork body which can be stashed with rope. It is produced by a Cardiff ship-repairing firm.

It can be unrolled down a ship's side to rescue a number of floated alongside foundering or burning vessels in accordance which small sums have been paid out of an ordinary lifeboat impossible.

Orders have been received from Lisnr and "Cramp" firms. The device is expected to form the basis of a new industry.

A young woman in Shanghai, China, who refused to be alarmed when a thief snatched a pearl earring valued at $1,000 from her ear recovered the jewel by a trick as clever as it was daring. As he started to run away, the woman called for the other earring and called to him: "Here," she cried, "you might just as well take the other one. I only paid $2.50 for them." The robber, hurling a stream of invective at her and all other women who wore imitation jewelry tossed the earring he had snatched into the street and left.

Little Journeys In Science

BROMINE

(By Gordon H. Grant, M.A.)

Bromine was discovered about a century Ago by the French scientist Ballard. The element occurs in minutes as bromides, chiefly as magnesium bromide and sodium bromide, which are found in many springs and salt deposits. At Stassfurt deposits in Germany and the salt mines of Michigan and Ohio are richest in bromides. Sea water also contains small amounts of bromides.

Bromine is prepared commercially by the electrolysis of a solution of a bromide or by reacting solutions of bromides with the more active element chlorine.

In the years the demand for bromide has greatly increased, due to its use in the preparation of a compound called ethylene bromide. This compound is a constituent of ethyl gasoline. An effort is being made at the present time by scientists to obtain additional supplies of bromine from the bromides in sea water. Sea water contains about seventy parts of bromide in a million of water, which means that about 2,000 gallons of the water must be treated to secure a pound of bromine. To recover bromine from sea-water, a ship was equipped capable of recovering 100,000 pounds of the element per month. It has been reported that the trial trip of this vessel was quite successful, and as a result of this further large scale experiment a plant has been built on the Atlantic coast for the extraction of bromine from the ocean. The success of this venture has suggested the possibility of extracting gold from sea water in a similar way.

Bromine is a dark-red fuming liquid with a very disagreeable odor. Bromine vapor attacks the eyes very painfully and produces great irritation when inhaled. It is about three times as heavy as water and is moderately soluble in water.

Bromides are compounds produced when bromine combines with other elements. Those of potassium and sodium are used in medicine as sedatives and in the preparation of silver bromide, which is used extensively in photography as the sensitive material on the plate. Bromine is also used in the preparation of important dyes. Considerable quantities of [illegible] are manufactur [illegible] & or hydrocyanform.

WHEAT GREATEST PROBLEM THAT FACES CANADA

Ottawa. — Prime Minister R. B. Bennett called the wheat situation Canada's greatest problem when, in the House, he moved second reading of his Grain Bill.

Although not the world's largest producers, Canada is the largest exporter and the sale and quality of the crop has a great effect on Canada's crop, Mr. Bennett explained.

There was no section of the country not affected by wheat prices, drought, windstorms and fair weather on the prairies. Because of that, Canada was more interested than any other in a moderate price for wheat, he added.

In the last crop year, of every 100 bushels of wheat that went on the world market, Canada shipped 28; Australia 20; Argentina 20; United States 10; Russia eight and the Balkan countries seven. Because of that Canada owed a duty Not only to its own farmers but to all countries that a fair price was reached.

The prime minister defied Liberal members to oppose the government, wheat operations. He suggested their "sneering observations be directed to the people of the west" who realized they were saved from bankruptcy. Once again he defied Liberal members to oppose the wheat operations, taunting them to "speak up like men."

"When I listen to the sneers of the honorable gentlemen opposite I invite them to rise and say they oppose this bill," said Mr. Bennett. "Let them rise and speak like men not sit in their seats and sneer and whisper to one another."

The Dominion Bureau of statistics issued a report showing a drop of more than 5,000,000 bushels in exports of Canadian wheat in May to the United Kingdom compared with those of May, 1934, which officials said was due largely to lower import demand by continental European countries

Last May Canadian exports of wheat to the United Kingdom totalled 9,272,511 bushels valued at $7,804,522 compared with 14,566,391 bushels worth $10,041,833 a year ago.

Dr. Dafoe Predicts Quintuplets Will Be Reunited Within Year

Five Years

Atlantic City, N.J.—To several hundred wives of Canadian and American Medical Association physicians who expressed particular interest in the mother of the Dionne quintuplets, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe predicted early reunion with their mother, and union of the entire family "in three or four years."

To newspapermen who questioned him afterward Dr. Dafoe said: "There is no definite plan, but this is the hope."

Dr. Dafoe spoke at a women's luncheon and offered to answer questions.

"How will the influence of the mother be supplied in re'sing the quintuplets." one of the women asked.

"Mrs. Dionne," Dr. Dafoe replied, "is permitted to see the quintuplets whenever she wishes. She may wash them and do other things.

"It is our hope as soon as possible to have their mother care for them. Not in three or four years to have all 10 children together and the family under one roof."

Dr. Dafoe's speech was to recite the daily routine of the quintuplets.

Must Take Rest

The King's Physicians Order His Majesty To Rest For At Least Two Weeks

Sandringham.—The King's physicians have ordered him to rest at least two weeks to recover from an attack of bronchial catarrh and fatigue resulting from six weeks of strenuous activities since the start of the silver jubilee season.

Court circles, little surprised the announcement, said the heavy program the 70-year-old monarch had been following, emphasized rest to which he would be more importantl than treatment of the catarrhal ailment

Evidence the ruler's illness was not serious was afforded when Queen Mary, who left for London by train to keep engagements there. and by the king himself, who went automobile riding over the estate during the afternoon.

Should Use Franchise

Agnes McPhail Urges Women To Make Fullest

Toronto — Miss Agnes Macphail challenged delegates to Council of Women, addressing the council's annual meeting here, to use their franchise and what privileges they possess.

"How long am I to be the only woman member of the House of Commons?" she asked. "It is time, if the women really care about the franchise, that they got into the House. We can get into the House of Commons when you're a friend of the people of any constituency if you want to.

"It is time the women took their courage in their hands and did the job and cared nothing about what anyone said." Miss Macphail said she had been the only woman member of the commons for 13 years.

To Protect Canadian Money

Fund To Be Provided To Check Speculators

Ottawa — Creation of a fund to be used if necessary by the minister of finance to check any flight of capital, the external value of the Canadian monetary unit would be provided in a measure announced in the House of Commons by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett on behalf of Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes, who is ill.

The fund, which will be derived from seeding and was not disclosed

Approximately $60,000,000 will be the nucleus of the fund according to the provisions of the bill which appropriates the difference between the Canadian dollar and the gold value over by the Bank of Canada from the federal treasury and the charter-bank and the current market price of the metal

Under the direction of the minister of finance the fund, the measure says will be kept in a special account and used when necessary to protect Canadian funds abroad or check any fluctuations by the purchase of gold, foreign exchange, or balances in New York or London banks

Blind May Receive Pensions

Legislation Has Been Recommended For People Over Forty

Ottawa. — Dominion legislation to give blind persons pensions when they reach the age of 40, on the same terms that all needy persons receive the pension when over 70 under the Old Age Pensions Act, was recommended in a report tabled in the House of Commons. The report was made by the house committee on industrial and international relations.

Since the Old Age Pension Act applies in only seven of the nine provinces, Quebec and New Brunswick never having adopted it, the report recommends the provinces be enabled to participate in blind pensions without undertaking provisions of the act in regard to all needy persons.

The report said a check between statistics compiled by organizations interested in the blind and census returns placed the total number of blind in the nine provinces at 3,216 of whom, among other things, 2,600 would be eligible for pensions.

The estimated expenditure by the government on the basis of present contributions was placed at less than $500,000 annually, with $125,000 representing the share of the present fiscal year. This was apart from administrative expenses. The maximum pension is $20 a month.

A NEW BRITISH MOVEMENT FOR CAUSE OF PEACE

London. — A non-partisan movement designed to secure adherence of candidates of all political parties at the forthcoming general elections to the cause of peace and reconstruction was launched here.

A council of action, formed from the ranks of religious, social and political organizations, and supported by noted figures including David Lloyd George, Viscount Cecil and Sir Basil Blackett, a director of the Bank of England, made its plans known in a manifesto. Signed by 34 prominent men and women who form the provisional committee, the manifesto invited all organizations sympathetic to the new movement to send delegates to a two-day convention to be held in London in July, at which a nation-wide campaign will be launched.

The manifesto stressed the objective of the council, which was not a negative one of opposition to the government, nor was it intended to support either of the opposition parties. Its aim would be to secure the support of candidates in all parties so that in the next House of Commons a considerable section would favor "bold reconstructions both in the foreign and domestic [illegible]

No Bids For Bonds

Ontario Government Bond Issue Shows No Buyers

Toronto — The Hepburn government in Ontario met the failure of the financial interests of the country to bid on Ontario's $15,000,000 bond issue with the declaration "There will be no surrender"

For several hours after the noon-hour closing time for the receipt of tenders when it was discovered none had been submitted, the Ontario cabinet was in session. Late in the day Premier Hepburn emerged with a prepared statement in which he charged "the financial interests have consolidated and have undertaken to force the government to surrender," and in which he declared "the plain issue is whether the country is to be governed by elected representatives or by the dictators in control of the machinery of money."

The premier offered no details of how the government, having failed to secure an offer for its first major bond issue, would secure necessary money, but he intimated if necessary the facilities of the Ontario government savings offices would be extended and bonds would be sold over the counter to the public.

Agricultural Society Camp Filling Up

Girls and boys of the Vermilion District who are interested in attending the girls and boys camp in connection with the 1935 Fair are urged to send their applications in promptly; the enrollment is already more than 150 and as accomodations are limited it is imperative that those who wish to be taken care of in the dormitory advise the Fair secretary accordingly.

Applications from girls are, so far, the most numerous and as the dormitory will hold only about 80 girls those who plan on taking the 4-day courses should look after their enrollment immediately.

Plans include instruction for girls in interior decoration, proper dress, small treats, games and possibly, while the boys will special on livestock judging, grain judging, the making of rope halters and other kindred lines.

The young people will be the guests of the Agricultural Society on the occasion of the celebration of the 30th Anniversary of the Fair; everything possible is being done to make the camp a success, with sports' directors being appointed for girls and boys so that spare time will be taken up by recreation.

The camp will begin at one o'clock on July 30th., supper being the first meal served at the college and will be concluded on the afternoon of August second, Sunday dinner being the last meal served.

The entire cost of the courses will be three dollars, this to include board and lodging for the three days. Send your application at once to S. C. Herbert, the Vermilion Agricultural Society, Vermilion P. O.

Meeting Will Be Held in Arena Rink — Capacity 4000

Wm. Aberhart, B.A., leader of the Alberta Social Credit League, will address a mass meeting in the Vermilion municipal arena on Wednesday evening, July 10th at 8 o'clock. The committee with which Mr. Aberhart will be greeted is enforced by the large number of enquiries which have come in daily from all parts of the district for weeks past. Arrangements are now under way to accommodate 4000 people in the large arena.

This meeting is being held in the evening of the same day on which the Town of Vermilion tenders its annual picnic to the citizens of the surrounding districts. If the weather is favorable we will no doubt witness the largest crowd ever assembled in the town of Vermilion. Those who wish to be sure of a seat in the arena should be on hand not later than 7.45 p.m. The meeting will be over in sufficient time to allow everyone to attend the dances taking place in the evening.

This will, in all probability, be the only opportunity to hear Mr. Aberhart in this district before the election.

Child Loses Life In Well At Landonville

Little Steve the two-and-a-half year old child of Mr. and Mrs. William Gaynitch at Landonville while playing last Sunday morning on the top of the well near the house fell in and was drowned. It appears the boards on top of the box which covered the well were loose and the child in playing around the pail climbed on the box and fell through into the well several feet below. The well ... was ice cold. The mother missed the child and seeing the boards open ran over and saw the little body floating in the well, floating on the surface of the water.

Much sympathy is being expressed to the parents in their bereavement.

Board Of Trade To Press For Artificial Lake-Relief Project

At the Board of Trade luncheon on Monday noon the Vermilion Board of Trade decided to press for the dam across the Vermilion river and the formation of an artificial lake as outlined by Eastlow Dairy. This would be in keeping with the government's relief projects. It would provide a summer resort in an area where people have to travel upwards of fifty miles on country roads to reach a lake of any size and the dam would cause no damage to the river valley for a distance ... miles and make the river ... for ... canoeing and ... Easy Way To Send Basket Of Groceries By Wire

Add to your grocery list—telefood. So if a uniformed messenger brings a big mess of spinach to your door, blame a friend who may live on the other side of the continent.

Sponsors of the plan, attending the convention of the National Association of Retail Grocers at Indianapolis, explained it will be as easy to telegraph a basket of groceries as to wire a bouquet of flowers.

If it's spinach, you might wire back some broccoli.

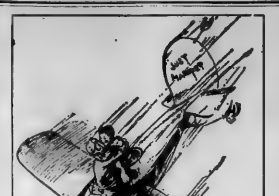
Lobster Production

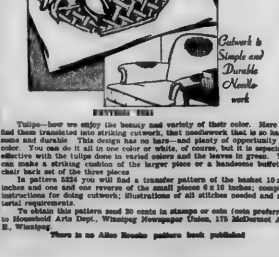
Canada Provides Nearly The Whole Of The World's Supply Of Canned Product

Off the coast of Canada's Atlantic provinces the world's greatest lobster-producing area is located, and every year more than 300 canneries draw from these resources the raw material from which they produce one of the tastiest of sea foods In recent years an increasing part of the Canadian catch has been marketed alive—"shipped in the shell" is another way of saying it—but most of it, however, still goes into cans In the past five years the total annual pack put up in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and Quebec has averaged, in round figures 137,900 cases containing 48 standard-sized cans each

Lobster canning involves a number of different operations, and Canadian lobster canneries are required by law to measure up to certain standards as to sanitation, equipment, and methods. Their operations are subject to inspection under the Meat and Canned Foods Act, which is one of the reasons they turn out so excellent a product. Canada supplies all but a very small part of the world's production of canned lobsters.

It takes 7,000 porters to man the Pullman cars rolling currently over United States rails.





World Needs Peace Assurance

President Roosevelt Says Mutual Understanding And Regard

Greatest current need of the world is "the assurance of peace—an assurance based on mutual understanding and mutual regard," President Roosevelt asserted before the graduating class of the United States military academy. "We maintain an army to promote tranquility," the president said, "and to secure us from aggression but it is no creed and so modest in proportion as to furnish proof no threat or menace to the rights of others is even remotely intended."

Engagement Was Kept

Speaker Unable To Attend Meeting Sent Talking Film

Finding at almost the last minute that pressure in the House of Commons would keep him from making a political speech in Rugby, Englland, Captain David Margesson, the Government Chief Whip, sent a talking picture substitute. He hurried to a film studio, delivered the speech and rushed the film to Rugby. It was the first time in England that a "talkie" kept a public engagement for the principal speaker at a political meeting.

Our Social Duty

There is something wrong when crime takes place in frequented streets and eye-witnesses have nothing to tell about it. It is a natural impulse to avoid being "mixed up" in a sordid case, but it is none the less a social duty to support the law by assisting police in every possible way. For we are all "mixed up" in the fate of ordered society, which requires every man's protection on every necessary occasion.

Airplane pilots for private planes in England now receive salaries ranging from $5,000 to $7,500 a year.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JUNE 30

TRUST UNDER LAW

Golden text: It is good not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother is offended or stumbleth. Romans 14:21.

Lesson: Romans 14:13-21. I. Corinthians 8:8-13.

Devotional reading: Galatians 5: 13-24.

Explanations And Comments

Our Responsibility for Our Brother, Romans 14:13. "But thou, why dost thou judge thy brother?" questions Paul in the preceding verses "or thou again, Why dost thou set at nought thy brother? For we must all stand before the judgment seat of God."

"I may feel at perfect liberty to drink wine. But I only myself to consider, and knowing that my temptation does not lie that way, I might use wine regularly or as often as I felt disposed to enjoy a needed stimulant. I may feel quite convinced in my own mind that morally I am not one whit the worse for doing so. But I cannot determine whether I am to indulge myself or not without considering the effect my conduct will have on others. There may be among my friends some who know that their temptation does lie that way, and whose conscience bids them altogether refrain. If by my example and influence I am induced to silence the voice of their own conscience, then I incur the inexcusable guilt of causing to destroy brother for whom Christ died." (Marcus Dods).

The Important and the Unimportant, verses 17-19. For the Kingdom of God, the reign of Christ over men, is not eating and drinking; the intimate matters are righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit —through his indwelling.

"Religion is love and joy and peace in the Holy Ghost; the cheerfulness thing in the world; it is inconsistent moment in the diet the thyroid gland with moroseness, sourness, and with cannot produce this compound and what is not according to the gentleness of Christ Jesus." (John Wesley). He who serves Christ in this way is pleasing to God and man. So then let us pursue things which make for peace, and things whereby we may edify one another, that is, let us consider what effect upon others our conduct will have.

Cotton Grows Ten Feet

Farmers In Texas Are Trying Out New Variety

Farmers near Edinburg, Texas, await appearance of a new variety of cotton which is said to attain a height of 10 feet and produce an extra long fibre. It is known as "Aztec cotton."

Seedlings already have sprouted but they have not developed sufficiently to enable farmers to determine the nature of the plant. Approximately 30 farmers have planted acreage in the new variety.

The "Aztec" is a rare and Edinburg growers are under contract to return all seed from the 1935 crop to the original owners.

According to reports, the seed was found in an Indian cave in Colorado The discoverer planted the seed and was amazed to find that the stalks grew 10 feet tall.

Little Journeys in Science

IODINE

(By Gordon H. Grest, M.A.)

Iodine was discovered in 1812 by the French scientist, Courtois, who obtained it from the mother-liquor of salts produced from burnt seaweed, or kelp. When the liquid was heated with sulphuric acid in a retort, a violet vapour was produced, which condensed in the form of brilliant crystals. Shortly after this discovery the name iodine was proposed for this substance because it comes from the Greek word for violet.

Iodine occurs in sea-water, in seaplants and sea-animals, and in the thyroid gland of man and of animals. Most of the iodine of commerce is obtained from a compound called sodium iodate, which is found in small quantity in Chile saltpetre, or crude sodium nitrate.

Iodine is a shining, blackish-gray solid, which is nearly five times as heavy as water. It has a strong, rather unpleasant odour, and changes to the vapour state even at ordinary temperatures. It is quite soluble in alcohol and in a water solution of potassium iodide. We are all familiar with iodine in the form of tincture of iodine, which is nothing more or less than iodine crystals dissolved in alcohol. A very small quantity of iodine colors starch solution a deep blue and this is an exceedingly delicate test for iodine.

Iodine is used in the manufacture of certain dyes and drugs which are very helpful to man. The largest single use of iodine is in the photographic industry which uses the two compounds, silver iodide and potassium iodide, in large quantities.

Iodine is an essential constituent of the body. A disease known as the thyroid gland contained in the bunch of vessels at the front of the throat usually designated as Adam's Apple, produces a compound called thyroxin which contains about 9.3% of iodine. If iodine is not present in the diet the thyroid gland cannot produce this compound and goitre results. Iodized salt is now prepared for table use, the small amount of sodium iodide present in this salt according to the gentleman in charge of the process, is sufficient to guard against a natural deficiency in the regular food. Iodine is supplied by certain foods, such as spinach, lettuce, string beans, butter, and milk.

Don't Let One Fly Escape

Constitute A Deadly Menace And Must Not Be Tolerated

Do you know that one fly lays one hundred and two hundred eggs in one batch! It doesn't take much imagination to figure out the consequences if a few flies are allowed to roam around.

Of course, you and I loathe flies because they are irritating and disgusting, but though we all have an urge to get rid of them, we are not all over equipped with preventing their breeding.

All garbage and refuse must be covered or burned, manure, rotting leaves kept well away from dwelling and all surroundings kept as scrupulously clean as possible. However, mixed with cocoa and let stand until Stir eggs, lightly-beaten, melted butter, salt and vanilla. Pour into baking dish, set in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) forty-five minutes. Serve with plain cream or fruit sauce. Serves eight.

Medical authorities and scientists have proved by the most careful tests that the common house-fly spreads deadly germs of infantile diarrhoea, the dreaded warm weather complaint that claims the lives of so many little children.

Flies are a deadly menace and must not be tolerated. A fly will come straight from a heap of filth and settle on food or drink. If the latter is not protected, spreading disease and hard on many cases right on your own home. Those citizens who have any regard for the welfare of their neighbors and community will wage unremitting war against fly pests and Wilson's Fly Pads will be of inv in their efforts.

Nova Scotia Very Scotch

Parliament Is Always Opened By Skirl Of Bagpipes

Nova Scotia, the land of Longfellow's "Evangeline" and especially believed because of that poem to be largely French and English, is largely Scottish. The opening of Nova Scotia's Parliament is accompanied by the skirl of bagpipes, and several newspapers are printed partly in Gaelic. In the Scottish county of Inverness, 72 per cent. of the inhabitants speak Gaelic, while less than half of the similarly named county in Scotland can speak that ancient tongue. — Provincial News Bureau.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gay, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costumes for her cross-word puzzles, and ready, in the merriest crash, her indulgent father loses all he has, and has finally is faced with the necessity of a simpler mode of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Canada, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions

After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge.

Now Go On With The Story

"Sensible man! All this education business is stuff and nonsense unless it fits a boy to earn his living, which nine times out of ten it doesn't do. Look at Matthew Adam. His people scrimped and saved to send him to college. I don't say he got nothing out of it; but here he is back in Pine Ridge running a dairy ranch! Tell me, child, has your father really lost his money?"

"Most of it, I'm afraid. We're sailing the city house and the family will live at Edgemere for the present."

"Where's Edgemere?"

"About twenty-five miles from town. It's Mother's old home, but Aunt Judy owns it. She won't let Dad pay a cent of rent."

"Who's Aunt Judy?"

"I forgot you didn't hear about us," replied the girl. "Aunt Judy is mother's sister. She's living with us for years, and took care of us children when we were little."

"And Lizzie, your father's sister lives with you too?"

"Yes. She teaches in a very high-hat girls' school."

"High-hat," echoed Cousin Columbine, plainly mystified.

Nancy laughed, and explained: "That's only slang. Perhaps it's an Eastern variety that hasn't reached Pine Ridge It means swell, Cousin Columbine — awfully stylish, you know. Aunt Louise is clever. She's earned a good salary for years."

"Well, we live to learn," admitted the old lady briskly. "High-hat! It's really expressive when you come to analyze it. So you're three families under the same roof. I should think you'd fight like cats and dogs."

The girl laughed again.

"We don't, honestly though Aunt Louise thinks Aunt Judy spoils us, and sometimes they scrap about it—that is, as much as any one can scrap with Aunt Judy."

"It's plain to see which is the favorite child, my dear!"

"But you mustn't think we don't appreciate Aunt Louise," spoke up Nance quickly. "She's a dear; but Aunt Judy understands us better and takes our side. If Aunt Louise had had her way we'd never in this world have seen Pike's Peak!"

Her eyes crept upward to the snow-capped mountain, and the old lady asked: "Was it worth the journey?"

"It's wonderful! From the train it was the least bit disappointing, but maybe because we were so far away; but here it's marvelous and—and so near!"

"That's only the atmosphere. Will you believe it, tourists here in Colorado Springs have been known to start out before breakfast thinking they could walk to the base and get back in an hour! Everything looks nearer than it is—even the stars appear within a boot on one foot, a brogan on the other, and wearing an old slouch hat he'd slept in with the brim half gone."

"What was he supposed to represent?" Mark Adam asked over his shoulder. "A rummage sale?"

"It doesn't matter," replied Miss Columbine briskly, "because he was elected speaker of the House; and those who heard that speech never forgot it. A fine orator was George Crocker, and a fine man Mason Sabouchette, I believe. There was something thrilling about the struggle of those old boys when you consider folks'll never realize. See those tall red cliffs over to the right, Jack? That's the entrance to the Garden of the Gods."

"It is!"

In his excitement the boy would have stood up for a better view, but Nancy's bag across his knees prevented him.

"I remember my father bringing me down on horseback when I was a tiny girl," said Cousin Columbine. "I sat astride in front of him and we rode all through the Garden looking for cattle. It was vacant land then, and Father was so impressed with the rock formations that he considered pre-empting it, and then gave up the idea, thinking the land worthless.

"Imagine owning the Garden of the Gods!" gasped Jack. "Has it always been by that name, I wonder?"

"It has as long as I remember; but the early settlers called the place Red Rocks. No need to encourage a stiff neck, Jack, by trying to see out of the back of your head. We'll all drive down some day and explore the place."

If the West had seemed wonderful from a car window, it was thrice wonderful when Mark Adam's dilapidated Ford. The young Nelsons were never to forget that ride. As they wound up the old Indian pass (a good road now, though narrow enough in spots to cause a shiver to run down Nancy's eastern-bred spine), the glimpses of rushing water far below—the rocky cliffs and hillsides far above—sharp curves appearing with alarming frequency, and over everything a sky a deep, deep azure such as they had not dreamed could exist, and blindfolded by the bargain. I was surprised, Mark Adam, to find you'd added boasting to your other sins." Nancy laughed and answered: "You know me better, Miss Columbine. That was only for Juanita's benefit. Those cousins from Denver were on the motorcycle race up the Peak last fall, that girl has put on airs."

"She'll be putting on black most likely, if he attempts to win another year," sniffed Miss Columbine. "Such race ought to be prohibited by law. We've heard enough of that business now, Nancy. This part of town was settled before the Springs, and the Territorial Legislature met here in 1862 with nothing but a log room for their House of Representatives."

"Then they may hotel for the men to stay at?" questioned Jack, for whom the details of United States history held a lure.

"Only a tavern made of logs, not nearly big enough to accommodate them. Some had to sleep on the floor of the assembly room; and one member brought his family and set up housekeeping in a tent."

"But surely you don't remember those days, Cousin Columbine," said Nancy.

"Well, hardly!" chuckled the old lady. "But many's the time I've heard my father tell about it. One day he came down to get a look at the great men, and found a Chief Justice squatting before the fireplace frying bacon!"

"How'd they get here if they came from a distance?" put in Jack. "On horses?"

"Most of them; but they came in wagons too, or in old-fashioned overland stage coaches drawn by mules. One member tramped over a hundred miles through the mountains, and arrived with a boot on one foot, a brogan on the other, and wearing an old slouch hat he'd slept in with the brim half gone."

"What was he supposed to represent?" Mark Adam asked over his shoulder. "A rummage sale?"

"It doesn't matter," replied Miss Columbine briskly, "because he was elected speaker of the House; and those who heard that speech never forgot it. Successful Surgery

Completes Most Delicate Operation Under Local Anaesthetic

A delicate brain operation, doctors believe, will restore Ivan Olsen, 10-year-old accident victim, to normal health.

Performed in the University hospital at Edmonton, the operation relieved pressure of the brain. This removed pressure on the brain and certain degeneration of the tissues It is one of the most delicate operations known to medical science

Prior to the operation young Olsen was given a local anaesthetic and remained conscious throughout the operation for three months in the hospital. The youngster suffered head injuries when he was thrown and dragged by a horse

British research shows that chilled beef can be held in good condition for 60 to 70 days in an atmosphere containing 10 to 20 per cent of carbon dioxide.

The Inefficient Driver

Is One Who Ignores Common Courtesies Of The Road

It is true, as we all know, that many persons, otherwise polite and considerate, when put at the wheel of an automobile become seized of the obsession that they are lords—or mistresses — of creation, have rights superior to the rights of common people who walk, need have no regard for the ordinary rules of courteous conduct. It is a pity, but such is the fact, and in this fact lies the explanation of many an accident.

There are women who drive in the placid assumption that male drivers will accord them right of way under all circumstances; that a motor car driven by a woman just naturally is shown the courtesies extended a lady in her drawing-room.

There are men who use the public highways as though they were private roads on their country estates. Courtesy? That's for the other fellow. Common sense? A protective device for incompetent drivers, they think. Each of these people considers himself up as a king of the highway and let traffic beware!

Some drivers offend in ignorance of the decent conventions of motoring, and good might be accomplished by an official admonition to those receiving their first permits. They should be told to use the horn sparingly — that excessive use is an offense under the law. It should be impressed upon them that all elements in traffic have equal rights, and that the good driver, even possessing right of way, makes due allowance for pedestrians as the weaker party—for cases of pedestrians dancing automobiles are as rare as cases of automobiles breaking up railway locomotives.

It should be made very plain to them that efficiency in driving a motor car should be sought as keenly, and prized as highly, as efficiency as bridge or golf or making pies—that the competent driver simply does not have accidents, and does not bring people out of a year's growth.

Unfortunately it is not only the new drivers who need to be reminded of these things. Many men and women have operated motor vehicles for years and still lack even the most elementary qualifications of efficiency For them there isn't much hope of change. They go on, with such luck as may be, and we must hope for the best. But from the youngsters coming along to the wheel boys and girls motor-conscious from their first years of understanding, something better should be expected - Ottawa Journal

World's Third Richest Man

For the information of gangsters, the fabulously wealthy Maharajah of Kapurthala would like it known that he has brought none of his magnificent collection of family jewels with him during his visit to the United States The Indian potentate, who arrived in New York on the Normandie, is reputedly the third richest man in the world

Little Helps For This Week

If thou has run with the footmen and they have wearied thee, then how canst thou contend with horses? And if in the land of peace wherein thou trustest they wearied thee, then how will thou do in the swelling of Jordan? Jeremiah 12 5.

thou hang upon the cross,
To whom a weary hour is lone.
Or how the scorn and scourging brook
Who shrinkest from a scornful look?

A heart unloving among kindred has no love towards God's saints. If you have a cold heart towards a servant or a friend, why should you wonder if you have no fervor towards God. If we are cold in our private prayers we should be earthly and dull in the most devout religious service. If we cannot bear the vexations of a comrade how should we bear the contradictions of sinners, and if a little pain overcomes us how could we endure a cross? If we have no tender cheerful affectionate thought and love for those with whom our daily hours are spent, how should we feel the ardor of love to the unknown and evil, the unpleasant and repulsive?—H. E. Manning.

Stamp Collector Was Lucky

Found Priceless Stamp In Lot He Bought For Small Sum

A rarity of philately—the one penny Shakespeare charity stamp issued in Great Britain—was discovered by Charles A. Davis of Dorchester, Mass., while looking through a collection of 19th century stamps he purchased 10 years ago for a "song."

The stamp, bearing a likeness of the Bard of Avon, clean and undamaged, is virtually priceless. It is the only stamp ever issued in America, and one of few throughout the world.

It was among the British local stamps, issued by the Municipal Carriers Co. some time between 1873 and 1875. These stamps were used to prepay the concerns which carried mail and packages in competition with government mails, and come in a wide variety of "local" stamps.

These stamps were part of a large stock which Davis bought for $25.

Stealing Fish Proved Costly

Two Men Heavily Sentenced For Taking Carp In Austria

Two men are serving terms in an Austrian prison paying for a meal they did not enjoy. They stole two carp from a fountain in a park in Baden, not knowing that the fountain exhibits were under the protection of the Austrian Office of Ancient Monuments. experts having decided they were over 100 years old. Although they told the judge they hadn't been able to eat the fish because the cook could not make them palatable, the magistrate sentenced the thieves to two months' hard labor.

Look Ahead And Prepare

Conditions in Western Canada, considering the whole area of the prairie provinces, present a changed picture this year to that of several years past, and the change is almost entirely due to the Weatherman. With the exception of comparatively small tracts, the great grain producing area of southern Saskatchewan which in recent years has suffered a lack of moisture has been favored with copious falls of rain, and Nature has thus largely solved a problem which all Governments and individuals, despite the expenditure of tens of millions of dollars, could barely cope with and certainly could not solve.

At the time of writing—which is ten days or so before this will appear in print—prospects are not only favorable for a normal, possibly an above normal, yield but the big problem of feed and fodder for livestock seems solved as the soil is again saturated with moisture, sloughs and creeks filled with water, and grass again covers the ground. Admittedly it is too early yet to assume that present favorable conditions will continue throughout the season and it would be a mistake to take too much for granted in a country where conditions change so quickly. At the moment, however, prospects are bright and the foundation laid by May and June rains is such as to make a detailed guess-work almost a hazard.

Confidence in the country is being restored and hope is returning to many who had nearly abandoned hope and were on the verge of giving way to despair. Nature has provided an object lesson of how puny is man, notwithstanding his really marvelous achievements, when it comes to what are, after all, the deciding factors in the prosperity of any people or country. Man may plan, and should plan within those spheres where the dictates of the control rests in his own hands, but all his planning will fail if it is not in conformity with natural laws, and takes into account what we erroneously term the vagaries of Nature.

With the experience of the past year or five years of drouth, dust storms, almost complete absence of feed and fodder used for a new season's sowing, and an absence of reserves accumulated in good years to tide over the poor years which always come sooner or later, what is going to be the attitude of people in this and, it is to be hoped, even expected, future better years? In those districts where there is now an abundance of moisture will the lessons of the past be remembered and steps proceeded with to conserve the surplus wherever possible and feasible? Or will people quickly forget and again live only in the present without taking thought for the future?

If Western Canada is blessed with a bountiful crop, plenty of hay and grasses, large quantities of wild fruits, vegetables, etc., will people, profiting by the past, begin at once the building up of reserves against a future day when Nature may not be quite so generous in the bestowal of gifts? As Western people now look over their green and promising fields, are they planning, if the promise of those fields is fulfilled in the harvest, to conserve a little something, as much as they possibly can, as an insurance for the future? Or will they quickly forget and dispose of their last resource, trusting to the future to again take care of itself?

It is no particular criticism of the mass of persons in this country to say that, in many respects, we have been a wasteful people, and have not practised that frugality which would have been the part of wisdom. Usually speaking, all of us have been more or less wasteful. We have employed our resources in satisfying the desires, the ambitions, the pleasures of the moment, without giving sufficient thought to the future. In above-normal prosperous years, instead of providing some reserve in a money or loan liquid form to meet future needs, we have dissipated them, or locked them up in some concrete way, or used them to expand our operations beyond what was necessary or wise. Thus seeming assets have been found to be heavy liabilities.

All have made this mistake—farmers, merchants, industrialists, financiers, municipalities, provinces, and the Dominion as a whole. Nobody can well point the accusing finger at any other person. But if we are wise, if we are capable of learning anything from past experience, surely we will now as a people, individually and collectively, recognize our past mistakes and not merely resolve not to repeat them, but proceed now to follow a different course and, like Joseph of old, in the years of plenty put by to carry us and our country through years of scarcity.

Some people in the best year or two became almost convinced that the drouth and dust storms and crop failures had become a permanent condition. Those of riper experience knew better. They knew that the world has always experienced periods of plenty and periods of scarcity, that this is not one of Nature's ways of maintaining an equilibrium a safe balance. There is reason to hope that the recent period of drouth and scarcity has passed, and that a more fruitful period is at hand. But other periods of drouth and crop failures will inevitably come now as the time to prepare for them becomes ripened, no person who has suffered through lack of the necessities of life in the recent period desires to pass through the same experience again.

Now is the time to take precautions against a repetition of it. Now is the time to think and act really to hope mine, to take thought of and prepare for the future and insure against to the fullest extent possible against whatever misfortunes or setbacks may be ahead.

The total shipments of certified Canadian reports of canned fruit and vegetables from Canada in 1934 to Great Britain were 38 per cent. amounted to 1 328 745 bushels, 726 greater from January 1 to March 561 bushels being shipped during the 16, 1935, than during the corresponding months of January to May inclusive ing period of 1934. The principal in- and 600 163 bushels from the fall to remains were in canned apples, pears December 31 and peaches.

Strange Discovery

Huge Mound Of Black Substance Found In Northern Saskatchewan

A peculiar rock formation in the shape of a giant dome, which is considered to indicate the presence of either natural gas or oil, has been discovered in northern Saskatchewan, some 60 miles northwest of Lac la la Ronge.

It consists of a huge mound of some black substance resembling low grade coal or tar mask, from the centre of which bubbles a salt spring.

Hon. T. C. Davis, K.C., attorney-general, who recently returned from an aeroplane trip over northern Saskatchewan to Lake Athabasca, brought some of the material back with him. He is making arrangements to have it analyzed.

Originally the discovery was made by the Indians, who reported this huge mound of black substance.

Several theories concerning the presence of the mound have been advanced. One is that the salt spring bubbling from the earth has brought up it a flow of oil which over a period of years has built up the mound about the spring similar to a crater of a volcano.

The samples brought back by Mr. Davis do not appear to be inflammable, although the black, tarry substance permeating the sample which burns.

A well dome from which the spring bubbles is located near Vermette lake in the vicinity of Lac la Plonge.—Regina Leader.

Science Review Estimates Superior In World's Largest Lake

A London, England, Science Review Chronicle entered into a discussion of the comparative sizes of Lake Superior and Lake Victoria, Tanganyika in Africa. Someone, including some school teachers, advising their pupils, had declared the African lake to be larger.

Using all the information it could obtain from atlases and encyclopedias, the Science Review was definite in fact, that Superior was the larger and thus the largest lake in the world. There was definite depth or ce considered, for it appears that large portion of Victoria Nyanza is nowhere to only a foot or so above the bottom and much of it filled with reeds and grasses.

We now find the following paragraph among items issued by a science service for use in newspapers as something "Interesting to know." "It is estimated that Lake Superior exceeds in size its nearest fresh water rival, Africa's Lake Victoria Nyanza, by 10 thousand square miles."—Port Arthur News-Chronicle

Speed Ball To Tour Tires To Largest Repair Shop

A policeman of Bolton, England, has just invented a "motor-bandit stopper," which is expected to be the worst of criminals. It is in the form of a speed ball, which, when in front of a speed car, bursts into into several spiked arms causing a span of six feet and guaranteed to tear the toughest tires to shreds.

COULD NOT SEW A BUTTON ON

Her Hands Were Helpless With Rheumatism

At one time she thought she would lose the use of her right hand. But now—though in the form of Kruschen Salts—put her right again.

"I was sure it was bad news," she writes. "In fact, I could not do my housework, I was so bad with rheumatism in my arms and hands. I could not sleep at nights, and I thought I would lose the use of my right hand. I could not hold anything, nor could I sew a button on. My arm would go dead. I was advised to try Kruschen, and inside of three weeks I found such a change. I have kept on taking it, and now I sleep all night—thanks to Kruschen's help and relief."—(Mrs.) J. J.

Five of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals, which are responsible for rheumatic agony. Other ingredients of Kruschen assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channels.

Germans Challenge Record

Bremen and Europa Will Make Attempts With Reserve Power

According to hints from German shipping quarters, the North German Lloyd liners Bremen and Europa will take up the battle for the "blue ribbon" of the Atlantic, which has been won by the French liner Normandie.

Open expression of this determination was given by the Boersen Zeitung in a dispatch from Hamburg.

"It is not unlikely," the dispatch said, "that the Rex (Italian liner) or Bremen or Europa have still some hidden reserves of power, which they may give the Normandie a surprise.

"That the two German vessels have never used their top speed in their regular runs and have been holding back for just such competition as the Normandie and the Rex-White Star Queen Mary is a story that always has been believed in Germany—with good justification remains to be seen.

Animals Like To Play

Even Clumsy Polar Bears Are Great Fun Makers

Almost any time is a play time with monkeys. Give a monkey a musical instrument and he will play for hours.

Another monkey delight is to dress up and act like a human. One keeper at the Bronx zoo, New York, used to put young chimpanzees so well that they will take a meal at a table from its plates and mugs, and pour everything just as politely as can be.

The Polar bears are also great funmakers. The cubs of a wheeling, wrestling bear have been playing on an ice floe. The main idea in their game was to push and scramble about all the time. Each one until one was pushed into the water.

Immediately the other bear would plunge in after it, and there would be another tussle until one was forced back on to the ice. The winner would get no benefit, and the game would start over again.

Contest In California Brought 900 Pair Of Twins

Five hundred pairs of twins answered the call when Long Beach, California, announced a twin contest. Each pair was required to be born in Cale Patricia La Forte, 11 weeks.

Chosen were H. S. and A. L. Hoby on the strength of their silver prizes. To-day every available house, cabin and shack in Mayo has been taken up by the influx of miners. Large silver operators are tuning up their equipment preparatory to getting under way, while individual claim owners have started already to get out ore for summer shipment.

An air conditioner costing so little it is within the means of the average household was demonstrated to the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers in Toronto by W. A. Stark, Cleveland. The conditioner uses a porous sand known as silica gel, which absorbs water vapours from the air and poisons from the human system.

The human scalp has approximately 1,000 hairs in the square inch, the average head containing 110,000 hairs. Women have a higher average than men, while red heads average only 90,000.

Queen Likes Natural Folk

Not Reserved If People Chat With Her Freely

In the Jubilee number of The Manchester Guardian a contributor writes about Queen Mary this way:

The Queen's mind is powerful rather than quick. She once said to a friend, "I find it a great effort to think of something fresh to say to everyone I meet." The friend replied, "Oh, your Majesty should not try. If I see in your face I should think of something nice to my when I got out of bed and my it to everyone I met that day." But the Queen replied, "Oh no, you would not. The press would get hold of it and say that you were insincere." Whatever else anyone said of the Queen it would be impossible to call her insincere.

At a first meeting people often leave all the conversation to her Majesty and so find her difficult to get on with and think her reserved. A very slight acquaintance, however, helps them to realise her extraordinary kindness of heart and the way in which she never forgets anyone she has ever met or misses a chance to do a kindness. If she has been interested in hearing of suffering or want, and meets the person who brought it to her notice again, it may be 10 years after, she will at once say, "And how is So-and-so? I hope everything is going on well." In fact, the Queen will chat freely with the Queen as he would with any other lady, relying on her kindness and sympathy, will find it easy at once also to chat on with and charming. Her wide knowledge of the subjects that do interest her, her readiness to say when she has no authority on any subject, her ready humor and her sincere kindness make a conversation with her a real joy.

However, her chief interest in life now is undoubtedly the little Princess Elizabeth. She is always with her, and no wonder; for a more charming little girl or one more completely unspoilt by her high position, it would be impossible to meet.

Anti-Italian Articles

Study Has Expelled Rome Correspondent Of Chicago Tribune

The Italian government press bureau has expelled David Darrah, the Rome correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. Darrah and his wife were forced to leave immediately. The reason for Darrah's expulsion was given as the writing of anti-Italian articles.

The bureau also issued an order banning until further notice the entrance of copies of the New York Herald Tribune in Italy as a result of an editorial entitled "Baldwin and Mussolini."

The editorial appeared in the Times after recent speeches of Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin of Great Britain and Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy.

The action against the New York newspaper follows a campaign against a group of English newspapers, including the Manchester Guardian, and the lifting of a ban against German newspapers, including the Nazi organ, the Voelkischer Beobachter.

Large silver operators are tuning up their equipment preparatory to getting under way, while individual claim owners have started already to get out ore for summer shipment.

Makes Testing Safer

Spinning Device Determines Whether Auto Wheels Need Adjusting

Eliminating hazardous road tests for "shimmy" and wobble, a dynamic spinning device subjects each wheel to a similar test without removing the car from the repair shop. The machine consists of a spinner wheel mounted on the shaft of an electric motor and carried on a small rubber-tired dolly. The speed of the motor is controlled from the end of the dolly handle like a vacuum cleaner. The spinner wheel rocks from side to side for adjustment to the plane of the cambered axle wheel so that the tire will not be damaged. The test is made with the wheel on the spindle, each wheel being jacked up and spun with the machine. The motor quickly accelerates the wheel to eighty or 100 miles an hour. When the shimmy speed is reached the whole car shakes violently, indicating the wheel is out of balance and that it should be removed and trued up.—Pop.

Sodo-fountain chocolate milkshakes made a deep impression on all but one of 13 young-ers of the London choir school who returned to England from a concert tour in Canada and the United States.

The young choristers expounded their views on the United States and Canada in epigrammatic fashion, with food the predominant note.

Charge Discrimination

Bennett Is Made 'That Canada Is Unfair To U.S. Trade

Canton, N.Y.—A spirited reply to an American charge of tariff discrimination was given at the conference on Canadian-American affairs by John W. Dafoe, editor-in-chief of the Winnipeg Free Press, and two Canadian educationists — Professor Frank Underhill, of Queen's University, and Professor Robert McQueen, of the University of Saskatchewan.

Dr. Dafoe said the charge of Prof. Jacob Viner, of Chicago, that Canada, with its three-tariff system, was discriminating against the United States, had not been proved.

"Under our system of main, intermediate and empire tariff schedules," he said, "we go to other nations and offer them the intermediate rate on their goods in exchange for a preferred consideration of our wheat. The Americans with a single tariff, argue we have been unfair because we have three tariffs, and the United States is not favored by our intermediate tariff. It is our contention, however, that we have not been done under the indefinite single tariff system."

Dr. Dafoe said he believed the difficulties between the two countries would be overcome if the United States did not have a single tariff system, but had variable tariffs.

Ramsay MacDonald May Pay Social Visit To Friends In Dominion

London.—Ramsay MacDonald, lord president of the council and former prime minister, was disclosed to have under consideration an invitation to pay a social visit to friends in Canada.

It was not learned who issued the invitation, but it was recalled the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Herald said Mr. MacDonald might go to the United States as a special representative to discuss with Washington authorities possibilities of Anglo-American co-operation in world affairs.

BENNETT WILL CONTINUE TO LEAD THE GOVERNMENT

Ottawa.—Definite assurance only a breakdown in health will prevent him continuing as leader of the government was given by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett as a complement to Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn's denial of reports in conservative members of the House of Commons and the senate.

It had been expected Mr. Bennett would take this occasion to convey to his parliamentary colleagues some intimation of his intention with respect to the future of the party in the anxiety created by his recent illness.

The banquet was private and the guests confined to members of parliament who support the government.

Mr. Bennett's address is understood to have dealt in the main with the international situation and to have made no reference to the domestic political situation.

Ottawa.—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn's denial that he will resign to enter federal politics was received with satisfaction in conservative circles here.

Mr. Hepburn's statement, issued in Toronto, was regarded as definitely closing the door to any suggestion that he might be a candidate for the leadership of the federal party.

Mr. Hepburn's statement was issued after he had conferred with Premier Duplessis of Quebec, and Premier

Conservatives Select Party Candidate

A. E. Williams Chosen At Large Convention at Mannville

Over 150 delegates attended the Conservative convention at Mannville on Thursday evening of last week called to select a party candidate for the forthcoming provincial elections. Every centre of the district was represented. Early last fall the party nominated John Hayden of Mannville as its candidate. Mr. Hayden, however was obliged to retire because of ill different health and pressure of his stock farm.

The proceedings were anything if not snappy and enthusiastic. Upon the motion of calling the convention being started Mr Mercer of Mannville moved the nomination of A. E. Williams of that town. Joe Milliron followed with the nomination of W. J. Marsh of Cunningham. Mr Marsh declined the nomination, saying that it was impossible for him to accept. He then moved that the nomination of Mr. Williams be made unanimous, which was approved by the convention.

An Amazing Apparatus

Enables One To See And Read With Eyes Closed

A Canadian physician's device which enables one actually to see and read with eyes tightly closed, is attracting much attention at the scientific exhibit of the American Institute of Homeopathy Convention at Atlantic City, N.J.

The apparatus is the work of Dr. Henri Pere of the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, and is based on his discovery that X-rays, contrary to hitherto prevailing belief, can be seen by the human eye.

Physicians have pressed their closed eye against an eye-anchor in front of the X-ray tube and to their amazement, have been able to read words and see pictures just as though their eyes were open.

Dr Pere is using it in detecting the location of foreign bodies lodged in the eye and to determine whether a damaged condition exists in the retina

Origin Of Pall Mall

Street Named For Game Played In The 17th Century

Most people have heard of a street in London called Pall Mall, and this is how it got its strange name. In the 17th century there was a very popular game in London called Pall Mall, played with croquet which is still played to-day. It was popular with most of the gentry The object of the game was to drive a ball along a straight alley and through an elevated ring with a mallet. The alley for pall mall was hardened and strewn with powdered shells so as to present a perfectly smooth surface The game has completely died out, for there is no trace of it for centuries, and the only relic of the game is in the name of Pall Mall street

C.P.R. Is Calling For Tenders For New Equipment

As a preliminary order in the new equipment program provided for by the Unemployment Relief Act, it was announced in Canadian Pacific Railway head financial railway car companies to submit tenders for 1,500 new freight cars Additional units, including passenger cars and locomotives, will be ordered later

The invitation for tenders just issued includes 750 box cars, 500 coal cars and 250 refrigerator cars.

It takes eight gallons of special oil to give each of the elephants in the London zoo its annual "beauty bath."

World's Greatest Racing Classic

Unfortunately the average spectator at the annual Indianapolis Speedway Classic is unable to witness details of the tense drama of the race, which takes place in those little concrete-walled home known as the "pits", located on the "apron" of the track near the starting point. Here the "teams," composed of 6 dozen men,—a necessary organization for every entrant—perform their duties in an atmosphere tense with excitement but with the precision of a well-drilled stage show Without their help no driver would stand a chance of winning.

Theirs is the directing genius behind the strategy involved in the four-and-a-half-hour contest. Hurtling across the two-and-a-half-mile rough brick oval at speeds approaching 100 miles an hour, their arenas reeling from the thunder of their mounts, the fumes from the engines, and the eye strain, the drivers lose track of their position and speed.

It is the pitmen who keep them informed on these important matters, and advise them regarding strategy through a complicated system of signaling When to come in for water and gas, and who the leaders are at the moment are among the many pieces of information that the driver is looking upon his pit crew for.

The operations in the pit are as thrilling at times as the actual race itself. A car sides onto the apron and stops in front of its own pit. Half a dozen men leap the low concrete wall, each concentrating on a definite job. The cap is off the radiator in a second and a stream of cool water is flowing in; gasoline is already being poured into the tank; tires are examined, and two men lift the hood and their expert eyes and ears can tell in a split second whether all parts of the engine are synchronizing.

One or two A.A.A. officials dash up. The pit crew gives them a signal, and they are off. Their position may mean loss of many precious seconds—highly eliminate hope for the race. These officials have the authority to order substitutions, and if in their judgment the car has a defect, in order if from the race as a precaution of safety for all concerned.

Kelly Petillo won this year's race, setting a new track record of 106.34 miles an hour. Each of the four times Petillo stopped at the pits, he was seen to continue in gear by the men, not yet recovered from the effects of the body rhythm induced by the terrific car-swing at high speed. Peter DePaolo, his pit mechanic, however, knew that partly deafened ears and within a minute after Petillo was back on the track with a fresh supply of gas and water, and his engine in perfect tune.

Petillo frankly stated after the race that the key to victory in this performance was due to two factors —his pit manager and his tires. The latter, he said, had withstood more times to "burn up" his car early in the race, but he could not afford to, then ahead of him "I knew my Firestones would stand any speed my car could go," he said, "but I had my doubts about Pete DePaolo. He worked out the plan of campaign and I followed it." DePaolo signalled instructions to Petillo on almost every lap of the 500.

In pits, too, watching and checking car performance, is the engineering genius of the country.

Take tires for instance. The recent race—backed by Firestone—executive contest in which Firestone tires had been on the winning car. Firestone engineers and designers were in the pits throughout the race, checking every phase of the car's performance The drivers buy and pay for their tires, and have for years. Firestones were on all cars that finished and there was not one tire failure. With new records each year, the problem for tire and motor car engineers is ever new.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

The weather man granted us one of those rare June days on Sunday, and all Woodvale is earnestly hoping that he extends his favors until the 3rd.

Gardens are simply jumping, and at last to have their ravenous appetites satisfied a little. Wheat crops are fair. Oats in the immediate neighborhood are patchy.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wilhite and family paid the Neighborhood a short visit last week before proceeding to Vermilion.

C. C. Cox is keeping well on the trend of modern developments by erecting a very attractively placed filling station near his main gate, having graded a splendid approach for all vehicles.

We are pleased to announce that Miss Ruth Arthur, our charming and vivacious pedagogue for the past term has been once more constructed to guide the educational efforts of our lads and lasses for the next year.

We were deeply disappointed last Tuesday night when Mr. J. Givens of Islay found it impossible to leave the town on account of a heavy rainstorm. The crowd at Woodvale that evening heard a very good impromptu discussion of Social Credit principles from our Vice-president. He, therefore is allowed to cherish the Pie Plate until earned by another good effort.

Mr. Givens has arranged to speak at Woodvale on the evening of July 4.

Hearty praises resounded in the

Sunday afternoon was greatly enjoyed on the Woodvale grounds when the Telford Tigers popped up our way to try for a long sought revenge After waiting impatiently for the coming Woodvale pitcher and captain (by the way, where WAS he?), the teams lined up on the diamond without him At first the Warriors' chances looked slim and a real parade took place in the midst of the best moment our gallant lineup rode to the rescue took the field, and then the fun began. The depressed price of farm products is a problem with which everyone is familiar, but as the 1913 base from product prices have never been as low as gasoline. By cross 1913 1930 gasoline did not rise as price as nearly the same extent as farm products, yet since 1930 its price has always remained relatively declined. The data for the above graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

FAIR LABOR POLICIES BENEFIT THE CONSUMER

WORRY and unhappiness are enemies of efficiency. We have always tried to be efficient and yours ago we said, "to the greatest extent possible let us go worry and unhappiness out of this organization." Most of the minds of every man and woman in our employ."

In Imperial Oil has always paid high wages. It set up sickness and death benefits, a pensions plan and group insurance for its workers. It made it easy for them to share prosperity in the Company. It gave them a voice in the discussion of Company policies that directly affect them. It introduced the forty-hour week, thus increasing the number of those who work for the Company.

Efficiency and loyalty are repaying the Company for all these things. Imperial Oil employees give generously of their hours and energies. Their duty are well treated. They feel secure and this feeling is reflected in better work and in the high quality and lower cost of the products they make. The consumer benefits, the employee benefits and the Company benefits by these policies.

The other team were defeated by Mannville in the first round.

GREENLAWN & RIVERTON

The epidemic of weddings in our neighborhood is still unchecked, and last week, on June 24, another young "old timer", William Hudson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Holmen of Riverton took for his bride Miss Ingaret Haskell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Haskell, also of Riverton. Rev. Boyd of Vermilion performed the ceremony. After entertaining a host of friends at their wedding dance on Friday evening June 28th, the young couple have gone enjoying a trip to Banff and other points in their new car.

On Thursday afternoon, June 27th the Riverton ladies, young and old, gave a miscellaneous shower in honor of the most recent bride of the neighborhood, Mrs. Wm. Holmen, at the lovely new home of Mrs. Ben Tinmanson. The weather was beautiful and a large crowd gathered to offer th ir gifts and congratulations.

The picnic held on July 1st by the Riverton U.F.A. was quite successful in spite of the threatening showers. The usual amateur games and races were included in, with their customary aftermath of sore muscles and joints among the "old folks" and some not so old.

Mrs. Violet Paige and little daughter Joan, of Toronto, are visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Dau of Riverton.

Mr. Walter Skinner left Tuesday by train for a trip to the U.S.A. for his health.

Miss Ellen Tinmanson has lost returned from a visit with friends in the Rosyfork district.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Orford of Edmonton spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Green. Miss Muriel Green accompanied them to Edmonton for an outing.

Mr. D. Mathison and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mathison returned recently by car from a trip to Riverhurst, Sask. Mrs. Joy and daughter Helen Honey, and son George returned with them for a visit with Mrs. Joy's three daughters living in this neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirkwood and son of Edmonton were guests at the Lloyd Simms & Bierwert.

The community picnic given at Kettchum's Lake by the Greenlawn and Ellsworth school teachers on Friday, June 28th was a very enjoyable affair and drew a crowd as the weather was ideal.

ISLAY News

DEPARTING ISLAY LADIES HONORED

In honor of Mrs. Lenard and Mrs. Stephens, who are leaving Islay for new homes, a most delightful "Linc" tea was held in the church. A dozen tables looked very pretty with their gay tea cloths and daisy dishes. The pulpit was banked with Hydrangeas and the lilacs were generously supplied by Mrs. Berkhead.

A very dainty lunch was supplied by the W.A. of the church. During the tea hour Master Lyle Barnes and Master James Wallbridge entertained the ladies with very fine piano solos. The vote upon their worthy applause. Miss Elsie Linehan delighted the audience with instrumental and vocal solos. A very appropriate and pretty solo was "The Good-bye."

Mrs. Mary G. Stone spoke a few words to the two guests of honor, referring to the work each had done while here. She said that we felt as if we were just getting acquainted with Mrs. Lenard, but we knew Mrs. Stephens better, as she had been with us for fourteen years. If ideas were needed, it was "Ask Mrs. Stephens" — as if it was appointed the Sunday School, it was Mrs. Stephens, and that she did very successfully.

The many friends of Master Lyle Barnes will be pleased to hear that he received "Honors" in his Elementary examinations of the Toronto Conservatory of Music. Congratulations, Lyle.

Miss Clara Bothwell has gone to Edmonton where she is taking special organ lessons for the next month.

Wilfrid Parkinson and Harold Brown this last Wednesday evening when he was crushed between a hauling truck and his barn. The accident occurred after dark, while he and a neighbor were loading some hogs.

Miss G. McCheaney, nurse in training at the Misericordia Hospital, Edmonton, is spending two weeks with her sister, Mrs. McEae.

An interesting event in Islay July 1st was the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Gilchrist. This took the form of a re-union of the family, sons and daughter with their families being present. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd McFadden of St. Albert, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Gilchrist, Edmonton, and Mr. and Mrs Nelson Gilchrist, Edmonton.

A new grocery store is to be opened in town and will be managed by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rogers.

Miss Alison Beecroft is home from Edmonton for the holidays.

By the time this appears in print, Islay's big sports day will be history.

BRIDE ELECT FETED

Showers of presumptial gifts, as well as the wet kind, seem to be very much the order of the day (in Friday last, Miss Dorothy Stone was the guest of honor at Miss Rita McCartney's home, Tuesday evening Mrs. E. V. Ross was hostess at a shower for the same young lady Wednesday evening, at the Rev. McLeod home, girl students of Miss Stone's room foregathered and tendered her a "kitchen" shower. The teaching staff was also present.

COMPETITION BETWEEN CROP AND WEED PLANTS

Shown By Diagrams of Root Systems

The Scarie Grain Co. have recently issued educational and enlightening articles on "Competitive Efficiency of Weed and Crop Plants in Ordinary Grain Fields as shown by the extent of their Root Systems." The article is strikingly illustrated in a manner which carries home the lesson set forth. This chart may be seen at the Inspectors for the young people and to date applications have been received from points as far away as Stromo, Provost, Ranfurly and Elk Point. Young people of the immediate Vermilion district should send their applications in AT ONCE if they wish to attend the courses. Applications cannot be accepted after July 20th.

COMPETITION FOR ADVANCE SALE OF TICKETS

In order to eliminate the difficulty of selling tickets to large crowds at the gate booths, an advance sale of tickets is being held during the month of July beginning on the 5th and ending on the 31st day of the month. Boys and girls are offered an opportunity of earning money and of winning a brand new C.C.M. bicycle by undertaking the sale of these advance tickets; all who wish to enter the competition may write or telephone the secretary at once.

30th ANNIVERSARY OF FAIR

The thirtieth anniversary of the Fair is being celebrated this year and a number of old-timers from outside the district have intimated that they will visit Vermilion Fair this year; it is hoped to arrange to have a photo taken of all those who are at this year's Fair and who attended the first Fair in 1906. Special arrangements are being made to care for the old timers and a shady place is also being arranged for mothers who desire to leave children in care of a competent person while they visit the baseball tournament, horse races or other sports or attractions.

FARMERS URGED TO EXHIBIT

Every farmer in the district is invited to show something. Let all help to make Vermilion's 30th Fair the BEST Fair; this can only be done with the continued co-operation of the entire district. Write for a copy of the souvenir prize list . . . show what you grow and share what you know. The Board is endeavoring to make Vermilion's Fair a truly educational event and requests the cooperation of every citizen. $6000.00 will be offered in prizes.

FIRST CLASS ATTRACTIONS IN GREAT VARIETY

The attractions at the Fair will take place on the grandstand twice daily and will feature a troupe of artistes recently from New York and Chicago who will perform breath-taking stunts on high wires, the celebrated DeWall do Duo of Minnesota will entertain the crowds with their trick bicycle and wire riding and the trained animals will gladden the hearts of young and old alike, many other acts will be staged for your entertainment.

The $200 baseball tournament is attracting outstanding teams from all over the country and the Vermilion district is also showing some speedy ball should draw large crowds.

The Vermilion Turf Club is arranging for a live card of races and a number of horses from the Western Canada circuit are expected to stroll stuff for the entertainment of the "fair crowds."

The Ferris Wheel and Merry-Go-Round will be in operation for the benefit of the youngsters and those not so young and the midway will be replete with entirely new games at the Fair.

Remember Vermilion's Thirtieth Fair! Mark the dates — August 1st and 2nd — on your calendar. Make up your mind to BE THERE!

THE Cost and worth of a gasoline is not decided at the pump, nor by how much you pay per gallon. It is decided out on the highways—by the performance, mileage, etc., a gasoline will give. TEXACO Gasolines are built to give you more power—smoother, quieter performance—and GREATER MILEAGE.

FIRE-CHIEF

Only in Fire-Chief does Western Canada find such value in a gasoline. It has the highest octane rating of any gasoline ever offered at regular prices, and is flame tested for your identification. Fire-Chief is never sold under any other name — is obtainable only at Texaco Service Stations — and dealers displaying that Sign.

The Greater Fire-Chief cannot be compared with other Gasolines, for no other can be like it. It is the only gasoline sold in Western Canada which is produced by the exclusive DeFlorez Vaporphase process.

TEXACO ETHYL
The Forerunner of ALL Gasolines — the Greater "Fire-Chief" — plus Ethyl Fluid makes Texaco-Ethyl the finest of premium motor fuels. Pep! Snap! Smoothness! Effortless, knockless power and greater mileage. Obtainable only at TEXACO SILVER PUMPS.

TEXACO 3rd GRADE
A refined stabilized Turner Valley gasoline. While this product does not have the outstanding quality characteristics of "Fire-Chief," it is a full value product unexcelled in its price class.

HOW TO MAKE ICED TEA

Infuse the tempting fragrance of Salada Iced Tea Blend. Tea to a pint of fresh boiling water. After six minutes strain liquid into ice-packed pitcher. Add 1/4 cup of granulated sugar and the juice of 2 lemons. Stir well until sugar is dissolved. Fill pitcher with cold water and set aside for one hour before serving. Pour over cracked ice and serve. Sliced lemon and mint leaves add delicious flavour.

Protect Wild Life

The is an age of organization. Men and women, boys and girls, band themselves together in clubs, associations, unions, large or small, some single isolated groups, others as branches of a Provincial, Dominion, or International body. There are clubs to promote almost every conceivable thing, or object, in which mankind can possibly be interested. Their number is legion, and new organizations are coming into existence almost every week.

Many organizations have been in existence for a long time, have large memberships, and very definite objects to serve. They have long occupied a useful and honorable place in our democracy, command the respect of all, and have made worthwhile contributions to society as a whole. Members of such bodies are banded together, as a rule, in support of some great principle to which they are intensely devoted.

There are other organizations which come into being under the stress of temporarily prevailing conditions, and when those conditions change and pass away, these organizations pass out of existence some having exerted a beneficial influence in the direction of reform and progress; others having little but a trail of disillusionment and loss behind them.

It would be impossible to even list, let alone classify, the organizations now in existence making appeal for the support of the public, and it is not the intention of this article to make any such attempt. Rather at this time it is proposed to direct attention to one particular organization, to which no great publicity has been given in past years, but which has been engaged in quietly, but none the less effectively, promoting a cause in which the people of Canada ought to take a very keen and active interest. On former occasions the attention of readers of this column has been drawn to other worthwhile organizations, consequently is now singling out one specific organization for a word of commendation we are making no new departure.

The organization now referred to—possibly we should refer to it in the plural and say organizations—are the Fish and Game clubs or leagues of the various provinces. These organizations are province-wide, not confined to sportsmen alone, but wide open to the naturalist and all lovers of wild life, whether they hunt with a gun or a camera or the notebook of the scientist, for, in the final analysis, the interests of these are common to all.

The objects of these organizations are to promote wild life research; by an educational campaign in the minds of people the cardinal rules and laws of nature and the necessity of giving to nature the assistance of the human element, where necessary, in order that the happiness which comes from plenty may continue to exist; to secure the passage of the necessary laws to prevent extinction of declining species and to ensure the rigid observance of those laws; to endeavor to maintain the necessary surface water supply, natural cover, trees and food conducive to a bountiful supply of useful wild life, and to control or eliminate those of its enemies which threaten its continued existence.

From this abbreviated outline of objects it will be seen that, in promoting them, these organizations are likewise promoting the welfare of all, irrespective of whether they are directly interested in the preservation of wild bird and animal life or not. For example, agriculturists and livestock men, in recent years, have seen the wisdom and necessity of conserving surface water supplies brought close home to them. Equally so, in the wisdom and necessity of protecting trees from wholesale destruction in order that one of the main sources of surface water supplies should not likewise be destroyed.

Had a people we have devoted far too little thought and study to the many forces and factors nicely balanced by nature to make this world a habitable, productive and beautiful land, and we have proceeded in our ignorance to do many things which have worked to our own injury with little benefit and at a tremendous loss to ourselves and succeeding generations in our country. We must work with nature with knowledge and understanding, not in direct opposition to nature, if we are to survive and prosper.

Apart, therefore from the attractiveness and great interest in the great variety of wild animal, bird and fish life given to any country, the material conditions which make such wild life possible are likewise the conditions which give beauty to a country and provide what may be regarded as the basic foundation upon which the productivity of the land rests, for without water and natural shelter the land would become a desert.

For these reasons, amongst others, Canadians should support organizations, some like the Fish and Game Clubs, if not by enrolment as active members therein, at least by extending their sympathy, support, and co-operation in achieving the objects for which such organizations exist. In a word, every Canadian should be a protector of Canada's wild life, and alert and ready to assist in maintaining those natural conditions which alone make wild life possible.

Most Import Grain

Manchuria Will Require Extra Supplies To Feed Population

For the first time in many years, Manchuria will, this year, have to import grain in order to keep its over 30,000,000 people fed.

Because of lack of rain, it is feared that this year's crops of millet and other grains will be a failure, except in favored districts, and already the government of Manchukuo has made arrangements to import 50,000 tons of rice from Saigon, Rangoon and Bangkok. Additional large purchases are contemplated.

The people of Manchuria are not rice eaters, like the Chinese further south. They subsist normally almost entirely upon millet and kaoliang, a species of maize.

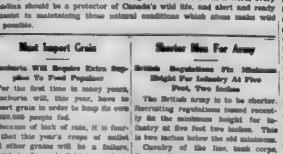
Shorter Men For Army

British Regulations Fix Minimum Height For Infantry At Five Feet, Two Inches

The British army is to be shorter. Recruiting regulations issued recently fix the minimum height for infantry at five feet two inches. This is two inches below the old minimum, and Cavalry of the line, tank corps, Royal Engineers, army ordnance corps may all accept recruits one inch below the minimum previously stipulated, provided they are otherwise fit.

The war office is determined, to view of the dearth of recruits, to bring the army up to full establishment.

The larger a bird happens to be, the longer its life span.



Latest Method Detects Fingerprints On Cloth

Will Preserve Them Indefinitely After They Are Found

A new technic capable of developing fingerprints left on cloth—such as a snapshot negative is developed —has been added to the New York police department's bag of tricks.

The method, an indirect product of the Hauptmann case, includes the important accomplishment of preserving the original prints after they are found. Chemical baths bring out and fix the prints.

Shortly after the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped, Dr. Erastus M. Hudson, a specialist in body chemistry who makes fingerprints a hobby, was called to Hopewell, N.J., to examine the ladder used in the crime.

Using an iodine gas process, he found 500 prints where police had found none with the old powder-dusting method. Incidentally, some of the prints was identified.

Dr. Hudson was invited to direct the New York police department's crime-fighting research in this field. The successful use of silver nitrate solutions on paper, cardboard and clothe of light shade, and calcium sulphide on darker fabrics, followed.

The treatment brings chemical transformation in the cells in the wax of which fingerprints are made, causing the tiny lines to become apparent in the print. The prints may be several years old.

The new technic is superior to the formerly employed methods in developing suspected surfaces with colored powder. It was said, because the powder-dusting is effective only when the wax is fresh.

Strange Inventions

Weird Array Of Gadgets At Chicago Congress

Dressed by their own president as "nuts", the gadgeteers of the 14th annual national inventors congress brought to Chicago a strange array of bloodhounds, buttonhooks and gadgets.

Among things which attracted spectators who viewed the exhibits of 700 inventors and 3,500 manufacturers and distributors were "rubber hose" mattress, pneumatic ladder, and a hen's nest which separates layers from liars.

A bright lays an egg she automatically releases a latch which allows her to stroll out into the yard where she is layed. No cackling. The only door open to biddy is the one which permits her to enter another yard which big, bad men cannot enter, another kind of surface water supplies should not be destroyed.

"Many inventors are nuts, as I can," said Albert C. Burns, of Oakland, Cal., president of the congress. "But don't forget it's the nuts who generate ideas which develop into fortunes."

In the home life sector also was the "lullaby beanie" which, at the touch of a button, plays lullabies, or remote control rocking for baby.

Fair Plans Well Under Way

Social Credit System Only Solution of Present Day Problems

Plans for the celebration of the 20th. Annual Fair are now well advanced and a meeting of the Directors is called for Saturday night to complete details of arrangements. Every effort is being made to stage the best fair of the thirty years and special arrangements will be made to accommodate the old timers of the district and invitations are out to a large number of former residents who are now living at distant points to attend the fair and renew their acquaintances of former days.

Plans call for the photographing of all who are in attendance who were also present at the first fair in 1906; a number have already intimated that they intend to be present when the photo is taken. Prizes awarded to the occasion are being offered for the oldest resident of the district who attends the fair on either day, while another prize is offered for the person longest resident in the area covered by the regional map; old timers are requested to register their names at the office at the fair grounds on either day of the Fair and state their age and the length of residence in the district.

Special care will this year be given to young children whose mothers desire to attend the shows; a trained woman will be in charge of the young-sters in a safe place and no one need have any fear of leaving the young-sters in her care.

Reduction for the boys and girls camps is advancing very satisfactorily and all who wish to register should do so just as soon as possible in order to secure rooms in the dormitory of the School of Agriculture. Instructors are being provided by the Provincial Dept. of Agriculture and interesting classes have been planned; the sports directors are lining up the games and entertainment and a most interesting session will be held; parents are urged to give their boys and girls a holiday at the camps.

Advance tickets are now on sale by various young people throughout the district. Strips of four tickets worth 25c each, are on sale for the price of one dollar; attached to each strip is a lucky number which the purchaser retains, the stub to be drawn on the last day of the Fair for valuable prizes. Prospective purchasers are reminded that last year one strip of tickets did not prove enough for the average family. The sale of advance tickets will end definitely at noon on Wednesday, July 31st. Purchase young men from your favorite leader. Offer the competitors a chance to earn a bicycle too.

The baseball tournament to draw the most outstanding teams and will provide an interesting final day. The softball tournament for girls is being staged on the second day along with the horse and running races and the Western Canada circus attractions will provide thrills and fun twice daily from the grandstand.

Prospective exhibitors are making some numerous than usual enquiries being received daily from persons who desire to show at the 20th. Farmers farmer in the district has some thing to show, and the more exhibitors just a little better than the neighbor's the handiwork there is no excellent excuse for the man or woman to compete with others at the same time to set a fair little profit from the prize list. The master kept with the hounds, which hotted on hunting scent,Bav fox, took no notice of it. Dies In Poverty

Hero Was Decorated With Medals, But Could Not Get Old Age Pension

They pinned medals on Salvatore Bracco, Italian-born American seaman, a few years ago for his heroism in two rescues on the high seas.

When the S.S. President Harding saved the crew of the stricken freighter Ignacio Florit in 1926, Bracco was the first into the lifeboat which took 38 men from the freighter just as it sank. He got medals from five cities and a scroll from Benito Mussolini for that.

Greater recognition came in 1929 when the S.S. America rescued the crew of the ship Florida off the Virginia Capes. First to volunteer for the lifeboat crew, Bracco directed the rescue work. Former Mayor James J. Walker gave him a medal for his heroism when his ship reached New York. Later he received the congressional medal of honor, two more from Italy and six from American cities.

Bracco Bracco died in New Jersey recently. Ill with heart trouble, Bracco had been supporting his wife and son on a weekly relief grant of $7.50. "Takes who pinned medals on me and shook my hand wouldn't give me a job," he complained bitterly to his son a week before he died

Cavell Grave Neglected

Bowing Place Of Martyred War Nurse Is Uncared For

Complaint that the grave of Edith Cavell, the martyred World War nurse, is neglected have aroused indignation in England. Visitors to Norwich declare that evidently no care is given it. Nurse Cavell was born at Swardeston, a village four miles from Norwich, and lies buried in Life's Green, close to Norwich Cathedral. Some time ago the public was aroused to protest against the scant attention paid to her last resting place, which many people from all parts have come on pilgrimage to see. The responsible authorities, apparently the Dean and Chapter took no notice at hand, but to-day fresh criticism is made of the condition of the grave One observer declared that it is covered with rough gravel and seemingly had been a playground of dogs On it lay the remains of a bunch of artificial poppies and a few bedraggled daffodils.

Disaster Strikes Again

National Youth Administration Offering Americas Youths A Chance In The World

President Roosevelt has established a "national youth administration" to meet what he called a "most emotional need" by offering unemployed youth of the United States "their chance in school, their turn at apprenticeship and their opportunity for jobs."

The new agency will be under the work relief program. The president set aside $50,000,000 to be used in providing work, supervised jointly by private industry, in offering high school and college training for those between 16 and 25, and in giving relief to youths.

The new undertaking was put under the direction of Miss Josephine Roche, assistant secretary of the treasury, and Aubrey Williams, assistant to Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator.

Mr. Roosevelt, in announcing the plan to aid an estimated 500,000 of young men and girls, said:

"I have determined we shall do something for the nation's unemployed youth because we can ill afford to lose the skill and energy of those young men and women."

An average payment of $15 a month for youths on work relief was fixed; $6 a month would be given to those working in high school and $15 a month to youths in college.

Lepracy Cure

Report French Scientists Have Obtained A Positive Culture

Two French scientists have obtained a positive culture of the leprosy bacillus for the first time in medical history, it was announced before the French Academy of Medicine.

Dr. Albert Vaudremer, distinguished bacteriologist, aided by a young woman assistant, Mlle. Brun, presented the results of seven years' research to the academy. Their experiment resulted, for the first time since 1871, when the Norwegian scientist Armauer Hansen isolated the leprosy bacillus, in a positive culture of the deadly organism.

Dr. Vaudremer said the bacillus so cultivated in his experiments was agglutinated by serum taken from leprosy sufferers and that this serum destroyed within 24 hours the leprosy bacillus.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 14

NAOMI

(A Woman Of Faith and Courage)

Golden text: "A woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised." Proverbs 31:30.

Devotional reading: Proverbs 31: 10-30.

Lesson: Book of Ruth.

Explanations And Comments

Naomi and Husband Leave Bethlehem for Moab. Ruth 1:1-5. To escape a famine in the days of the judges, an ancient Hebrew family of Bethlehem, Elimelech and his wife Naomi with their two sons, went to Canaan for the land of Moab, a land unloved by the Hebrews because it had blocked the passage of their forefathers through the desert and had allied itself with Midian against Israel.

The sons each married a daughter of Moab. Two years passed, and Naomi and her daughters-in-law, Orpah and Ruth, were left alone, the father and mother having found their graves in the alien soil.

The Pleading of Naomi and Orpah. Ruth 1:6-14. Naomi determined to return to her home in Bethlehem, for her daughters accompanied her a short distance on her way. Parting with Naomi, they turned back home in the East. When Naomi thought they had gone far enough to deserting respect for her, she stopped to dismiss them. "Go," she bade, "return each of you to her mother's house," she urged: "Jehovah deal kindly with you as ye have dealt with the dead and with me."

"Jehovah grant you that ye may find rest, each of you, in the house of her husband," Naomi continued. The two girls broke out in loud weeping, but we will return with you to your people," they said. Naomi urged the quiet upon their return, reminding them that she had no more sons to marry them. It was the law that the next of kin in the family of a dead husband who died childless must marry his widow. Again they wept afresh. (Moffatt's translation) and Orpah sadly turned back. Ruth clung to Naomi.

Naomi and Ruth Arrive in Bethlehem. Ruth 1:15-22. Naomi in the town Bethlehem began to talk amazedly, and a great throng, it would seem, when they saw Naomi after her long absence. It was a severe ordeal for Naomi, and for the time being she became bitter, and accused God of dealing bitterly with her. For the contrast of her present condition with that of her happy past in Bethlehem was too great. She had gone away with a husband and sons, and now had returned without them. "Is this the woman exclaimed, "Is this Naomi? (Weizsaecker's translation) and Naomi (Wisaecka, Pleasant), call me Mara (Bitter)." Her bitterness and peace came again to Naomi.

Abandon System

Ontario Is To Discontinue Relief Work

Hon. Peter Heenan, Ontario minister of lands and forests and northern development, announced at Port Arthur at a banquet in celebration of the opening of the Great Lakes section of the Trans-Canada highway that the Ontario government is, in the future, let contracts for its road building.

The relief camp system, under which jobless worked at highway construction, was at least twice as expensive as the old contract system, he said. A saving of two and a half millions would be made by the government, he said. A mile of road could be built by a contractor, he said, for cost of the relief camp system.

Under the camp system, Mr. Heenan said, there is $5 a month allowance for the men, a section of road in northwestern Ontario had cost $55,000. A contractor would build it for half that amount and would have paid fair wages.

To Fit The Crime

In England, says the Toronto Star, motorists convicted of reckless driving have their driving licenses suspended for four years. In Missouri drivers in the policemen does not arrest a speeder and cause him to be fined. He stops the car, lets the air out of all four tires so that the speeder has to tarry a while and pump his tires full again.

All men are born free and equal, but look at them get married.

Little Journeys In Science

ATOMS

(By Gordon R. Grant, M.A.)

Many years ago John Dalton, an English schoolmaster, gave to science a very important theory concerning the structure of matter. This theory, which is known as the atomic theory of matter, assumes that every chemical element, such as oxygen, iron, or gold, is made up of small indivisible particles called atoms; that the atoms of different chemical elements have different weights; but those of a particular element are alike in chemical weight; and that chemical compounds, such as common salt and water, are formed by the chemical combination of atoms of different elements. Thus, an atom of common salt combines with an atom of chlorine to form the smallest particle, known as a molecule, of table salt, while two atoms of hydrogen combine with one atom of oxygen to form a molecule of water.

Recent studies of the properties of radio-active substances have proved the existence of particles still more minute than atoms; so Dalton's idea of the atom has been modified somewhat. The modern scientist believes that the atom is composed of tiny particles of negative and positive electricity, respectively known as electrons and protons. Although a proton weighs as much as 1,835 electrons, its positive charge is exactly equal to the electron's negative charge. Each pulls and is pulled by the other.

There are 92 elements and hence there are 92 kinds of atoms. Hydrogen atoms, consisting of one proton and one electron, are the lightest. Uranium atoms are the heaviest, having 238 protons and 146 electrons. In all atoms, the protons are alike and interchangeable, like standardized bricks used in the walls of a house. It is believed that the electrons are revolving around the protons in much the same fashion as the earth revolves around the sun.

Under normal conditions the diameter of a hydrogen atom is estimated to be about a hundred millionth of an inch. Placed in line, these millionth of an inch), which appears to be about twice the usual distance of its electron from its nucleus. The figures are alike quite incomprehensible

Farm Women's Week School of Agriculture

FOUR DAYS — AUG. 6th TO 9th

A short holiday and rest feature that is growing in popularity is Farm Women's Week, which is held at the School of Agriculture, Vermilion. The idea of this rest period originated among the women's organizations, and the main purpose is a rest and holiday for a few days in the dormitory and on the beautiful school grounds. There will be lectures and discussions on various subjects of interest to women, which will include the garden and the flowers.

A full programme of four days is arranged and while the sessions open on Tuesday August 6th, if it is more convenient, guests may arrive the afternoon before. The course closes the evening of August 9th but again, if more convenient for the trip home, arrangements may be made to stay until the next morning.

The school dormitories afford comfortable living quarters - no meals to plan or cheating up to think about. Board and room will be furnished for $1.50 per day. It will be necessary to bring towels, soap and toilet articles. A note-book and pencil will be found useful. Arrangements are made to look after babies and small children whom it is necessary to bring; no charge is made for children under five. For children from 5 to 10 years the charge will be 75c per day; over 10, $1.50. It is hoped that it will not be necessary to bring children over 5.

The course is open to any women in Alberta up to the limit of the accommodation-150 at each school. It is not necessary to come for the whole week. Those who wish to drive in for a day will be made welcome.

It is understood that many students of the school are arranging to have their mothers attend this rest and pleasure course, to live in the same dormitory, eat in the same dining-room and spend the same class rooms that were found to be so enjoyable during the winter.

DERWENT COMMUNITY HALL EXEMPT FROM TAXES

Whether a hall erected by the Ukrainia "Hitch" Association at Derwent was used for community purposes such as to entitle it to be exempt from taxes was a question which came before His Honor Judge Dubuc at the chambers sittings of the district court here Tuesday. In view of the fact that Ukrainians represented 90 per cent of the population of the district the Judge ruled that under the Act the building was entitled to be exempt. Derwent has already a community hall owned by the village. The Judge, however, learned that he was not here establishing a precedent. The appeal from the village assessment was disallowed and costs awarded the respondents. J. W. G. Morrison appeared for the village in both cases. W. Romanish, secretary, represented the "Hitch" association.

Orders for sale were granted Mr. Morrison and Mr. Adam. Probates were also granted Mr. Morrison and Mr McCorry.

One serious aspect of soil drifting that is seldom mentioned is the impossibility of keeping the dirt out of the home during dust storms. Grit and grime must be endured in food, in beds, in furniture and on the floors until the wind subsides. Then it is necessary to clean thick layers of loose soil from everything, only to have the experience repeated with the next wind storm.

Indications from representatives of the Canadian Pacific Railway throughout the world are that pleasure travel this year will be on a greater scale than any time in the last two years, bringing more visitors to Canada from the United States, Europe, and the Orient, and pouring millions of dollars into Canadian pocketbooks.

Western Canada is expecting a good share of this traffic and the Canadian Pacific Railway is making extensive preparations there in its hotels and bungalow camps. Rates have been arranged for special entertainments at Banff Springs Hotel, which opens on June 15, and Chateau Lake Louise, which opens on June 21.

With Banff or its sister resort, Lake Louise, as headquarters, tours can be made to such well-known places as Johnston Canyon, Moraine Lake and the Valley of the Ten Peaks, the Lakes in the Clouds, the Plain of the Six Glaciers, the Great Divide, Wapta Lake Bungalow, Yoho Valley and Two bungalow camp, Takakkaw Falls, the historic Kicking Horse Pass, Mount Stephen, and the great mountains near Field, B.C.

The large Canadian Pacific Railway hotel at Banff is equipped in every way for the comforts of visitors; the hot radio-active sulphur springs have been turned into a swimming pool, side by side with a pool filled with fresh water; the rolling floor of the valley has been made into a picturesque golf course; there are fast, well kept tennis courts.

Throughout the summer there is fun and plenty to do at this beautiful resort, with special events at short intervals, starting with the Calgary Stampede which will be held from July 8th to 13th and two motorists with world-wide membership will hold their official settings, the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies from July 30th to 20th, and the Trail Hikers of the Canadian Rockies from August 2nd to 6th. Indian Days will return to Banff from July 19th to 21st, when Western Indians in their native costumes will re-enact ancient tribal ceremonies. The Banff Golf Week, with the Prince of Wales Trophy as the main prize, is from August 26th to 31st.

GRAIN EXCHANGE MAKES OFFER TO AID PROBE INTO OPERATIONS

Reveals Embargo Suggested Months Ago That Appointment of Peel Man as Government Supervisor Would be Welcomed.

In order to clarify its position in view of statements made at Ottawa, the Winnipeg Grain Exchange has issued the following statement:

"On Friday afternoon the Prime Minister in a speech in the House of Commons reiterated the allegation originally made by Mr. John I. McFarland last October that foreign grain firms were engaged in a bear raid in the Winnipeg market. This allegation was investigated by the Council of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and was fully answered in a statement issued and published in the press November 2, 1934, in the following terms:

"On October 1st Winnipeg newspapers carried an interview with Mr. John I. McFarland, who is in charge of the government's wheat operations, in which he stated that he would recommend to the government at Ottawa that an investigation be made into the selling of wheat on the Winnipeg market and would urge the government to make representations to the governments of Argentine and the United Kingdom that they take similar action in regard to the futures markets in Buenos Aires and Liverpool. About October 6th a mischievous despatch purporting to be the inside story of an organized bear raid on the Winnipeg grain market during the two previous weeks appeared in many of the leading newspapers in the eastern Canada. This despatch originated apparently from some news paper service in Winnipeg. It made free use of Mr. McFarland's name and comments would lead many people to believe that figures and supposed facts given in it must have originated from Mr. McFarland's organization. The article is inaccurate and misleading; there was no condition existing in the trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange that would justify such a story as really the fact situation, and to the best of our knowledge that is just what it is. There is no evidence in the figures showing the month's position of grain firms as at September 15th and October 1st as announced by the Council of the Exchange from the Chesterton House, and which have been disclosed to Mr. McFarland, that any bear raid was attempted. Mr. McFarland has also been advised by the Council that the international firms whose names have been mentioned in this connection were ready to authorize the Clearing House to make the figures showing their trading available to him.

"The international investigation suggested by Mr. McFarland on October 1st should in our opinion, not be lost sight of. There can be no reasonable objection to the fact that our greatest need is to export more Canadian wheat, and if there is any hope that an independent international investigation into the situation in the Canadian, Argentine and English markets will disclose anything in the actions of government agencies or individuals that is making it difficult for us to market our wheat abroad, it should be undertaken at once. It would obviously be in the interest of the whole country as well as of our wheat producers. It would, we are sure, be welcomed by the grain trade of Canada.

"The Council of the Exchange is prepared to afford facilities for investigation of the trading operations of all its members, without exception, by competent and impartial persons, if such an investigation is deemed to be in the public interest, and has previously advised Mr McFarland that the Exchange would welcome the appointment by the Dominion Government, to the position of Grain Exchange supervisor, of George McIvor, who has been assistant to Mr. McFarland since December 1930 and who previously to that was General Sales Manager of the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers Limited (the Pool Co-operative Selling Agency). The office of the Council that it was prepared to afford facilities for investigation of the trading operations of all its members, without exception, and as to the appointment of a Grain Exchange supervisor, as suggested by the Hon. Dymnik, has never been withdrawn. Representatives of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange now in Ottawa are prepared and anxious to appear before the special committee of the House of Commons which has just been appointed, to meet the allegations which have been made by the Prime Minister in this regard and the supposed personal short position, and to supply any information which the committee may require."

HYMAN NEWS

The election campaign of the Communist election committee is going strong. There is a lot of interest a many the voters who claim that they have no other way out to vote as the forthcoming provincial elections than communist. The reason for this is that they have had enough of promises from the other parties with no action in the dire needs of the vast majority of dole-ridden farmers. The full detailed platform of the Communist Election Committee will be out from the printers and will be distributed on the streets in this constituency, according to the campaign manager, who claims that the contents of the platform should be in the hands of every voter.

Sale of new Ford V-8s in the Minnedosa district is going strong this year. According to figures produced by Mr. T. I. Ashworth for the month of June he had delivered 12 new cars. Mr. Ashworth is the local Ford dealer and is known for his square dealing which has helped him in sell ten used cars for the month of June on the new pop-ular 5-6 Ford plan. In proportion to the dealers quota, Mr. Ashworth stood second by June 10th in the whole of the province. Full expectations are that he will be in the first place by the end of the month. This stands for the sale of new and used cars.

A women's rally, the first of its kind, held at Shawn last Sunday, proved a success. The women gathered from various points to discuss their position in the present elections. Keen interest was shown as the speakers, mainly women, outlined the present conditions that the vast majority of people find themselves, especially the poor people of youth. Wm. Hallun, the Communist candidate, addressed the gathering and stated that his platform is composed of demands to any government that be in power. If elected he'll carry the struggle into the legislative buildings and carry it on there. A few more of these women's rallies are being organized throughout the constituency.

The final high school 1935 examinations are over. The students were packing and knashing and saying good-bye to each other. Some said: "What a relief! Oh-hum; results is the next problem."

In the evening of June 28th the high school students union held a lawn party by the school premises. Staff and school board were invited. After lunch, J. Berezansky, J. Sosnowsky, and Alison Dubett spoke on behalf of the school. Miss Conahan and Mr. Wm. Terecke spoke on behalf of the staff and Mr. Wm. Hallun on behalf of the Board. An enjoyable dance was held later in the evening.

Good-bye to high school students; we will meet you again in September. The same goes to the teaching staff who are also away on holidays.

FOR ECONOMICAL TRANSPORTATION

THE CANADA YEAR BOOK 1934-35

The publication of the 1934-35 edition of the Canada Year Book is announced by the General Statistician, Branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The Canada Year Book is the official statistical annual of the country and contains a thoroughly up-to-date account of the natural resources of the Dominion and their development, the history of the country, its institutions, its demography, the different branches of production, trade, transportation, finance, education, etc.—in brief, a comprehensive study within the limits of a single volume of the social and economic condition of the Dominion.

The 1934-35 Canada Year Book extends to over 1,250 pages, dealing with every phase of the national life and more especially with those aspects of statistical measurement. Attention may be specially directed to the statistical summary of the progress of Canada included in the introductory matter and giving a picture in figures of the remarkable progress which the country has made since the early seasons of the Dominion was taken in 1871, sixty-four years ago.

Owing to the urgent need for economy in the distribution of Government publications, it has become necessary to make a charge to all individuals receiving the Canada Year Book. Persons requiring the Year Book may obtain it from the King's Printer, Ottawa, as long as the supply lasts, at the price of $1.50, which covers merely the cost of paper, printing and binding. By a special concession, ministers of religion, bona-fide students and school teachers may obtain copies at the nominal price of 50c each.

hometown sports day held July 6th. Six teams entered. Beauvallon won the first game from Minitonas by a score of 8-6. Myrnam registered a victory over Derwent 10-1. The final 9-inning game between Myrnam and Beauvallon lacked interest to the fans owing to its one-sidedness, the score being 16-8 for Myrnam. The batteries, Beauvallon, Red Hins, P. Minkie; Myrnam, Bill Phillips, Phil Delaney.

The sports day as a whole was enjoyed by a few hundred people, but owing to unsettled weather the gathering was not as large as in previous years. An aeroplane piloted by Mr Kilbuch from Chipman drew quite a number attracted spectators who went up for a spin. The day finished up by a show put on by Mr Sigler and a dance. Both events drew a crowded house.

MRS. (REV.) SIMONS PASSES AWAY AT EDMONTON

Resided with Her Husband For Many Years in Vermilion

Mrs. Edith McCulloch Simons, beloved wife of the Reverend William Simons, passed away at the family residence in Edmonton South on Friday morning, July 5, at the age of 65 years. She has resided in more her husbandes her loving husband, two daughters and one son, Mrs. W. Megahy, Evelyn Simons and Lorne Simons, all of Edmonton; three sisters and one brother, Mrs. T. Henderson of Edmonton, Mrs. E. Lowes of Regina, Mrs. W. Rogers of Los Angeles and Mr. R. Cameron of Winnipeg. The funeral service took place Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the First Presbyterian church. Interment was in the Edmonton cemetery. The Rev. H. S. Mekeel and the Rev. Dr. Bentburgh officiated at the service. The funeral was largely attended.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Simons reside 4 in Vermilion for a great many years, Mr. Simons being the first pastor of the local Presbyterian church; as a fact, he contributed substantially towards the erection of the church building by his own work. His idea at that time was to make the church functional so that it would be a centre of various church activities which at that time had not developed to the extent that they have since. The church was built about 28 years ago. During the time Rev. and Mrs. Simons ministered at Vermilion the deceased endeared herself to the people irrespective of whether they were members of their congregation or not. Mrs. Simons was a woman of great personal charm and active in all church and philanthropic work in those early days of Vermilion.

SMALL ATTENDANCE AT C. C. F. MEETING

Speaking under the auspices of the U.F.A., Walter Mentz, C.C.F. speaker, addressed a meeting in the Orange hall on Friday night last. He presented arguments against the Alberta Social Credit plan and followed with the C.C.F. platform. The meeting was poorly attended and there were numerous impertinent and questions by Communist adherents and Social Credit-ers.

VERMILION CITIZENS HONORED ON SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

A delightful surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Baker on Thursday July 4. The occasion being the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Brimacombe. During the evening little Miss June Long and Master Harry Boyd, dressed as Bride and Groom, presented Mr. and Mrs. Brimacombe with a beautiful bouquet of cut flowers. This was followed by the presentation of a beautiful floral chair to the honored couple from their many friends and acquaintances in Vermilion and district, as well as the presentation of a beautiful floor lamp from their five sons.

Some seventy five guests were present. Noted among them were the Rev. and Mrs. Kerr of Camrose, who were also guests visiting in Vermilion.

During the early part of the evening refreshments were served by the ladies, immediately after the presentation ceremony, community singing was entered into by all. The singing was interspersed by a short mono logue given by Mr. M. G. Brimacombe as well as delightful solos rendered by Rev. Mr. Boyd and Fred Brimacombe. Mr. Kerr then delighted the gathering with some scottish recitations.

Mr. and Mrs. Brimacombe are old timers of the Vermilion district. Mr. Brimacombe came from the east in 1905 and Mrs. Brimacombe reached her first abode in the west at Bowtell in 1906. The couple were married at the Presbyterian Manse Vermilion on July 4 1917, Rev. Mr. Wm. Simons officiating. They are still residing in the same house in which they made their 1st home.

LOCAL NEWS

Mrs. Archie Little and two children are visiting at the home of Mrs. Little's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Smith of Auburndale.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cooper of Edmonton are to be congratulated on the birth of a daughter at the Islay Hospital on Tuesday morning July 2.

The Vermilion baseball team was defeated at the Lloydminster Sports on Wednesday. They lost their first start however to Neilburg by a score of 1 to 0 in a real ball game and pitchers battle.

Several members of the ball team intend to join Standard's inquiring reporter that Mrs. Brimacombe accompanied them to Lloydminster on Wednesday and that "Jud" spent the afternoon fishing with the boys and is proud of honor. Ex-Premier Anderson. It appears that a good many of their boy friends were present, remember "Jud" they also attended the same Toronto High school.

Vermilion Defeats Wainwright 20th July

The Standard staff sure know our old baseball players well, there are them but they don't know the fast growing boys in the town so we don't blame our reporter for the fact that he was without last week's Herald. Manager Brimacombe brought the players up to Standard office and was mistaken for Clayton Layko.

A large number of our citizens have been passing through town lately en route to Manitoba and several have been in the majority. A specialty of Registrations travelling east. Lately have noticed Cars bearing Ontario plates also numerous Quebec plates. Quite a many these latter days. Lately all from tourists coming to the west to seek fame and fortune. Some are well dressed and others spoken colored gentlemen on a tour thru these parts for the first time.

TWO DIAMOND ANNIVERSARIES.

On looking through some back files a short time ago, the account of the diamond wedding anniversary of Mr. David Gaston and the late Mrs. Gaston was noted. They were married on August 31, 1871 and celebrated the diamond anniversary on August 31st, 1931. Thus the diamond anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Prince's short time ago was the second of these rare celebrations to be held in Vermilion, and not the first as stated at the time in the standard.

OUR GRAVEL

Judging from the appearance of the so-called gravel being hauled from the pit west of the town, it is just about time that attempts were made to locate a new gravel bed somewhere within reach. The hitherto A1 gravel which used to be procurable from the present pit, has entirely played out, a mixture of sand and clay being what is hauled now. This is practically wasted labor in our estimation as it is just on the roads and disappears within a very short time without making any lasting improvement.

A three-year study by the Division of Economic Plant Production of the Experimental Farms Branch has shown that Canadian home-grown flax seed has given a higher yield of fibre-bet a lower yield of seed per acre than imported seed.

The cost of living, which reached its peak in 1920, has declined; but on the 1913 basis it is still much higher than the price of gasoline. In 1934 the cost of living was 20.7 per cent. higher but the price of gasoline was 28.4 per cent lower than in 1913. The data for this graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

LIVING COSTS MORE BUT GASOLINE COSTS LESS

THE cost of living in Canada in 1934 was approximately 21 per cent. higher and the price of gasoline 28 per cent. lower than in 1913. The price of gasoline never rose to as high a peak as did the cost of living. Since 1920 gasoline prices have declined almost continuously to the present low level.

Imperial Oil has always sought for economical ways of doing business and has always passed on to the consumer the benefits of such economies. Imperial Oil operates on a very small profit and in 1934 earned an average of slightly more than one-half of one cent per gallon on gasoline.

Not only is gasoline cheaper than ever—it is better than ever. Imperial Oil research laboratories played a leading part in developing fuels for modern motors. Imperial gasoline of 1935 is a far better gasoline than that of 1913 yet it sells at a price considerably lower.

LONDON, July 1.—Thirteen million copies of the ministry of transport's new highway code containing rules of conduct for pedestrians and motorists will be distributed to the households of Britain in a few days.

This will be the largest distribution of government literature ever attempted.

Since the Great War $1,300,000,000 has been spent on road reconstruction in the United Kingdom including 600 miles of new roads. The ministry of transport is nevertheless proceeding with a further five year construction program.

THIS DATE 16 YEARS AGO — 1919

Messrs. Giles, Woodruff, Dupuit, and Sherwood, stock farmers northeast of Vermilion, left this Wednesday morning by team on a three weeks trip into the country north of the Saskatchewan river with the intention of locating crowsnest fields for their cattle. A number of sportsmen and it necessary under existing conditions—with a big shortage of feed in sight—to either dispose of a large percentage of their cattle or locate other feed grounds.

ISLAY News

SPORTS DAY BIG SUCCESS

Favored by good weather, the latest Islay sports proved to be considerably better than for a long time. In the first baseball game Vermilion defeated Kitscoty and in the second Vegreville disposed of Pendant. In a hang-up final game, after taking an early lead, Vermilion went down to Vegreville in men's softball only two teams competing, each of the four entries—Kenilworth and Islay. The fans, however, were treated to a real battle and what looks like anybody's game was eventually won by Kenilworth 16-15.

In the ladies' softball Lindbergh took the money by disposing first of Kenilworth and then of Vermilion.

Men's athletics resulted as follows: 100 yards, 1 Measom, Lloydminster; 2, M. Allen, Islay. Long jump, 1, Measom, Lloyd.; 2, M. Allen Islay; Hop step and jump, 1, M. Allen; 2, Measom. High jump, 1, R. Carter, Islay; 2, M. Allen, Islay.

At night a big crowd danced to the music of the Vermilion Orioles and this concluded a successful day.

We have heard rumors of a dance Friday night in the arena with music to be supplied by the Burt orchestra. Thirty five cents we understand is the price. Definite information, however, may have been issued by the time this appears in print.

ISLAY PIONEERS CELEBRATE GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY OF WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Gilchrist Married at Glenarm, Ont., July 1, 1885.

A very happy and all too rare an event took place in Islay on Monday, July 1st, when Mr. and Mrs. Huch Gilchrist celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding. The commemoration took place at their home in the village, and was in the form of a family reunion, children and their families coming from their various homes to be present on this memorable occasion.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Huch Gilchrist, formerly Hannah Driscoll, was solemnized in Upsarra, Ont., on July 1 1885, by the Rev. D. Maclise old pastor of the Knox Presbyterian church there for 35 years. The couple first made their home in Hartley, Ont. To the union four children were born. Nelson, Nellie, Roy who died five years ago, and Gordon.

In 1906 they came west with their family and Mr Gilchrist homesteaded three miles south of the town in the Kenilworth district. Here the family lived, the children grew up, and this was the parents' home until a few years ago when they moved in to Islay to reside. Mr. and Mrs. Gilchrist are pioneers of the district and enjoy the friendship and esteem of all whom they have met. Mrs. Gilchrist always has been and still is an active worker in the women's organizations in the church.

The celebration of the anniversary, taking as it did the form of a family reunion, was attended by their son Nelson, wife and children from Wilkinson, Alta.; daughter Nellie (Mrs L. McFadden) and Mr. McFadden from St. Albert, Alta; son Gordon, wife and child of Edmonton, and Mrs. Inslie Gilchrist, widow of the deceased son Roy, and children from Edmonton

Eighteen guests in all sat down to the wedding dinner, others present being Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jones and Miss Maude Breadtigan, Edmonton and James Carey, Islay. The dining table was centred by the three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride of fifty years ago herself, the cake was tastily decorated in suitable gold colors. The tables were decorated with roses and gold candlesticks.

Mrs Gilchrist wore a spray of orange blossoms, the same one that she wore at the wedding fifty years ago. At the close of the dinner, four suitable verses were read by Gordon The family presented their mother with a gold wrist watch and their father with a beautifully upholstered Morris chair.

During the day many friends called to pay their compliments, and to express best wishes for many more years of happiness to Mr. and Mrs Gilchrist

FORMER VERMILION GIRL MARRIED IN EDMONTON

ST. DENNIS—BURROWS

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Honorable R.G. and Mrs. Reid 10173 117 st. on Saturday, June 29 at 8:00 p.m. when Ethel Boyd, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Burrows of Mannville, Alberta was united in marriage to Roy Louis, son of John C. and the late Mrs. St. Dennis of Edmonton. The Reverend Mr. Method officiated. A buffet supper was served by Mrs. Reid to a few intimate friends of the bride and

FINE IMPOSED ON NEWBERRY FARMER

Assault Case Draws Capacity Audience

NEWBERRY, July 9.—The Community hall here was crowded to the door Monday afternoon to hear the assault case of Mrs. Gladys Hurst against her father-in-law, Albert Isert. Mr. Kaiser, police magistrate from Vermilion, heard the case on several times during the hearing he had to remonstrate with the crowd to be quiet—he would clear the court. A good deal of the merry-making feeling was caused by the witty asides of the presecuting counsel at the expense of some of the witnesses for the defence. Mr. Isert denied having struck the complainant during the scrap and loudly told the court that during the whole scrap he had never even as much as uttered a word — and when counsel asked him if all this time he was in the attitude of divine prayer there was almost a roar went up from the hall. Mr. Isert was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $20 and costs and he was besides bound over to keep the peace for one year.

J. W. G. Morrison, K.C., Vermilion represented Mrs. Isert while James McLeery, Kitscoty, appeared for the accused

LADY BESSBOROUGH GIFT

Their Excellencies Lord and Lady Bessborough intend leaving Canada to spend a few weeks at a Nantucket home which has been loaned to Lord Perby at its head for the purpose of receiving and receiving last attentions from the women of Canada who wish to present to Lady Bessborough a farewell gift as an evidence of the deep affection in which she is held throughout the Dominion. The gift will be distinctively Canadian in its character so that it may always serve to remind her of the Canada she loves so well. Mrs. Walsh has been asked by this committee to take charge of this movement in Alberta and this she has most willingly agreed to do. It is not intended to pursue any personal canvass for these funds. It is desired rather that contributions should come as the voluntary offering of every woman in Alberta who desires also to afford it desires to express in this way her appreciation of the charm and womanly characteristics which have made Her Excellency so much loved by us. The numerous women organizations in the Province are being asked to interest their members in this movement. The kindly assistance of the Press is being invoked to bring it before those who are not interested in any of these organizations. It is hoped that the response will be spontaneous and general. No matter how small each contribution may be it will be accepted as a tribute of good will and affection to the first lady of our land and it will be reported to the National Committee at Ottawa and duly acknowledged. Every one who is disposed and able to contribute to this fund is invited to send her subscription to Mrs. Walsh at Govern ment House Edmonton.

Main street was the scene of much activity on Thursday evening around six p.m. — First of all two gentlemen in a model T Ford ran over one brand new traffic cop, not only ran over him but failed to stop and dragged the gaily dressed director of traffic half a block, thanking him off at Law's garage, they continued on their way. They are now the object of the police's keenest diligence and woe betide them if the Chief ever catches them. Shortly afterward, a team took fright at some imagined danger, and dashed dramatically down the main street, disappearing in the west end

NEW GAS WELL COMES IN STRONG AT LLOYDMINSTER

Lloydminster, July 8.—The Lloydminster gas field was proved beyond any doubt today when the number one well of the Colony Oil and Gas Company blew in at 9 a. m. this morning. Experts say that the well will run at between 30 and 35 million cubic feet per day.

So great was the pressure that all the tools were blown out and the roar of the gas can be heard for miles.

Brought in by J. Messenger head driller of the company the well is proving even more than the nearby one well of the Lloydminster Gas Company, now supplying the town

The well is being capped this afternoon and work will be commenced on a second well almost immediately.

It is claimed by the drillers that there is every prospect of oil being found in this area

Be Careful!

On Dominion Day in a riot at Regina, precipitated by relief camp strikers when police attempted the arrest of their leaders, one man was killed in the neighborhood of one hundred persons more or less seriously injured, and damage done to property estimated at around $25,000. The news of this happening filled the papers newspapers extras flooded the streets, reports were telegraphed all over the continent, and cables carried the news to Great Britain and foreign lands. For a time it was almost the sole topic of conversation, and called forth questionings and discussions in the House of Commons. The Federal Government promised a searching investigation.

The Ontario Government is publishing a series of advertisements in the newspapers of that province. One such advertisement appearing almost simultaneously with the Regina riot says, "In Ontario, during 1934, there were nearly 10,000 automobile accidents. 512 people were killed, 8 900 people were injured and considerable property was damaged. The total cost of the property damage resulting from these 10,000 accidents, but it must have reached a total well up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, if not into the millions.

Here are two sets of figures two pictures if you will Just consider them for a moment

In the one instance, one man was killed and approximately 100 persons injured, most of them only slightly. Yet the whole Dominion is shocked, parliament is aroused the law has been ignored, flouted, a crime committed. Immediate government action is demanded by practically all the people.

In the other instance, over five hundred times as many people were killed, thousands were injured, millions were maimed and disabled for life property damage was enormous But only a passing mention in the local newspapers at the time of each accident, and possibly some casual local comment but generally speaking the public displays little concern and accepts the situation with smug complacency

Is it not time that the Canadian people shed their indifference in regard to these day by day highway tragedies and bestir themselves to put an end to these wholesale killings? The Ontario Government says in its advertisement that Ontario must start 'thinking' safety, that it must be evident to all thinking people that 'this must stop'.

But how is it to be stopped? It is quite correct to say that people must "think" safety, but they must put their thinking into actual practice and "act" safely. But, people will say, in the Regina incident the law was broken. But, so, too, was the law broken in the vast majority of these automobile accidents. Our present laws and our municipal by-laws, town with laws and regulations governing the operation of automobiles. Constituted authority has done its part in endeavoring to provide for safety, and to the best of its ability it endeavors to enforce these laws and regulations, but it is an enormous task over hundreds of thousands of miles of roads and highways.

There is only one way to stop manslaughter on the highways, and that is for the individual motorists to stop it—stop it by strictly obeying the laws which have been enacted for their protection and for the protection of others. It is disregard of the law that is the root cause of the trouble.

Motorists must discipline themselves, or be disciplined by the law. It is pointed out, for example, that there were more than 800 bicycle riders killed or injured in Ontario last year. Bicyclists, especially children, are often careless. This simply means that drivers of motor vehicles must be "twice" as careful. They must remember that they are in the heavier vehicle. At stop streets and intersections they must "stop". Instead of taking as many things for granted they should make sure that brakes, tires, lights, are effective; otherwise serious trouble may lie ahead.

Owing to economic conditions of recent years, many worn out and poorly equipped cars are being used. These should be conspicuously careful. New makes of cars are more powerful, speedier, and the drivers of them are under a greater responsibility than ever before. They must remember that the old cars do not go as speedily, and govern themselves accordingly when passing such cars. There are only a few "musts", there are many others that might be mentioned.

These motorists round out these laws and regulations. They delineate the "stop" signs, and there is no excuse while knowing these signs for their actions to contrary to law. But with the mounting toll of deaths and accidents there is bound to be more law, not less, greater restrictions instead of fewer of them. Public opinion will insist on this. If motorists desire to be free of so much law, they must refrain from being a law unto themselves; rather they must discipline themselves and not act as if they were above all law

On the other hand, pedestrians and others than motorists using the highways must recognize that motorists have certain rights which ought to be respected. It is largely by payment of license fees and gas taxes by motorists that our modern highways have been created and are maintained for the use of all. And accidents are by no means uncommon where the motorist is entirely blameless.

Canadians are reputed to be a law-abiding people. A riot is an exceptional occurrence in this country Law must be respected and obeyed. But in view of the awful death and accident toll on our highways, there should be must be not merely observance of the letter of the law, but the whole spirit of it in a word, the most important law of all for motorists, pedestrians, and others, is the "safety" law. Being careful, practising safety first, will result in the observance of all law.

Mahee Ideal Insulator

Unexpected virtues have been discovered in the lowly sawdust. When tightly packed it forms an ideal insulating material, keeping out cold and noise, water or even fire. Scientific tests prove that a mat of sawdust half an inch thick is more effective than a brick wall twelve inches thick. The sawdust has besides only one-sixth the weight of ordinary insulating material

Must Have General Knowledge

Recruits To Metropolitan Police Must Twenty Feet

Somebody should revise that song one line of which runs "If you want to know the time ask a policeman".

Those days it does not go nearly far enough in London.

For instance—do you want to know the advantages of the late purchase system to the buyer? Or the seller" If you are at all interested about it ask a policeman.

Or do you want to know why a steel ship floats? Ask a policeman.

If in an unduly enquiring mood you can ask the same constable why a fire burns more rapidly if a newspaper is pinned in front of it, why a steam engine has a fly-wheel why tinned goods remain in good condition for a considerable time; why lead is commonly used for water pipes in houses.

Or being of a more sporting than scientific frame of mind, ask the same constable to describe to you what is meant by a knock-out, even on the field, a stymie, catching a crab or body-line bowling.

The new policeman will be able to answer you with ease on each or all of these matters. And a good many others beside

The reason? Well, these were some of the questions given to recruits to the Metropolitan Police when they were only allowed an hour in which to answer them

There were more, even more tricky, but the above is a good sample

Astronomer Views Sun Spots

Three Spectacles Resemble Large Whirlpools Of Flame

Whirlpools of flame, large enough to swallow up the earth, are marching in single file across the face of the sun.

Clouds stayed away from the sun long enough recently to give H. S. Hansen, Seattle astronomer and amateur sunspotter, and visitors a glimpse of the sun spots.

The sun's surface usually consist of a group of three or four near one edge of the sun's face and a single large one near the opposite side of the 930,000-mile wide disk.

Sun spots, similar to cyclonic disturbances in the earth's atmosphere, are relatively cool or whirlpools in the brilliant outer envelopes of the sun, surpassing the darker inner portion.

About 1908 the theory that sun spot activity was entered and the activity will last for about another 10 years.

Some persons attribute disturbed weather conditions on the earth to the sun spots. They are believed to produce, also, spectacular displays of northern lights.

Study Water Resources

Engineers Now Engaged In Work Over Wide Area

Geological survey of the southern drought section of Saskatchewan is under way.

Recently, 80 senior students, drawn from the engineering department of the Saskatchewan University, started work.

Travelling in 15 up-to-date motor trucks, the engineers will locate and investigate water resources of approximately 180,000 square miles in southern Saskatchewan and southeastern Alberta.

The survey party has been organized into 20 sub-parties, each comprising an engineering graduate and two senior students.

The work is being conducted under the direction of Dr. B. R. MacKay, Dominion geologist, and the area studied, from the Manitoba boundary to the east to Lethbridge and Swift Current to the west, and from the international boundary north to near Saskatoon.

Millionaire Leaving

Heavy Taxation Cause Of Canada Losing Two Wealthy Citizens

The Toronto Telegram says "Canada is to lose two of her wealthiest citizens, and, incidentally with their departure the federal government's annual income tax will be reduced by several million dollars."

"The recent report that William Mc Wright, with an annual income of about $2,000,000, is definitely leaving Canada, is now followed by one that Harry Oakes, who receives an income of nearly $3,000,000 a year, may also leave the country to reside permanently in England," says the Telegram.

"The income tax paid by these two men alone to the federal government amounts to nearly $2,000,000 each year," according to the Telegram.

While Mr. Wright, vice-president of Lake Shores Mines and vice-president of Wright-Hargreaves Mines, has definitely announced his intention to leave Canada, the Telegram adds "color is lent to the reported exodus of Mr. Oakes by his recent resignation from the presidency of Lake Shore Mines."

According to the Telegram, Mr. Oakes has bought a house in London, England, and it is rumored that he will take up residence in the Channel Islands. Mr. Wright leaves in September for the Channel Islands, and may visit Bermuda before he decides where he will make his new home, says the Telegram.

Rust Resisting Wheat

Scientists Have 'Advanced Far' Towards Reaching The Goal

Hope for development of rust resisting winter wheat was forecast by Prof. T. A. Kiesselbach of the University of Nebraska upon the state's present stem rust scourge. Spring wheat seldom is affected, he said, already have advanced far toward this goal. The noted agronomist and the 1933 banquet speaker at the [illegible] of grain. He is experimenting now with a hybrid strain that may greatly reduce the susceptibility of winter wheat to stem rust.

He pointed to the planting of 3,000,000 acres of "Cheyo" spring wheat, developed largely by Dean C. R. Waldron of the North Dakota Agricultural College, and said it would not suffer half as much from stem rust as other varieties.

British Mystery Air Craft

Claimed To Be The World's Heaviest Armed Air Fighter

The new British mystery aeroplane "Fairey Fantome," claimed to be the heaviest armed air fighter in the world, will be brought from the closely-guarded hangar at Hendon soon to roar over the heads of experts in a display for the Society of British Air Craft constructors.

The ship carries four machine guns, one on each lower wing and two atop the fuselage, and also a quick firing gun which throws 20-millimeter shells.

The magazine of this gun carries 60 shells, fired through the propeller hub instead of through synchronized space of the whirling blades.

The new machine, expected to reach a speed of 250 miles per hour, has been secretly constructed at a British factory to compete in the international fighting 'plane competition to be held at Belgium in July.

THE MATTER OF INHERENT RIGHTS OF THE SENATE

Ottawa.—With important amendments, the senate on Thursday night to the measure setting up a Dominion trade and industry commission and to bills amending the Natural Products Marketing Act, Criminal Code and the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act.

Pushing through first and second reading, the legislation to establish a system of long term mortgage credit for fishermen, the upper house referred it to the banking and commerce committee.

The senate joined with the commons in a formal address to their excellencies expressing regret at termination of the governor-general's tenure.

Inherent rights and prerogatives of the senate to amend legislation, with the possible exception of money bills, whether or not a matter of government policy may be involved, were asserted by Senator Dandurand.

The declarations were made on adoption of a new amendment to the radio broadcasting act, which removed the limitation clause of amending legislation since the act was passed in 1932. Statements of the senate leaders related to the historic message from the commons which stated the lower house "insisted upon the bill as it left, this house being enacted."

Upon being satisfied as to the actual intention of the other house such being presumably the intention of the government, Senator Meighen stated, the senate could not recognize to the course it had to determine.

It was his duty in the circumstances, Senator Meighen stated, "to say that the power which the senate of the senate—of amendment or rejection of any measure which comes to it from the other house, and the very serious fact that we are not free to amend the measure embodies a policy of the House of Commons or the Government."

Twenty-two amendments by the banking and commerce committee to the b'll establishing the trade commission were adopted to make the measure practicable in its operation and less vulnerable from constitutional attack, Senator Meighen said. One of the changes was to provide that here an order to desist was made by the commission in unfair practice proceedings, disobedience of the order would be followed by a recommendation to the attorney-general for prosecution.

The amendment to the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, withdrawing applications of the act to British Columbia, provided the bill would not become law until proclaimed by the governor-in-council.

"This gives the government of British Columbia the opportunity to determine whether they desire to pursue," Senator Meighen remarked in reference to the provincial government's challenge of the validity of the act.

"Perhaps the Dominion government will then withdraw its bill to change its constitution, or will ask for any chance to change its course," Senator Meighen returned.

Bishop Of London Warns People Against Spiritualism

London.—The bishop of London, Rt. Rev. A. F. A New Bucket

Ottawa. The new "bucket" of signing books or sheets and contributing $10 or similar amounts in anticipation of getting higher returns if additional persons sign, is declared an offence against the criminal code under an amendment adopted by the senate banking and commerce committee. Plenty Of Moisture

Conditions Throughout Canada Generally Favorable

Ottawa. — Moisture conditions throughout Canada are generally favorable to growing crops, says the telegraphic crop report issued by the Dominion bureau of statistics.

Dry areas are practically confined to Vancouver Island, parts of the lower mainland of British Columbia, districts in southern Alberta and parts of southwestern and west-central Saskatchewan.

Crops are late throughout Canada and except where moisture is limited, warm weather is needed to promote growth, says the report.

The report continues:

"In prairie provinces grain crops have made good progress during the past two weeks. Drouth areas are limited. The most variable conditions now exist in Alberta where drouth is an important factor in the south.

"In British Columbia dry weather has reduced yield on Vancouver Island and in the lower mainland area. Conditions are satisfactory in interior districts with fruit crops developing rapidly."

"Manitoba: Rainy weather continues in Manitoba and during the last half of the week drenching rains were received over the western portion of the province.

"Grain crops are about one week late and growth is bunchy.

"Saskatchewan: Rainfall during the past week favored the eastern and northern sections of the province. Recent warm weather has stimulated growth of crops in these parts of the province have made good progress.

"Alberta: Conditions are generally satisfactory but rains are still needed in southwestern and west-central districts. Grasshoppers are still hatching but outbreaks are very patchy and have been effectively controlled. Pale western cut worms are active in some areas. Root rot is also reported. Summerfallow is about half completed. Pastures are in good condition."

Bonus To Be Paid

Farmers Shipping Milk To Cheese Factories Will Profit

Ottawa.—For the month of July, a bonus of 1¼ cents a pound will be paid farmers who ship milk to cheese factories, Minister of Agriculture Robert Weir announced in the House of Commons.

The bonus will come from a fund of $1,000,000 which the House considered as a means of equalizing dairy prices.

Primary reason for the cheese bonus was to prevent farmers switching production from cheese to butter and forcing down prices to world figures.

First bonuses will be paid in July, the minister said, through the cheese factories. It would be at least 3¼ cents a pound and might run to 3½ cents.

Japanese Steamer Sunks

Collides With Freighter And Over 100 Persons Drowned

Osaka, Japan.—The collision of a small Japanese steamer with a freighter in the pitch dark, fog-bound Japanese inland sea claimed 104 lives, a checkup by shipping officials disclosed.

Crowded with holiday passengers the steamer Midori Maru rammed with the freighter Benzan Maru and sank almost immediately.

Rescue vessels, including the Zenzan Maru, picked up 21 of the 125 passengers of the Midori Maru and 56 members of the crew of 85 in the storm-tossed sea. Eleven bodies were recovered, including those of three women and an infant.

Wheat Marketings Lower

Ottawa Wheat marketings in the prairie provinces for the week ended June 28 amounted to 1,704,299 bushels, a decrease of 997,237 bushels compared with the previous week, and a decline of 947,005 bushels against the same week last year, the Dominion bureau of statistics reports.

MASS BUYING PROBE EXPENSES ARE SUBMITTED

Ottawa.—The mass buying commission cost the Dominion treasury about $475,000, Hon. R. B. Hanson, minister of trade and commerce, told the House of Commons, but he believed "a very large sum of money" had been turned into the finance department by the tax-dodgers brought to light during the probe.

The minister said he was not sure of the tax collections because they did not come under his department. He had been informed however, they would turn over his wheat at that price to the board and be entitled to further payments if the board operated at profit or sell out entirely at a higher price to the grain trade.

"The minimum price would be fixed at the start of the crop year. Provision is made that the price would not be lowered during that crop year and there would be no object in increasing it during a crop year for the producers in any event would get the benefit of any higher price the wheat might bring.

"This act differs from the Argentine method in that under control in that country the board only buys when at the minimum price and has no premium to producers if it makes a profit.

"The new bill is fairly acceptable to Liberal members of the committee with the important exception that they wanted the board appointed for one year only with provision for extending it from year to year if thought necessary. The measure as the other hand makes the board permanent unless eliminated by act of parliament.

Radio Commission

Ottawa The House of Commons refused by 124 votes to make a provision in the bill extending the life of the Canadian Radio Commission until March 31, 1936. Under an amendment to the bill made in the senate the whole radio act which established public ownership of radio would have terminated on that date

Senator May Resign

Will Leave 17th Vacant Seat In Upper House

Ottawa. — While the resignation had not been received by the Dominion government or the speaker of the House, it is understood Senator John McLean (Conn. Illness has prevented the 88-year-old Maritime Senator, oldest member in the upper chamber, from attending in the Senate last session of this year.

When it does occur, the resignation of Senator McLean will create the 17th vacancy in the upper chamber. Hon. J. A. Macdonald, member of the Bennett cabinet for Prince Edward Island, is mentioned prominently as successor of Senator McLean.

New Wheat Board Bill

Farmer May Now Sell Under Two Plans

Ottawa.—The interpretation of the new wheat board bill as viewed by the special committee of the House which revamped it, was explained by John Vallance (Lib., South Battleford), one of the members of the committee

"Let us take for example a minimum price of 70 cents a bushel," said Mr Vallance. "The producer would have to decide whether he would turn over his wheat at that price to the board and be entitled to further payments if the board operated at profit or sell out entirely at a higher price to the grain trade.

"The minimum price would be fixed at the start of the crop year. Provision is made that the price would not be lowered during that crop year and there would be no object in increasing it during a crop year for the producers in any event would get the benefit of any higher price the wheat might bring.

Where Dreams Come True

NOT much has been said about the fishing near Banff Springs Hotel in the Rocky Mountains, probably because when visitors had finished "writing home" about the scenery, facilities for golf, tennis, and swimming, seemed to be climbed on foot or horse, the health-giving qualities of the air, and the fun to be found there the year round, there were no suitable descriptive words left for the fish.

But many types of fishing fish abound in the nearby lakes and streams. Minnewanka, the lake of Indian legends, frozen over for a week after the opening day of the fishing season, made a glorious start on the new season by producing more than 500 pounds of trout in two days.

Bill Hall, of Banff, led the parade with two trout, the larger one a fisherman's dream tipping the scales at 6½ pounds, and the other registering a mere usual 5½ pounds. He was out for only an hour and a quarter in the early afternoon from the time of the first cast until the second fish was landed. Despite the fact that the limit was up to 20 and 40-minute times.

Visitors have also made good catches this year. On the same day sportsmen put eight fish averaging about 15 pounds each, and in two days another party of visitors caught 360 pounds of lake trout, running from two to 12 pounds, with the average about 12 pounds.

While catches like these are not at all uncommon in the West, it has been discovered fairly recently that trolling is not at all necessary to get the big ones. Visitors at the Canadian Pacific Railway hotels at Banff Springs and at Lake Louise, as well as at the many bungalow camps throughout the Rockies, learn soon after their arrival that there are (the fishing ground) in the river vicinity.

The Trans-Canada Airway

Way Is Being Prepared For Canal Traffic Theatre

The trans-Canada airway will be a reality within a couple of years if the appropriation is made for civil aviation in the supplementary estimates brought down in parliament is satisfied by the minister vote in the next two years. What is being done now, is to prepare the way—physically. The operation of the service and its nature and extent will be a matter of policy to be determined when everything is ready. Had the plans all contemplate an air service across the country handling mails and passengers. Depending upon the type of machine used and making allowance for landings, it should be possible to fly from Montreal to Vancouver in 15 hours or less.

The appropriations now made however, are wholly for preparatory work in construction of airdromes, landing fields night lighting, wireless facilities and other accessories to the airway. It will also be necessary to carry on extensive investigations through trial flights, the information of atmospheric conditions and the best routes for flying. The work is now well advanced with 49 landing places constructed and while the appropriation of almost $500,000 will enable it to be actively prosecuted this year. The engineers have the work than had out and this year's appropriations will supply it with what has been done previously.

In another branch of civil aviation —the air service performed for the different departments by the Air Force—there is an increased vote of $300,000 This will allow the carrying on of extra preventive services for the Mounted Police aerial surveys and a variety of similar operations.

Similarly the military and of flying will have an impetus in the vote of $1,000,000 for maintenance and training. This contemplates a certain addition of the personnel of the Air Force, but the exact number is not determined.

The model Y can alight in a space 100 feet long at a speed of approximately 25 miles an hour and take off in less than 200 feet. Features which make this possible are a three-wheel landing gear and a pusher propeller.

Railroads Of Canada

History Of Railroads In Dominion Is Of Absorbing Interest

After a century of railroading Canada now has 42,000 miles of railroad and in railway mileage per capita is second only to Australia among the nations of the world.

Construction of Canada's first railroad venture began in June, 1836, one hundred years ago this month. Known as the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railway, was only 16 miles long. It connected St. Johns and Laprairie Quebec, and was in reality a portage railroad, the original purpose being to shorten the journey between Montreal and New York. From St. Johns transportation was effected by boat through the Richelieu River to Lake Champlain and then along the Hudson River. The railroad was opened for traffic one year later, and the motive power in the first year of its operation was horses. In the following year, 1837, locomotives were introduced.

Canada's railway era proper began in 1851 with the inauguration of the Grand Trunk System and several subsidiary lines throughout Ontario and Quebec. At the time of Confederation, 1867, the railway mileage in Canada was 2,278. The next and most important step in railway development in Canada was the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway, completed in 1886. The completion of this trans-continental railway was one of the most significant events in Canadian history. It linked the east and west with direct and rapid communication and made the dominion in the first time a united, economic unit. Rapid settlement in the areas tributary to the first trans-continental railway provided abundant and lucrative traffic for the road, and this led to the construction of other trans-continental lines. With the coming of the war the hopes of the builders of these lines were not realized, and many have eventually acquired by what is known to-day as the Canadian National Railways, which, operating over 22,000 miles, is the largest system on the American continent.

From the humble beginning of a century ago with only 16 miles of track, Canada's railroads have led to the establishment through without the length and breadth of the Dominion and have grown into a tremendous entanmese of lines spread over the country like a web, with telegraph and express services, chains of modern hotels, and fleets of passenger and freight vessels plying Canada with all parts of the world.

Making Map Of Mars

Famous Astronomer's Work Being Completed By His Widow

The monumental work of making a map of Mars, begun more than 50 years ago by the famous astronomer, Camille Flammarion, is being completed by his widow.

Madame Gabrielle Flammarion, who was the second wife of "the poet of the skies," works 15 hours a day to complete her late husband's life work. The observatory in which she works is in a garden where he buried the bodies of her husband and his first wife.

Every night, when conditions permit, Mme. Flammarion focusses her powerful telescope on the red planet, studying all its phases and taking innumerable photographs. When atmospheric conditions are bad, she works at her charts of the planet, filling in the unknown spaces. It is said that she knows the "canals" of Mars "as the city," said Ahmed to be begged permission to kill Saul with his own sword. But the Lord would not. He can put Saul's his hand against Jehovah's anointed and be guiltless?" he asked. There was a commotion attached to Saul's name, and though David could not honor the man, he could honor the king.

"Saul, my master," he cried, "live forever!" David declared that God would carry out his oath despite Saul should meet his death as God willed, and as he. Saul, willed Saul would die by a sudden stroke, or meet his death in battle (as he subsequently did) and forbid that he should kill him.

Then David and Saul's Bodyguard and Wine for the Mounted the Beast Saul, Samuel 26:1-25; In this tale can make themselves heard from the hill of Hachilah, which is over against Jeshimon, David, from a safe place on the mountain-top, called across to the king's camp, where Saul is lying over the king's life. "Who art thou that callest to the king?" Abner called back. With great sarcasm David asked, "Is not this a valiant man? And who is like to thee in Israel? Wherefore then hast thou not kept watch over thy lord the king? For there came one of the people in to destroy the king thy lord." How these words must have mattered Abner! The thing is the good that thou has done." David continued; "ye watched not well because ye have not kept watch over your lord, Jehovah's anointed. And now see where the king's spear is, and the cruse of water that was at his head." With these words the objects were evidently held aloft, evidences of the fact that a David had taken them away from the side of the king could easily have taken the king's life also.

Saul recognized David's voice, and then David appealed to him and asked him why he persisted in pursuing him. Saul, in the end, turned errors away from the land of Israel. "Let me not, like a violent cryanimal, be a foreign land," he urged, and added that it was unworthy of the dignity of the king to hunt him who was insignificant and helpless: "for the king of Israel is come out to seek a flea, as when one doth hunt a partridge in the mountains," he said.

Then said Saul: "I have sinned; behold, I have played the fool, and have erred exceedingly." For the moment Saul was sincere, his better nature was aroused, and he declared that he would not harm David. When David returned to his own place he had the opportunity of taking advantage of Saul's bitter enemy, as he might wish not to plunder him, but then Saul thought it wish to take away from him—not his honor, his wealth, nor his life but his ill-will."

Pocket Knife For Dolls' House

Tiny Gift For Queen Mary Made From Steel Of Tsars Gun

The Queen is adding to the Queen's Doll' House at Windsor Castle a tiny pocket-knife, the blade of which weighs one-hundredth part of an ounce, or the equivalent of the weight of one penny postage. But it cuts as well as a full-size knife.

It is made from steel produced by Fursday of one hundred and fifteen years ago. Sir Robert Hadfield came into possession of some of this steel and conceived the idea of having a number of miniature knives made from it.

Many distinguished people have accepted Hadfield knives, including the Prince of Wales Signor Mussolini and President Roo evelt

The Queen's knife is on the Harrods in a shop, where a number of Fursday-day exhibits were on view, and was immediately interested.

When Sir Robert heard of her majesty's interest, he asked her to accept the knife. She did sending him a coin in exchange According to tradition that the gift of a knife "cuts friendship" or brings some other form of bad luck

JULY 21

DAVID (THE GREAT-HEARTED)

Golden text: Not looking each of you to his own things, but each of you also to the things of others. Philippians 2:4.

Lesson: I Samuel 26:5-12; II Samuel 1:23-27. 23:14-17.

Devotional reading: John 17:1-10.

Explanations And Comments

David Spares Saul's Life, I. Samuel 26:5-12. David himself recommended the place where Saul was reported encamped, and found him surrounded by his followers and within a barricade made by encircling wagons. He returned to Ahimelech and asked, "Who will go down with me to Saul to the camp?" Abishai, the son of David's sister, was eager to go with him They found the king still sleeping within the barricade of wagons, with his spear, the sure charts of the priest, sticking in the ground by his head. "God hath delivered up thine enemy into thine hand this day," said Abishai as he begged permission to kill Saul with his own sword. But David would die by a sudden stroke, or meet his death in battle (as he subsequently did) and forbid that he should kill him.

Then David and Saul's Bodyguard and Wine for the Mounted the Beast Saul, Samuel 26:1-25; In this tale can make themselves heard from the hill of Hachilah, which is over against Jeshimon, David, from a safe place on the mountain-top, called across to the king's camp, where Saul is lying over the king's life. "Who art thou that callest to the king?" Abner called back. With great sarcasm David asked, "Is not this a valiant man? And who is like to thee in Israel? Wherefore then hast thou not kept watch over thy lord the king? For there came one of the people in to destroy the king thy lord." How these words must have mattered Abner! The thing is the good that thou has done." David continued; "ye watched not well because ye have not kept watch over your lord, Jehovah's anointed. And now see where the king's spear is, and the cruse of water that was at his head." With these words the objects were evidently held aloft, evidences of the fact that a David had taken them away from the side of the king could easily have taken the king's life also.

Saul recognized David's voice, and then David appealed to him and asked him why he persisted in pursuing him. Saul, in the end, turned errors away from the land of Israel. "Let me not, like a violent cryanimal, be a foreign land," he urged, and added that it was unworthy of the dignity of the king to hunt him who was insignificant and helpless: "for the king of Israel is come out to seek a flea, as when one doth hunt a partridge in the mountains," he said.

Then said Saul: "I have sinned; behold, I have played the fool, and have erred exceedingly." For the moment Saul was sincere, his better nature was aroused, and he declared that he would not harm David. When David returned to his own place he had the opportunity of taking advantage of Saul's bitter enemy, as he might wish not to plunder him, but then Saul thought it wish to take away from him—not his honor, his wealth, nor his life but his ill-will."

Smallest County In England Wants Protection Against Speeding Cars

For the twelfth year in succession Rutland, smallest county in England in the county of Rutland, England. True, it is the smallest only in the country, covering 17,000 acres, mostly farming people, but it is quite remarkable to have no cases serious enough for a judge to deal with

And yet the county authorities have asked the police force be increased. There are 17 men now, and recruit. The authorities want another body. Little Journeys in Science

PHOTOGRAPHY

(By Gordon H Grant, M.A.I

Photography enables man to preserve a record of events by means of pictures. Besides being an interesting hobby, it is of great practical use and has become a valuable scientific tool. Many important advances of recent years in science have been aided by the application of photography to record the phenomena studied.

Taking a photograph usually involves the taking of two pictures, the negative and the print. The negative is generally made on a supporting film of celluloid, or glass. The print on flimsier picture is made on paper.

The supporting celluloid, or glass film is coated on one side with a gelatin emulsion in which there are very small particles (known in science as crystals) of silver bromide of silver bromide and silver iodide. In the case of negatives these particles may vary from eight to twelve one hundred thousandths of an inch in diameter. For prints, however, the particles are about one-fourth this size.

When the plate so prepared is placed in a camera and the image of some object is focused upon it, the silver bromide particles of a complicated change which depends on the intensity of the light of living. PARTIES READY FOR FRAY.

Practically all of the names nodified parties are ready to go for the coming elections with the exception of the Liberal conventions held and candidates named.

The 29 candidates are said to be coalitionist, with 6 seats in the Legislature. The Liberals have only 3 to win if the Liberals win 6 seats, there will be a tie between Premier Aberhart and Leader Hugill. Three Labor candidates are also in the field. Some have predicted that the Labor party will have enough seats to hold the balance of power, but this is doubtful.

The Labor party has nominated seven candidates and is expected to increase that number to 14 when conventions are held in Calgary and a number of other points. Communists have nominated Tompkins-Keeble and Independents also have candidates in the field. It is reported that Independent Labor has decided to go to the front.

Wildmere was almost deserted on Wed. July 10th when nearly every family was represented at the picnic in Vermilion. One thing the picnic did, if nothing else, was to bring people together from the four corners of the country and some grand old visits were enjoyed by a good many old friends who had not met for months and some for years. The picnic also seems to bear Mr. Aberhart in the sweeping others spot to the north and to the Queen Lassoing Bob, and was declared but before the [illegible] ... [illegible] ... [illegible] ...

Agriculture in School

"A good deal of thought has been given in past years to the kind of education in agriculture which can best be introduced into the school curriculum Dr. R. C. Wallace, President, University of Alberta told the 54th convention of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists assembled at Edmonton. It must be frankly admitted at the outset, he said, that relatively little successful attended the efforts of those who are endeavored with school education in the teaching of agriculture. The formal agriculture or Grade IX and X of the high school had on the whole not achieved what was expected of it and the school garden so enthusiastically proclaimed thirty years ago cannot be seen in Western Canada today.

It would take forty feet afield to follow out the specific applications each of various teachers, discussing only a method, but the general reasons and the result. The interest had been largely lost in public and high school "agriculture" and how to avoid a recurrence of this could be the first consideration. For that reason, I would say he was of opinion, no effective work in agriculture in the public and high school will be undertaken until, to the minds of the rural people, it has a practical significance. If the application is recognized as necessary or desirable, success in plant and animal production would follow naturally out of the underlying principles which have universal application. In the earlier years of the pioneer's life conditions were such that he had to apply himself to agriculture. In so far as these pioneers were honestly carried out by the young people themselves, they were the soundest accomplishment which had yet been achieved in the vocational activity in agriculture or science as boys and girls. The question did not as yet unfortunately reach all schools and school children in the rural districts.

Mr. Citizen, your interest in your community is a public record and is manifested in the manner in which you discharge your obligations to it, whether it be in your activities for the good and welfare or in discharge of your financial undertakings in your community. How's your record? 12

THE FARMER KNEW

A story is told by the implement and Vehicle Review (England) of two railway officials who were panned by the fact that a local farmer got on and without ticket when he went to the neighbouring market but always handed the rush to one of them. These officials brothers and were the general factotums of the depot which was of the wayside little used kind. But at last they approached the farmer to learn why he persisted in handing the money to them instead of buying a ticket in the orthodox way. The reply was "Years ago I had a row on the railway and never got compensation, so I vowed the company would never get another penny from me—and I know they never shall while you're here"

PICNIC FOR THE DEAF

The twelfth annual picnic for the deaf was held at the School of Agriculture at Vermilion on July 10th, these being over sixty present, including fifteen deaf and their friends. They again had the pleasure of a visit from Rev W. Ferber of Duluth, who is connected with the Lutheran church who carry on missionary work among the deaf.

The men and boys were shown over the Purity of Variety test plots. Mr. D. A. Anderson, Senior Agriculturist, explained the system and purpose of these plots and Rev. W. Ferber acted as interpreter in the sign language.

The ladies and girls were shown over the finer part of the grounds in that of the flowers, shrubs and trees. The flowers were most beautiful in which the beds of peonies excelled and gave a great delight to the visitors. Mr. W. J. Elliott, principal of the School of Agriculture, was the leader of this party and explained all the particulars in a most excellent manner. Mr. Geo. Law used the sign language in the interpretation to the deaf.

The softball game was the next on the program in which the teams were united, and had a happy finish Mr. Elliott is to be congratulated as an umpire and seemed to be well advanced in the sign language before the game was over. Mr. Ferber took a motion picture of the game while it was in progress.

After supper there were several short addresses from Mr. Elliott, Mr. Ferber, Mr. Williams and Mr. Law.

CAR ACCIDENT AT MINBURN WEDNESDAY

A Ford car of ancient vintage and bearing license number 46-179, travelling west crashed into a car driven by Mrs. L. Townsend of Manzville who was coming from the Minburn sports on Wednesday last. The accident occurred one mile north of the village at "Dec" Reilly's corner.

Mrs. Townsend, with a party of young friends, including two or three children, was proceeding eastward, when the Ford contraption approached from the east, zig-zagging along the highway. It was on the left side of the road, and Mrs. Townsend, seeing that a head-on collision was imminent, swung to the left. The Ford swung to the right at the same time and drove broadside into the Manzville car, pushing it sideways well over the edge of the ditch. Fortunately the car did not go over and cause much onto the road. The Ford lost its front wheels, radiator, engine springs and had everything twisted and was so completely warped as to be almost unrecognizable as parts of a car. The occupants, four in number, sparsely escaped with minor injuries and were picked up by a car coming behind and whisked away, not even making inquiry as to whether anything had happened to the people in the other car or not. There were traces of beer bottles in the wrecked car and Mrs. Townsend said that she judged they were all intoxicated. By the way the car was being driven Mrs. Townsend had her car battered in on the sides, the running board crumpled and parts of the chassis damaged. No one was hurt.

Old-timers and young-timers will all be at Vermilion Fair on Thursday and Friday, August 1st. and 2nd.

YES, It's True

That THE STANDARD is owned by an individual. It's his property and he must pay the bills and assume all responsibilities. On the other hand, it is also true that somehow or other the public looks upon the community newspaper as being partly their property. The community expects its public institutions to be defended, to be favorably reported, to be kept in good report throughout the district and the province. Churches, societies and organizations look for and expect their activities to be reported in their home paper. And the home paper does all these things — likes to do them. This being so, it is only human that the owner of, and those who are employed at, the local newspaper office should expect that all these various interests would return the compliment through giving it printing orders. If all the printing requirements of Vermilion were to be printed in Vermilion, The Standard would have to nearly double its present staff.

ANNUAL MEETING OF RATEPAYERS, ISLAY HOSPITAL DISTRICT

The annual meeting of the Islay Municipal hospital district was held in the senior school Islay on Saturday last when the building was extended, chiefly with ratepayers from the Ribstone M.D. The bulk of the attendance was taken up with discussion regarding a sub-hospital at Ribstone. This was very strongly recommended by the people from the north. The discussion ended finally by a vote which requested the the hospital board to give the ratepayers a chance to ballot on the question. This was carried by 95 votes to 5

The financial statement for the year 1934 was read and approved

COMMUNITY PICNIC DRAWS 6500 PEOPLE

Vermilion Business Men Hosts To Largest Crowd Ever To Gather in Town

That the Community Picnic is a most appreciated event, was clearly demonstrated on Wednesday last week, when it was estimated that in the neighborhood of 6500 people from surrounding districts gathered on the spacious grounds of the Vermilion Agricultural Society. Arrangements had been made by the Board of Trade to entertain their guests and judging from comments heard in various parts of the crowd, they were entirely successful in so doing.

The event took the form of a gigantic basket picnic at times, and it was a unique sight to see hundreds of parties gathered together at luncheon hour, cloths spread on the grass, all enjoying themselves, visiting with their neighbors and entirely oblivious of their labors or any troubles which might be besetting them. The picnic bought together old friends from distant points, created new friends and engendered a kindly feeling between the men and women from the country near their town, brothers and sisters and vice versa. It was a most worth-while and meritorious undertaking and in spite of the extremely unfavorable week necessary for its success should, judging from the reception accorded it on Wednesday July 10th, be made an annual event.

Each kiddy on entering the grounds received 2 tickets, entitling him to a free ice cream cone, free lemonade and a ride on the merry-go-round. 1120 or each were given out. When such time arrived hot water and tea were possible.

Platoon attractions included an address by Major Hall, Forager of the Research Dept. of the Beatle Grain Co. He spoke on control of weeds, new grain grading and also about the newly formed Grain Board. The grandstand filled to capacity to hear him and the applause about the platform was packed. The Major held their attention throughout with his most interesting, pointed and educational discourse.

Wood was received from Premier Reid and from H. E. Spence, M.P., that they would be unable to be present. It was hoped to have them also greet the crowd, as our sitting men be-s of parliament.

The lumbermill Pipers band added liveliness to the whole proceeding, while softball, baseball, horse races and sports of many kinds added variety to see and do. The baseball teams competing were all from the county, that needed by the people from the north. The discussion ended finally by a vote which requested the the hospital board to give the ratepayers a chance to ballot on the question. This was carried by 95 votes to 5

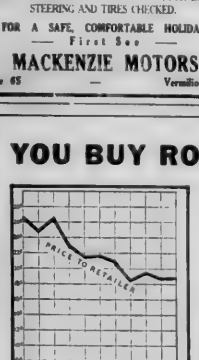
YOU BUY ROADS, TOO!



The accompanying chart shows how the price of gasoline to the retailer has decreased and the gasoline tax has increased since 1924. In 1924 the average price to the retailer of all gasoline sold in Canada was 30.5 cents per gallon. Since 1924, the price has fallen almost consistently until in 1931 and 1934 it stood at the unprecedented low of 18.2 cents—a decrease of 39 per cent. But as the price of gasoline fell, the tax on gasoline rose. The data for this graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

WHEN you buy gasoline, you also buy roads over which to drive your car.

Approximately one-fifth to one-third of the price you pay goes directly to your Provincial Government in road tax.

Twelve years ago there was no gasoline tax. Today the tax ranges from six to eight cents per gallon. And yet the cost of gasoline to you is no more because during those twelve years the price of gasoline has been steadily reduced.

Imperial Oil played a leading part in the developments that made lower prices possible. But lower prices were not achieved at the expense of labor. Imperial Oil employees have always been well paid. They work under ideal conditions. They have sickness and death benefits and pension plans to protect them and their dependents. Five thousand of them are part owners of the Company. They are given every incentive to work efficiently and happily. The result has been better gasoline at lower and lower prices.

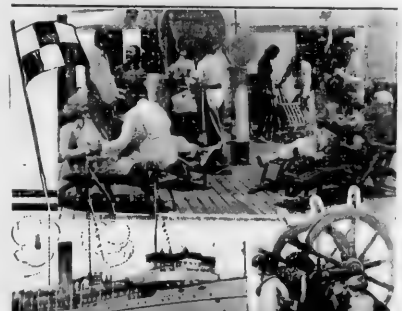
A Great Lakes Holiday



With the increasing popularity of vacation trips on the Great Lakes, the Canadian Pacific has expanded its Great Lakes Steamship service to include calls at Port Arthur on westbound voyages as well as eastbound.

The Great Lakes make this provision almost unique for an inland sea voyage, part of which is entirely out of sight of land. Attractions that have been drawing an increasing number of passengers include a chance of air-refreshing coolness, magnificent scenery, complete rest, and all the joys of shipboard. The Canadian Pacific Great Lakes steamers this year have been outfitted with deck sports, including quoits, shuffleboard, and deck golf. Dancing and music bring pleasure in the evening hours.

The schedule makes it possible to take an enjoyable week's trip, going either way, with overnight stops at both ends. Sailing Saturday, the round trip is completed the following Friday: Sailing Wednesday, the round trip is completed on Monday. The steamers leave Port McNicoll at 5.00 p.m. on Wednesdays and Saturdays, arriving at Port Arthur at 6.45 a.m. and Port William at 7.50 a.m. on Mondays and Fridays, in time to connect with train leaving dock at 8.00 a.m., eastern standard time, making connections with train No 1 leaving Port William station for the West at 8.45 a.m., central standard time; and Winnipeg and a ten day stopover tour for travellers to Niagara Falls, with return trip in both cases.

time is 12.00 noon from Port William on Saturdays and Wednesdays, 1.00 p.m. from Port Arthur, arriving in Port McNicoll at 8.00 a.m., eastern standard time, on Mondays and Fridays. Port Arthur was in the schedule for an eastbound call but the rail on the westbound trip has not been in effect for several years.

Attractive all-expense tours at very low cost have been arranged to provide happier combinations of rail trips overland and steamship cruises across the Lakes with interesting stop-over at famous vacation resorts. There is a nine day westbound tour between Toronto and Winnipeg and a ten day eastbound tour between Winnipeg and Niagara Falls, with return trip in both cases.

It should be emphasized that the Grain Trade representatives were the first witnesses to appear before the Committee.

In his evidence before the Committee on June 20th, Roy W. Milner, president of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, in an official statement, said:

Short Life-Stories

Now and then the writer who is responsible for this column each week feels impelled, instead of writing an article himself, to pass on something he has read which may prove helpful and encouraging to others. This is one of those times when two or three short stories from real life seem to call for repeating

There have been a lot of talk, the last few years, about how the worker is exploited under capitalism. Not much has been said about the other side of the picture. Let us tell them of a man, a small manufacturer, who, when the crash came, employed twenty people. His business has shrunk during the depression, but the same twenty are still on his payroll. What is more, he is still paying them the same wages. He has done this by ruthless cutting of his own expense and by dipping into his own capital. He has carried the people who work for him as a personal responsibility. He doesn't like to talk about it. When questioned, he merely shrugs his shoulders and insists that he has done nothing extraordinary. It is like heroes: he says: "When you come in after a hard ride, you see that your mount is fed and watered, don't you? I can't do less for the people who work for me. I can't sleep when I know they aren't sleeping well. That's all there is to it." Such men do more toward making this a better world than a thousand laws, enforced by a million policemen. The Golden Rule is the one code that seems to work

Real life beats anything the fiction writer can invent. Take the case of another man who used to be branch manager for a big concern. He had an impressive suite of offices, and a number of people working under him. He belonged to the best clubs, drove a big car and lived well. As the years passed, he grew to take his position for granted. He began to pay more attention to outside interests and less to his job. Times grew hard, but he still took things easily. The head office was troubled. Hints, increasingly broad seemed to have no effect on him. Finally it was decided that he must be discharged. But the boss, remembering his long years of service (interrupted only in comparatively brief periods by a brush as manager. Always selling he was down earlier than any of the cubs, and stayed later. He took what leads were given to him most of them considered too hopeless for a good man to bother with and his boss, who was soon forgotten that he had been demoted. He was accepted as just another salesman. No one paid much attention to him. The younger men rather smiled at the real or "old" Blank, as they called him. When not on the street, he was always telephoning somebody, or busily thumbing over his prospect file. In the front office, however, a strange thing was noted. Blank's sales began to climb. Customers - big ones - appeared out of the blue, insisting that they must deal with Mr Blank. The other day, Blank was made General Sales Manager.

It is doubtful if there is any better cure for the weariness of spirit which comes from endless discussion of economics or disputation over such things as politics, than an hour or two with a microscope. For a trifling sum of money, one ga an admission to a world full of new and fascinating things. In a single drop of water, scooped from the nearest ditch, there is literally endless entertainment. After a time in this world, with its breathless dramas and life-and-death struggles between incredible creatures, the real world seems curiously remote and unreal. One returns to it refreshed, and with a saner point of view There is the man whose whole life centered in golf. He was nothing shined, and as he stood one night in the bow of the ship which was taking him to the wreckage of his career, he resolved to throw himself into the dark waves. But he happened to glance up to the great arch of the skies, filled with timeless stars: and suddenly his own life, beyond all comparison, seemed oddly unimportant. He returned to his problems, solved many of them, built a new and successful career upon the ruins of the failure- and, incidentally, became famous as

* * *

This is the time of year when young men, just out of school and college, are trying to plan their future. Many write to friends, asking advice. The advice given by one such friend to a young man was as follows: All I can answer is that if I were just starting out to hunt a career, I'd head for it as far away from the big cities as I possibly could. There is more glamour in city life- perhaps more of what is called "success". But there is more money-making possibilities are greater. But from what I have been able to observe in my journey through this vale of tears, the small-town man gets the most fun out of life, the most out of it in dollars, then his city cousin does; but his living costs less, and he has more time in which to enjoy the dollars he has. If I had my life to live over, I think I'd start out by heading for a small community, and dig in there. Every now and then I'd visit a big city just to remind myself how smart I'd been to become a

To Promote Highway Safety

Ontario To Cope With Rising Tide Of Accidents Anticipated

To cope with the rising tide of deaths from automobile accidents in Ontario, Hon. T. B. McQuesten, minister of highways and acting attorney-general, announced 12 constables had been added to the provincial police force, most of them detailed to the highway

Provision for additional traffic police marked the latest step in Mr. McQuesten's campa'gn to promote highway safety. Possession of a driver's license has been made the basis for enforcing the traffic laws, said the minister, and he listed two other features of his safety campaign—police inspection of motor vehicles and equipment and an advert ising campaign.

Departmental records showed 302 persons had been killed in automobile accidents during the first six months of this year, compared with 164 in the corresponding period of 1934. The June death toll was 64, an increase of 12 above May. 10,000 feet

"A small fine does not quite meet the situation," said Mr. McQuesten. "We will get more severe penalties by law if we exercise freely the cancellation of the driver's license for a term."

Science Of Deduction Came An A Shock To Bus Conductor

Surmising that the man had probably delivered letter that Col. Foley asked him: "How long ago were you a postman?"

"How did you know I was a postman?" the conductor demanded.

"Quite simple, my dear Watson," said the colonel.

The man who had evidently not read his "Sherlock Holmes", nearly fell off the bus. His name actually was Watson.

Story From Liverpool Could Be Told By Bigsby

An astonishing but truth was professed by a 77 miles an hour gale on Tuesday. A Bebington (Birkenhead) man bought a new hat at a Liverpool shop, put it on his head, and carried a old hat in a paper bag. When he reached Bebington Station the wind lifted his new hat from his head and sent it sailing over the top of the houses and out of sight. On reaching home he was amazed to find his new hat on the breakfast table. It had dropped in his absence.

An Exciting Incident

Guide in Westminster Hall Embarrassed By Touring Party

Presentation of loyal addresses of parliament to the King in Westminster Hall during recent jubilee celebrations has recalled an exciting incident in the annals historic chamber when a party of Scottish fishermen were touring London.

The party, on a sightseeing visit were being taken through the building by a police officer who pointed to the place where Sir William Wallace, national hero of Scotland, was in 1305 tried and condemned to death for treason against the English to whom he declared he owed no allegiance.

Immediately the Scottish women, with much power and expression, broke out in the well-known ballad "Scots Wha Hae Wi' Wallace Bled." This was a most improper proceeding, of course, and the women's concert was in a dilemma. His sympathies were with the women but his duty dictated either the suppression of the singing or the expulsion of the singers.

Without saying a word, the escort walked quietly away to look up a superior officer for instructions how to act in the matter. After much searching he found his officer and returned to the spot. As he had expected and hoped, the singing was over and the youngsters gone, leaving no trace. The officer did not report the incident. The account of which has leaked out since the jubilee celebrations.

Find Indian Relics

Remains Of Two Indians Unearthed In Saskatchewan

One of the most interesting finds of the season, in Saskatchewan, is that of Professor Vigrneon, at old Indian crossing, near Saskatoon, the remains of two Indians in shallow graves. These have been carefully lifted and sent to the history museum at the University of Saskatchewan.

One of the graves yielded only a few bones, some charred birch bark, and a few charred sticks. The other contained a complete skeleton of some Indian brave, in excellent state of preservation.

The body had been placed on its left side, facing east, more than just two feet below the surface of the ground. Thousands of colored beads of different sizes and shapes were found about the remains, also a large piece of flint and the rusted remains of what had been a hunting knife. There were also the bones of a dog, small animals, possibly a squirrel and a mink, placed beside the body, as provisions on the long journey to the happy hunting grounds.

Professor Vigrneon has spent considerable time on the discoveries, filling up historical data. — Regina Leader.

Keep Method Secret

Chinese Have Mysterious Way Of Holding Up Autopsy

An ancient Chinese method of autopsy, known only to a closed group of practitioners in the Celestial country, is handed down by word of mouth from generation to generation, has resulted in the release of the two sons of Chia Tehsiang, who died 18 months ago.

On the basis of these findings of the autopsy, doctors declared that the two sons have been freed of the suspicion of having murdered their father.

The body was exhumed and two "odious bones" experts attached to the coroner's department at the Shanghai District Court were asked to perform an autopsy.

With the aid of yellow Chinese wine, some millet, a dash of vinegar, Chinese herbs and an umbrella, the experts were ready to announce the result of their investigation

"Mr Chiaco met his death from banging. However, it is clear that he was hanged dead, and was not murdered by his sons or by any other person."

For Prison Reform

Borstal System Is Recommended For Canada

After studying in detail application and operation of the Borstal system in six English prisons, General D. M. Ormond, superintendent of Canadian penitentiaries, has reported to the Dominion government his opinion that similar training and treatment of youthful offenders can and ought to be put into effect in Canada.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice, tabled General Ormond's report in the House of Commons and declared the system may be made effective in Canada within 60 days. No legislation and no extra money vote would be necessary but there would be some staff additions and extra buildings needed.

The Borstal system, forecast for Canada in the speech from the throne at parliament's opening in January, "is a combination of mental, moral, physical and industrial training of a strenuous kind," for convicts under the age of 21 years.

Selected penitentiary inmates under the age of 21 would be housed separately and made the subject of this training with a view to correcting criminal instincts and preparing the youth for more useful effort on discharge.

EXPANSION OF TRADE REQUIRED TO AID RECOVERY

Ottawa. — Expansion of trade rather than restriction of production is the need of the present if any substantial recovery from the world depression is to come about, in the opinion of Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons of Australia. With Premier R. B. Bennett on one side and former prime minister Sir Robert Borden on the other, Mr. Lyons addressed a luncheon meeting.

"I do not believe in restricting production of foodstuffs," said Mr. Lyons. "I believe the world can consume a lot more of the right kind of food than it now consumes. When Providence has given us an abundance of food it is wrong to cut across the seed of God and destroy people of foods which are essential to health and happiness."

Australia had made substantial recovery from the depression, said Mr. Lyons. The federal government had balanced its budget since 1932 although some of the states were still experiencing financial difficulties. Unemployment was decreasing, interest rates were down and trade was increasing moderately.

"We are not out of the woods yet," he said. "But we have set the steps to take the fullest and earliest advantage of any recovery that comes."

Australians did not hope for an even balance of trade with Canada because of special circumstances, but as the years went on they would like to see their exports to and their imports from Canada coming closer together without any decrease either way.

TRADE SITUATION WITH JAPAN IS HARD PROBLEM

Ottawa Neither the department of external affairs nor the Japanese legation in Ottawa had received any information which would affect a denial for the lay of reports called from Tokyo that a 50 per cent surtax would be imposed by Japan on certain Canadian imports there.

It was said the surtax would affect wheat, lumber, fish and asbestos, first commodities and would come into effect on July 17 to August 17.

For some weeks negotiations have been proceeding between the Japanese and Canadian governments over the trade situation. The problem is a difficult one to solve as Canada on standpoint officials state Japan has low production costs and a vigorous trade policies. In addition aid trade imposition than either of the foregoing, is the depreciated state of the yen

On a parity basis the yen should equal about 40 cents in Canadian currency but actually costs around 29 cents. With such a gulf in the exchange Canadian manufacturers of rubber goods particularly rubber footwear manufacturers of milk goods and electrical appliances, have found the Japanese competition distributing not only in external markets but in Canadian markets as well

Department of national revenue has followed its usual custom of levying duties on goods from Japan on a 49-cent valuation of the yen The importer instead of paying duty on what cost for example 100 yen or $37, has to pay duty on 049

Stevens Would Take Action To Reduce Tariffs

Toronto. — Drastic reductions in such tariffs that affect British exporters will be advocated by the new Reverse party as one of its main planks, Hon. H. H. Stevens, former minister of trade and commerce, announced on his arrival here.

Mr. Stevens said his proposed tariff reduction policy would apply especially to those imports which are necessary and advantageous to Canadian farmers

His party would take no stand, either way, on the question of repeal or amendment of section 98 of the criminal code, he said.

The leader of Canada's fourth party said his decision to advocate certain tariff reductions had been reached following his investigations with the mass buying and price spreads commission.

Immediately upon his arrival, Mr. Stevens went into conference with Warren K Cook, Toronto, Thomas Lasco Hamilton, and Thomas V. Bell, Montreal, party organizers.

The conference will draw up the party's platform and definitely decide on a name, it was said.

Mr. Stevens' reconstruction program would be "along the lines already indicated in my letters to Mr. Bennett," he said

"We shall try to abandon the theoretical for the practical. We want to do something—not merely play with the problem We do not desire to present a program of promises We are eager to bring about results to do something that really counts "

The new party leader was "Just Harry Stevens, just an ordinary fellow trying to do a bit of work for my fellow citizens—work that needs to be done by someone and needs doing badly."

Profit For Treasury

Revaluation Of Gold Also Aids Bartered Banks

Ottawa.- The Canadian treasury profited approximately $63,000 000 by the revaluing of gold and the chartered banks about $10,500,000. The weekly statement of the Bank of Canada showed the effect of the revaluation under the Exchange Fund Act which received royal assent.

Gold coin and bullion held by the Bank of Canada was listed at $180,179,470. A week ago it was $106,671,415. Before the Exchange Fund Act became in effect gold was valued at the parity of $20 67 an ounce. Under the act it is the market value, roughly $35 an ounce.

While the object of the Exchange Fund Act was to provide a fund to regulate exchange such a fund will not be established unless a situation arises which will make it advisable. Accordingly the act provides that the fund should be established by order in council and no order in council has been passed or will be in the immediate future, it is understood. When such a fund is established it will be under the supervision of the minister of finance.

School of Agriculture Comes of Age

July 19th, 1935, saw the students and alumni of the Vermilion School of Agriculture gather from far and near to celebrate the completion of the 21st anniversary of the school.

The first session of a two-day celebration was scheduled for 2 o'clock, and after thirty minutes of Community singing led by Eric Cormack, the meeting was called to order with an actual attendance of 216

J.F. Adam, former staff member at Vermilion, occupied the chair. Principal W. J. Elliott was called on for a few words of welcome, and then the first principal, Dean E. A. Howes, gave an excellent address. Mrs. S.C. Heckbert and Loraine Andrew furnished a vocal and piano solo respectively. Both of these were much appreciated.

After the opening session the great crowd adjourned to the classrooms where pictures depicting the early, as well as the modern, life of the school were thrown upon the screen. Dean Howes described the former and Principal Elliott the latter. Many amusing incidents were shown which delighted and amused the audience greatly.

Following this the students and ex-students divided into a "boy's section and a girls' section" to study the Alumni Programme for the current year. In the girls' section Mrs. Brisdale and Hilda Storey gave very helpful suggestions. In the boys' section there were the old stand bys such as Bill Barr, Lyle Robinson, Basil Hawley and Arnold Platt and a host of others. These, with Mr. Malaher and Mr. Wilson, devised work for an active Alumni. Committees were appointed in both meetings to crystalize the ideas and to bring in reports for the general meeting which was called the next morning.

At 4 o'clock the big soft ball game took place. This was the present students against the world. The World won by two runs. It was a keenly contested and exciting game. Some declare that, so air tight was the game, that there were no errors. We wonder.

The greatest item in the whole programme took place on the lawn when 250 Alumni members and their friends sat down to a banquet which was served in that finished manner by Mrs. Storey and her aids, not to forget Percy Cline. The crowd sat down in groups of about 25 around a central table on which was placed a beautiful four tiered birthday cake. Miss Jennie Edgson a graduate in Agriculture School decorated the cake and many declare it to be the finest piece of work they have ever seen. Here the cake was cut almost next year's banquet.

Hon. P.E. Gordon made a special trip to Vermilion to be present, also to represent Premier R.B. Bennett. (Continued on Page Four)

China Goes Modern

Campaign Against Footbinding In

A campaign against footbinding in the city of Peiping has been launched by Yuan Lang, famous in China as the "shoe law" mayor of Peiping His regulations have been effective in governing the execution of the movement.

The first regulation in that girls under 15 will not be allowed to bind their feet. Those that have already done so are ordered to unbind them immediately. Women between the ages of 12 and 30 who have their feet bound are given three months in which to unbind them. Women over 30 are permitted to unbind their feet at their leisure

Failure to observe the new regulations results in a fine not to exceed $10 in Chinese money ($6 in Canadian) for the first warning, but if warned a second time the fine consecutively becomes $100 in Chinese money, or about $60 in Canadian money.

Post, sent up for burglary, mended the fracture and spent his last $1.50 for bird seed Squeegee moved into Post's cell

But Post has still a year "in stir" and suggested to Warden Whipp that Squeegee could get his parole if accompanied by the warden, the old man went into the yard and loosed the lark into the air

Has Undertaken Big Task

Pacific Island Native Wants To Translate Bible For His People

Kata Rangoso, son of a former headhunter and cannibal, is going to try to translate the Bible into the native language of a group of Pacific islands in the western Solomons.

As these natives have a spoken language, that has never been written down in any form, his task looks at first sight to be tremendous. But it is an amazing fact, a reporter discovered, that some of the native tribes have vocabularies that are far bigger than those of most educated Englishmen.

The Rev. Edwin W. Smith, of the British and Foreign Bible Society, who spent 18 years among natives of Africa, said he discovered that native words often had a number of some 10,000 words—nearly as many as Shakespeare used, and you could listen to natives talking for ten years and rarely hear a grammatical mistake.

Even university men here often burst up their words as "between you and I," but analogous mistakes of that kind were seldom made by the African natives, though they could not write or read a word, and had no formulated rules of grammar.

Mr. Smith described the astonishment of the natives when he showed some of them what "writing" was. One native in a forest collected a tree, and he wrote a note to his wife asking her to send an axe This note was taken by a native boy who gave an axe when wanted.

But when he saw Mrs. Smith look at the paper and straightway fetch the axe, the native boy immediately jumped to the conclusion that the piece of paper had been "speaking" and was full of the most wonderful "magic" "Making the paper speak" became the term for "writing."

How do the native children raw material, as it were, of civilization—learn to read? care-free life is suddenly changed, and they are brought to school and taught, for the first time in the history of their race to write"

Mr Smith found that they are very quick-brained, and in the early stages probably just as quick at learning as English children, whose ancestors may have been wranglers.

Find Underground Chamber

Believed To Be Torture House Of Ivan The Terrible

Moscow excavators have announced they have discovered the underground chamber where Ivan The Terrible was said to have tortured his victims nearly four centuries ago.

Definite proof was declared to have been obtained that a chamber and passage found beneath the centre of the city near the spot where the Lenin library is under construction was Ivan's dreaded "Henchmen's Court."

There, according to the stories told in Russia, Ivan had his victims tied to pieces by bears and sometimes buried alive.

The subway diggers came across it last winter upon investigating white and discovered under a raised covering Geologists said they must had been brought from some distant place Further digging led the workmen to the remains of a court and passages which once connected it with the Czar's palace

Ivan is popularly supposed to have ordered the construction of the underground passages in 1565 so that he could watch his henchmen torturing his victims. The German adventurer, Heinrich Staden, known as the underling of Ivan, wrote memoirs in which it was said that the courtyard was damp and that Ivan, consequently, had ordered it covered

Motion Picture Industry

Launching Big Production Programme For Current Year

The motion picture industry is launching its biggest production program since the bumper years of 1927-28 and it may even come up to that period.

Upwards of $150,000,000 will be spent on film making in the coming year cost, or more of the total in California. Some will be expended in Great Britain by American companies.

Double feature programme, current in the great majority of theatres, will necessitate the production of more films than ever before, for there is a shortage now.

Pictures whose cost will range upwards of $1,500,000 each include "Midsummer Night's Dream", "The Crusader", "Tale of Two Cities", and "The Last Days of Pompeii", among others.

Ruled By Foreigners

Only One Of Europe's Dictators Is Native Born

Most of Europe is now ruled by dictatorships. Of the seven countries most of these dictators are not natives of the countries of which they are the rulers. Adolf Hitler of Germany, for example is an Austrian by birth; Mustapha Kemal of Turkey, is a Greek from Salonika; Joseph Stalin of Russia was born in Asiatic Georgia; Eamon De Valera of Ireland was born in New York City; the late Josef Pilsudski of Poland was a Lithuanian. Only Mussolini, among all the more important dictators of Europe, is a native of the country he rules. He was born in Dovia, Italy.

During the day, Mrs. Brown discharged her old maid and hired a new one, who answered the door bell when Mr. Brown arrived home in the evening. He carried a bunch of flowers and handed to the maid, saying: "Here Emma is Mrs. Brown, and tell her I want to see her at once."

"All right," said the maid, "but you better make it snappy, because she expects the old man any minute now."

A Profitable Hobby

Stamp Collecting Very Often Brings Money To Owner

Many so-called "he men" took upon the collection of stamps with disdain. They classify it as a namby-pamby hobby on a par with whist or checkers.

Philatelists, on the other hand, are quite enthusiastic and pay little attention to their critics. The reason for their interest may be more easily understood if one considers the financial reward gained by some collectors.

Tens of thousands of dollars changed hands in a large room in a Holborn, London, restaurant, not so long ago, all over postage stamps.

Professional dealers, nearly a hundred strong, from most parts of the world, walked around, talked, examined and purchased. Most of the dealers seemed anxious to do business with sheets or rare U.S. stamps rather than with single specimens.

The most valuable specimen was the Black British Guiana one cent, which brought more than $30,000 to its owner.

Stamp-collecting may seem like a nonsensical hobby, but the evidence furnished by the London show certainly proves it is a profitable one.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

Retains His Popularity

Prince Of Wales Will Always Be Champion Of Poor

At 41 the Prince of Wales is still as interesting and popular figure, though the charm of his youth has inevitably departed. As a young man he captured all hearts much as Bonnie Prince Charlie did. But he has been a happier lot than that of any of the Stuarts.

From his wide travels he brought back a mature conception of his job and at home he has studied closely the lives and fortunes of the British people. That he has never married is a disappointment. But this is a detail. He heir to the throne has been faithfully fulfilled the obligations of his position.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 26

AMOS (Prophet Of Social Justice)

Golden text: Let justice roll down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream. Amos 5:24.

Lesson: Amos, Chapters 4 and 7.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 85: 7-13.

Explanations And Comments

Three Visions of Judgment. Amos 7:1-8. Amos, the prophet from Judea, has gone to Bethel, the capital of the Northern Kingdom of Israel, to warn them that the nation is ripe for judgment. He tells them of a series of visions in which God has revealed to him what will come to pass. He describes a plague of locust. Devouring the vegetation, but God stayed his hand against the people when Amos cried, "O Lord Jehovah, forgive, I beseech thee."

Next he had a vision of a terrible drought. "The great deep," the underground ocean on which the Hebrews imagined the earth to rest, had dried up, and the land, without its springs and fountains, was being burnt up by the sun's scorching rays. Again the prophet prayed, "O Lord Jehovah, cease, I beseech thee," and his prayer was heard.

His third vision depicts Jehovah with a plumb line in his hand standing before a crooked wall and measuring it. As far off from rectitude as that crooked wall is the life of the Kingdom in all its wickedness. The judgment of God upon it must be withstood. Further interpretation is given in the words, "With a plumb line I test my people; never again will I pardon them." (Moffatt's translation.) "The high place of Isaac shall be desolate, and the sanctuaries of Israel shall be laid waste and I will rise against the house of Jeroboam with the sword."

Amaziah Reports to the King. Amos 7:10-13. Amaziah was the high priest of the sanctuary at Bethel with its golden calf, next a message was transmitted to the King of Israel accusing Amos of treason, of predicting the death of Jeroboam by the sword and the captivity of the people. The land, he charges, was unable to bear all Amos' words- so monstrous were they."

Amos Answers Amaziah, verses 14-17. Then Amos pronounced woe upon the priest and the house of Israel. His family and upon the land, ending with a declaration that Israel should be led away captive out of the land.

Will Not Cut Corners

Machine Which Is Viewed At Mathematics Nearing Completion

A machine which can beat the combined efforts of 50 finest mathematicians in the world is fast approaching completion at the Victoria University, Manchester. In the space of a few months it will be able to dispose of problems which would keep even the most quick-working of human mathematicians busy for two days. It will never get tired, never suffer from headaches, and never misread its own figures. Sheer lack of time has prevented the more unscientific mathematician to make "second-best" approximations. This robot mathematician has no time for "cut corners." Professor Hartree, its inventor, wants to probe may hitherto unsolved mysteries of the universe, the travel of radio waves, and of aeroplane flight with the aid of this robot.

Would Be Gladly Welcomed

British Working On Signal To Eliminate Telephone Waits

In response to a long-felt want the British Post Office is said to be experimenting with a device which will enable the caller to lay aside the instrument while waiting for the called. It is to be a device which will from that breaking connection and, from its double sound, will be called the "ruckus." That such a device is needed is shown by many letters in the London Times, one of which reads in part: "It seems extraordinarily clumsy that people have to hold on, often for several minutes, unable to pursue any other occupation, because no one can make contact method by which the telephone shall give tongue when the receiver at the other end is taken up again. I suppose that many hours a day are wasted in this tedious and empty employment of standing or sitting with a receiver to the ear waiting for the required voice."

Little Journeys in Science

THE BUILDING STONES OF THE UNIVERSE

(By Gordon H. Gow, M.A.)

Scientists have discovered that in decomposing certain materials by means of heat, light, chemicals and electricity, one always finds substances which result all efforts to decompose them. These materials which cannot be broken up into simpler substances are known as chemical elements. At the present time 92 of these simple and fundamental forms of matter have been discovered.

Water can be decomposed by electricity into the gases hydrogen and oxygen. Red oxide of mercury can be broken up by heat into mercury (quicksilver) and oxygen, and common salt, under certain conditions, yields the metal sodium and the greenish-yellow gas chlorine. Other important elements are iodine, iron, calcium, carbon, sulphur, nitrogen, silicon, aluminium, silver, and gold.

In recent times scientists have discovered that certain substances, known as radioactive elements, decompose spontaneously into other elements. In the course of time, no control over these changes. This fact is illustrated in the metal radium, which spontaneously splits up, producing a number of new elements, such as helium, radon, and lead.

It is a very remarkable fact that one chemical unite to form new substances, which are known as chemical compounds. These are completely their own properties. As example, we may take the common salt, which contains the element sodium (a soft, silvery metal that reacts violently with water to produce hydrogen) and chlorine (a greenish-yellow, poisonous gas). This chemical combination, however, these elements form salt, a white crystalline solid, which is a necessary part of our diet.

Some common minerals occuring naturally are gold, platinum, copper, silver, and nitrogen. Most of the elements, however, are combined with others in compounds, and it has been found that certain compounds compounds in order to obtain them. The land be the element we want to bear all Amos' words- so monstrous were they."

Amaziah Answers Amaziah, verses 14-17. Then Amos pronounced woe upon the priest and the house of Israel. His family and upon the land, ending with a declaration that Israel should be led away captive out of the land.

"Walk straight up the road till you pass my house and see a path leadin' into the woode. It's terrible steep and I ain't attempted it for years, though I've been up it often when I be married up there under the old pine. You'll find our 'attiks cut in the bark with a jackknife, and Victor Tubbs is a real good carver. If you run into anybody from the Adam ranch, Nancy, tell 'em we'll want extry milk to-morrow. And would you mind peekin' in my bedroom window and see if Tubbs is sleepin'? He's got a delicate stomach, and his supper didn't set good last night."

Suppressing a smile at this unique request, Nance promised, and started on her way. The afternoon was all her own, and it was impossible not to feel a thrill at this unbelievable December day. The sun was warm; yet the paper pines on the hills were raging in New England! It seemed incredible; and next week, Nance mused mystically, the Country Club would be gay with winter sports.

"I wouldn't be there anyway," she consoled herself, as the loneliness of her present life pressed vanquished, raised its head again. "I'd be at Edgewood now wiping dishes for Mother, or mopping up puddles of water brought in by Phil. Here's the Tubbs abode already. I must see if Victor's about."

This brought a smile, and homesickness retired to that place where such things go when we forget ourselves. Aurora's house which set back a space from the road, was a one-story affair covered with ivied bark, and almost hidden in a grove of stunted pines. Nance went softly up the path and peered in at a window. By the stove sat Victor Tubbs, the glass she made out an ornate iron bedstead on which the recumbent Tubbs was snoring peacefully; while one of his wife's rich layer cakes and an open jackknife stood on a nearby chair.

Thinking of Victor's "delicate stomach," the girl chuckled as she turned away. "No wonder my patients failed to digest! Should she tell on him? Nance decided against this; but vowed that Mrs. Columbine should hear the story. It was too good to keep.

She smiled as she resumed her walk; but that path into the woods seemed to elude her. Concluding that she had missed it, Nancy turned back, intending to ask help from an approaching truck, and recognizing the hatless figure of Matthew Adam, hailed him as he was about to pass.

Although on one pretext or another, Mark had been avoiding her every day of the past two weeks, Nance had not seen Matthew since his blushing exit from the kitchen with Aurora Tubbs. He was blushing now, the girl observed, and wondered if it were the sun's rays, or a new one for her especial benefit! She said, as a shy smile hovered across his face on recognising her: "Sorry to make you stop if you're in a hurry, but Aurora wants more milk to-morrow And will you show me how I can reach that hill? I've lost my way."

At Matt said lightly from the truck to stand beside her, Nance was again impressed with the young man's appearance. His blush had subsided; but something told her that he was tragging with embarrassment and furious with himself because of it.

"You should have turned off just after you passed Aurora's," he told her, "but it's no wonder you missed the trail, so few go up that way. It's an easier climb from the other side. If—if you don't mind riding on the truck I'll take you 'round."

He was blushing again. Nance caught the idea that he had forced himself to make the offer out of politeness, and thus responded: "Aren't you too busy?"

"Not busy at all; but this truck is second cousin to Methuselah, and—"

Nancy laughed.

"You needn't apologize for the truck! I'm tickled to go for it in anything at all. My feet have had plenty of use since I struck Pine Ridge; but that hit tempted me, and the day, too. Isn't it glorious."

With Matt's acquiescence she had reached the truck, and said, as they backed around: "Is it fair to the other side of the hill?"

"A couple o' miles, maybe."

"Miles! Why I thought it was only a step!"

"To the top of that hill? Well, it's not much more from here; but it's pretty steep, and we can ride hair way up from the other side. My brother used to live there on pickings when we were kids."

Seeing that the young man's embarrassment had dropped away before the spell of his mother, Nance grasped the cue.

"Cousin Columbine tells us that Mrs. Adam is—well, what she would call 'Ye Adam is a grand success as a mother'?"

"Did she tell us that?" Matt faced her, smiling, and Nancy saw that he had completely forgotten himself at last. "Oh, I don't know. It's a queer job to face again and be stammered awkwardly; "I—I don't mean that we have anything like it in the world!"

Nance was not anything above the average; but—but that—"

"I know what you mean," smiled Nance, coming to his rescue. "Though cousin Columbine meant just what you're denying. It must be nice to have such enviable reputation. Did your mother make you eat it with all four of you?"

She couldn't resist teasing him a little, but it was kindly tact which had led her to bring the conversation back to his mother; and Matthew answered: "By being herself, I guess. She always on hand, you know—so perhaps we didn't get into as many scrapes as some kids. Mother's a wonder; and Dad is too. I'm accuracy about my people, but—but I've said enough. Don't know what got into me."

"I got you going!" admitted Nance, a twinkle lighting her blue eyes. And then: "Oh, look! Is that a snow-capped mountain range on the horizon?"

Matthew nodded.

"Here's where we turn. Do you mind a little cross-country riding in this old wreck? You're likely to get pretty well shaken up, though."

This warning was too late, and only a quick snatch of Matthew's arm which brought her tight against his khaki coat for just a minute, kept Nance from losing her balance as they dipped into a rain-worn gully. When he released her and grinned, she looked up, she saw that all his previous confusion was as nothing compared to the embarrassment that engulfed him now. This newest sophisticated Nancy, and she said demurely:

Long Bicycle Trip

Pedals Machine From Nova Scotia To Vancouver

A 20-year-old jobless farmhand from Nova Scotia has a bit of advice to pass on to ambitious young Canadians who are unemployed and desire to keep up their morale at 4 speed health

His advice is—do something.

Two months ago Hubert Smith of Amherst, N.S., packed a few belongings including some blankets and a tent, packed them on his bicycle and started out.

Recently he arrived in Vancouver, ruddy-faced, happy and in the best of health after cycling 2,750 miles over Canadian highways with his 50-pound load.

A Favorite Instrument

Malayans Like Bagpipes And Have Learned To Play Them

The Malayans like the bagpipes, and they have learned to play it. It only 16 months since the instruments were introduced to them, but already the Johore military forces have given their first public performance—and it was a great success.

It was at a military tattoo arranged at a theatre in Batu Buitansh, a Scotswoman who hails from Edinburgh, and is commander-in-chief of the forces, before her departure for Europe.

"Oh, come on," laughed Nancy. "I wasn't keen on solitude, if that's what you mean. And if you've the time to play around for an hour, nothing would please me more. Jack Columbine was napping, and Aurora was too much inclined to give advice, so I said—"

Matthew laughed softly. It was a pleasant laugh and his voice was pleasant too, thought Nancy, when he forgot himself and spoke naturally.

"Aurora Tubbs strikes me completely dumb," he told her; "and advice is one of her strong points. She's never recovered from my going to college—thinks it was the last word in foolishness. What's she found to pick at about you?"

"Stockings!" said Nancy, and wondered if Matt, following her twinkle in the narrow path, was blushing again. "My sport hose got left at home, and she implored me to borrow a pair of Cousin Columbine's 'black cottons.' Honestly, I didn't mind at all. It rained the day we came, and that cotton stockings were manufactured any more."

"They're growing scarcer all the time," said Matthew absently. "Even in Pine Ridge there's not much call for 'em; and the high lace boot is passing.

Nancy whirled about. This was the strangest young man she had ever encountered. One moment he stammered with confusion; the next was saying something as unusual as it was unexpected. Their feet struck a patch of pebbles, and laughed, and laughing, felt better acquainted.

"Wonder," remarked the girl as she started forward "where Cousin Columbine gets hers?"

"Gets what?" asked the lad.

Nance nodded because the trail was steeper here, and she found herself a little short of breath.

"Gets her stockings—where she gets the middles," suggested Matthew. "How down, Miss—er . . ."

"Nance," said the girl, without turning. "Was I going too fast?"

"Too fast for your own good, at this altitude. You'll be quite well acclimated when you're transplanted from sea level. Has your brother told you?"

"Tell me what?" Matt faced her, smiling, and Nancy saw that he had completely forgotten himself at last. "Oh, I don't know. It's a queer job to face again and be stammered awkwardly; "I—I don't mean that we have anything like it in the world!"

Nance was not anything above the average; but—but that—"

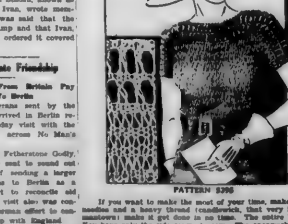
Depends On Soldiers

Ethiopia May Lose Services Of The Red Cross

The administrations of the Red Cross and the Government of Ethiopia in case of war with Italy become more and more likely to be at variance with each other, it was stated in London recently.

The Emperor Haile Selassie has so far been unable to give the word that his soldiers will not mutilate captives, according to Field Director T. A. Lamb, of the Ethiopian mission service. The British Government and the Emperor could not "sincerely" pledge his word in this regard because of the ability to make one's word good in some Ethiopian frontier tribes. The union director is trying to organize a London an ambulance corps for Ethiopia.



PATTERN 3295

If you want to make the most of your time, make this jiffy knit. Large needles and a heavy thread (candlewick, that very heavy cotton, or Germantown) make it get done in no time. The colors blend in to one piece. You have only the side seams to sew. The openwork yoke contrasts effectively with the closer stitch of the front of the blouse. As you can see in the detail, the stitch of the blouse can be the effect of stripes. The blouse, lovely for summer, will be very practical for fall and winter, too, short sleeves being quite the thing for wear with a suit. Directions for a plain knitted skirt come with the pattern.

In pattern 3295 you will find complete instructions for making the blouse shown and the skirt in size 16-18 and 20-40; an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 20 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 176 McDermot Ave., E., Winnipeg.

There is no Alice Brooks pattern book published.

British Short Wave Programs

To Be Featured Over Canadian Radio Commission Network

Broadcasting throughout Canada of British short wave programs will shortly become a regular feature in the national network programs of the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission.

After months of experimenting the commission has constructed near Ottawa, a powerful short wave receiving station which will pick up British Broadcasting Corporation programs and relay them direct to CRCO in Ottawa. There they will later be put out over the commission's national network.

With the powerful new receiver in its stations in England, France, Germany and other European countries on what is known as the great circle line

Because of the difference in time which makes it inconvenient to Canadian listeners to hear British programs direct, the daily programs will not be relayed in, but Shatlers, phone recordings will be made of the best, and they will be a regular feature each evening in the national programme

Little Helps For This Week

Speak Lord; for Thy servant heareth. 1 Samuel 3:9.

Though heralded with nought of fear,
Or outward sign or show,
Though only to the inward ear
The Spirit's voice may low;
Though dropping as the manna fell,
Unseen, yet from above,
Noiseless as dew-fall, heed it well—
Thy Father's call of love.
—J. G. Whittier.

This is one result of the attitude into which we are put by humility, by purity, by calmness, that we have the silence in which to watch what is the will of God concerning us. If we think no more of ourselves than we ought of think, if we seek not our own but others' welfare, if we are prepared to take all things as God's dealings with us, then we may have a chance from time to time to catch what God has to tell us. In the Missionaries devotions one constant gesture is to put the hands to the ears as if to listen to the messages from the other world. This is the attitude which our minds assume if we have a standing place above and beyond the stir and confusion of the mortal world.

Regulations in France

Government Has Control Over Farmers To Great Extent

No farmer in France, according to French regulations, may sow the same field in wheat two years in succession. On April 1 every year the French farmer must declare the area he has sown to wheat, and on August 1 every holder of more than a ton of wheat or four must declare his holdings to the government.

Red and green, the two most important colors used in traffic signals, are the colors most commonly consumed by persons who are color blind.

who was unable to attend Mr and Mrs Grisdale Dean and Mrs Howey, Principal and Mrs. Elliott, Mr and Mrs Herb Scott, Mr S.H Gandier and Miss M P Shaw, Mr. J.F and Mrs Andrew Mr D.J and Mrs Whit Breed and Mr and Mrs Frank Elson sat at the head table. An interesting feature occurred when Mr and Mrs Elson stood up with their 8 children, all of whom are graduates of the school Mrs. Elson rather reluctantly suggested that she has only two more children to send to S.A.C. After the banquet George Norman, who joined the staff of the S.A.C. in July 1st, 1915, and who has been connected with it almost continuously ever since was called up and from a veritable avalanche of gifts and an address from the Alumni association of his long years of service.

What coffee was being served M. H. Staples got into the centre of the ring mounted on "Old Prince". The faithful old horse seemed to realize the importance of the occasion for he pranced in with the old fire in his eyes and a flick and with Jess and Ila astride Mr. Staples carried a big sword or sabre of vintage. This was presented to Dean Howey who in a few well chosen words accepted it and paid the important ceremony of cutting the birthday cake. When it was how liberal helpings were passed to the Alumni and guests. There were many calls of course during the decorations on the cake for it was really a thing of beauty.

Following this Dean Howey gave us all a short talk full of humour as was to be expected from the man who came from the various years, as a result of the 1915 rallies.

The last feature of the banquet was the calling of the roll of the various years, commencing with 1914 and ending with 1935. It is worthy to note that every year from 1914 was represented at the banquet. The latter years were more largely represented, as would be expected but some of the far back years were also represented. The banquet was brought to a close at 11 o'clock with attendance at A.S.A. dance, perhaps the first year which had 12 ladies to uphold the glory of the original "gang".

After the roll call the shades of evening were falling, and all repaired to the big gymnasium, which had been very tastefully decorated, and where the instrumentic were already being tuned for the Alumni dance,—and what a dance! It is estimated that there were well over 200 students and ex-students present. These with their friends made a gala crowd that filled the spacious auditorium. Many they broke up to not important, other thing is the time they had. The evening and music were perfect.

Well to ten alumni members gathered up for the final meeting next morning when the year's programme for both work and play was outlined. Short periods on giving this in detail but it will be given in an early edition of the Radio. In the election of officers Lyle Robinson, Vermilion was elected president. Dorothy Heatherington, vice president and W.G Malsbery secretary.

Each year will elect a member to the board of directors and from these an active board of five will be chosen.

The final act was a parade of Livestock under the direction of Lyle Robinson and D.A. Andrew. In the honour section "Prince" led the parade with "Emigrant's Masterpiece" the govern ment Clyde stallion, following a splendid group of farm mares with colts at foot were also shown, topped off with a string of last years fillies. Robinson then brought out a quartette of his excellent Shorthorns, and last on the list were some twenty-two black mules from the Tilley herd. Fully 100 students, their wives and friends witnessed the parade and judging from all reports, enjoyed the trip home, after declaring the Kodak on by far the best ever held in the history of the school.

BOY SCOUTS ARE OFF TO CAMP

Jolly Crowd Board Truck for Lake Laurier

For a time it looked as if the Boy Scouts were to be deprived of their summer camp this vacation, due to the enlargement of their accommodator Jas J. Parr, in the Vermilion hospital contracting from a major operation. However as accountmaster Don Taylor brought joy to the hearts of the boys by energetically organizing a camp, obtaining the services of accommodator Marmond Brimacombe of the Lady Scout troop north of Vermilion and of Scout Matt. Brimacombe, and then hosting the boys off to camp on Monday via Ed Wilson's truck. Don hopes to get in a few days camping with the boys also, and they say that he surely deserves it, for being primarily responsible for putting over their camp for them. The boys also expressed their appreciation of Marmond Brimacombe foregoing other plans to supervise their camp and the same with Matt. The Standard man can't remember all that noisy and jolly group who left here for Lauier at noon on Monday, but a few that he remembers were Mark Norton, Don Taylor Jr., Jim Rouse, Victor Rolls, who hails from Foam Lake, Sask. and is a nephew of Jack Klassen, Billy Rouse, George Wilson, Raymond and Edwin Crosby, Don Davies, Fred Thomson, Pete Alp, Cyril Horse and John Taylor. The truck was also due to pick up a couple of boys at Islay. The boys will return on Sunday.

The Elks have very generously offered to provide free transportation home for the Scouts.

VERMILION BALL TEAM ON 3-DAY ROAD TRIP

The Vermilion ball team left here on Wednesday to play in a series of two games that will keep them away from home for three days. Yesterday (Wednesday) they played at Sedgewick; tonight they play at Lloydminster and on Friday they wind up at the Lavoy sports in an effort to fill the whole week-end. The locals are optimistic in that they have a remarkable staff of pitchers to lean on, three stars are now on their roster: Jim Banks (ace), and Fred Brimacombe.

It was unlikely that all the regular players would be able to make the trip.

Four Stephens baseball boys played an Exhibition game at Lloydminster on Friday night last and shut out the boys there 5-0. Fred Brimacombe turned in another of his air tight pitching performances, while the infielders just couldn't make an error.

NEW SYSTEM OF IDENTIFICATION IMPORTANT TO SWINE BREEDERS

From information received by the Live Stock Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, the importance to swine breeders of the new regulations recently enacted under the Pedigree Act, whereby all pigs born in Canada since January 1, 1935, must be identified either by tattoo marking or by ear tags (as the pigs are eight weeks old, and before weaning, are not being fully appreciated.

The new system requires that if a breeder decides to tattoo his pigs, the identifying letters shall be allotted by the Canadian Live Stock Records, Ottawa, and if he favours the use of tags then these must also be ordered through the same organization. Not until the proper identification of the pigs has been made will the official registration be recorded. Moreover the export of pure bred pigs to the United States cannot be made with out this identification. This system if properly followed, provides a distinct and positive identification for every registered pig in Canada. The advantage to the purchaser is that a definite link is established with the pedigree certificates of the pigs

With the keen demand at present for pure bred pigs, compliance with this new method of identification makes it possible to sell pure bred swine as registered stock without difficulty.

THE NEW DIESEL TRACTOR will be on display for the first time in Alberta at Vermilion Fair.

WONDERFUL SCENERY AT JASPER PARK

For the lover of unspoiled mountain scenery it is doubtful if any spot on North American continent holds as much interest as does Jasper National Park, in the heart of the Canadian Rockies. This site, 4,200 square miles in extent, has been set aside by Canada as a perpetual playground and in the heart of the park the Canadian National Railways operate Jasper Park Lodge, a homelike hotel with modern conveniences and conveniences. It features a heated swimming pool, tennis courts and a nine hundred mosaic golf course.

From the lodge radiate saddle and hiking trails leading to awesome canyons and to age-old ice fields. Motor roads circulate through certain sections of the park, rising by means of hairpin turns to the feet of glaciers. Since this is a game sanctuary, deer, elk, mountain sheep and goats, bears and other animals have lost their fear of man and are ready camera subjects for the picture hunter. With its easy journey of the lodge are fish and lakes, including the famous Maligne waters, stocked with speckled trout, and the lakes of the Tonquin Valley, whose glacial waters stocked with Rainbow trout are now open to the angler.

Many of the peaks in Jasper National Park are yet unclimbed and some are even without name, but there are peaks for every class of climber.

The officials of the Dominion Rust Research Laboratory, Winnipeg,state that the spores of black stem rust have been discovered on the wheat plant in most of Manitoba south of Russell, and in Saskatchewan east of Regina, south of Yorkton. They state the infection appears to be still spreading West and North of points mentioned.

Our Research Department has calculated that the area now affected contains approximately 2,500,000 acres seeded to Red Spring Wheat-1,100,000 in Manitoba, and 2,100,000 in Saskatchewan.

An average crop on this particular acreage would be between 55 and 60 million bushels of wheat. The amount of this bushelage that will be lost to rust infection will apparently depend upon the weather occurring between the present time and harvest.

BOARD OF TRADE NOTES

There were 25 members at the luncheon on Monday. Following the meal the Chairman welcomed Mr. Steele, Mr. Whitbread of Calgary and Mr. Shipley, Superintendent of Burns and Co. for this part of the province.

Mr. McBride reported that his canvas for funds to offset the deficit on the community picnic was proving very successful, some $120.00 having been collected with several other calls in train. He suggested that the surplus be put into a separate fund for next year's picnic.

Mr. Shipley spoke at some length on improving and increasing dairy stock in this district. He stated that while this was looked on as a mixed farming district, such was really not the case. He compared the total in cream checks paid out here to that of one their small centres, Hay Lakes $11,000 being paid out by Burns and Co. here while $33,000 was paid to Farmers in the Hay Lakes district, either points of this population had amounts several times that size paid out in good cream checks. As this was money that was all spent in town he felt that naturally all business men would be interested in improving the class of dairy cattle, thus increasing the dairy produce and thereby increase the income of the farmer. He suggested, to create interest, the raffle of three dairy type heifers at different breeds, at the fair here. These would be raffled under the auspices of the Board of Trade, with T. Burns supplying the cattle and taking the chance of a raffle for payment. The introducing of a few pure bred cattle often resulted in a real herd being started.

Some discussion took place before Mr. Andrew of the Dominion Experimental farm, made a few pointed remarks He advocated the sticking to one variety of cattle, and preferably a dual purpose strain, as we have already several outstanding herds of Ayrshires in the district thus he thought was the breed that should be encouraged and forwarded. He also made a strong plea for the prevalence of warts and scabby cattle, stating that this district did not make enough use of the proper remedies. Lime and sulphur mixed in proper proportions and painted on the animals would be sufficient to kill the parasites which cause this trouble. He also spoke on the question of bulls, stating that a pure bred bull was not necessarily the best animal to use, but will often prove a poor one. He also spoke on the question of the proper time to cut grain for hay, stating that the best time was when the grain was in the dough stage. He also spoke on the question of summer fallowing, stating that it was not necessary to plough deep, but that it should be done early.

Another meeting has been set for next Monday, August 5th, when Mr. Andrew will be present in regard to the raffle of a pure bred bull. It would be a good idea to shift the Wednesday of July meeting next week, owing to it falling on the first day of the Fair. All cattle will be open for inspection on that day, but will close from 1 to 2 p.m. The idea the time days of the fair. Hours were from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Any enquiries of our or town points who wish to pick up their prizes after the fair

The Country Weekly Newspaper

"What do you think of the future of country newspapers?"

This question was asked Mr Wright A. Patterson by a teacher or journalism in one of the western United States state universities in the course of a conversation in which the successful efforts of big city dailies and periodicals to increase circulation in rural sections was noted, and the editorial content of these publications discussed. In answer, Mr. Patterson painted a picture of the future as he sees it

Admitting that there is a place for the small weekly newspaper and there in, and probably nowhere more decidedly so than on the prairies of Western Canada—the important quest.on is: How is that position to be maintained, improved, developed, and are our Western Canadian editors alive to the situation and endeavoring to meet it? If they are, they will undoubtedly receive the public support they will so well deserve.

Both weekly newspaper publishers and the reading public will be interested in Mr. Patterson's word-picture as it is presented in a recent issue of The Publishers' Auxiliary. While a bit too lengthy for complete reproduction in the columns, excerpts may be given

"There has been, within the last quarter of a century a radical change in the people of the rural communities the people of the towns and on the farms Up to a quarter of a century ago, these communities were self-centred The people seldom got beyond their local market place. It was a day's task for the farmer and his family to get as far away from home as the nearest town, possibly not more than three or four miles away. The only form of conveyance was the farm wagon, or the horse and buggy. The roads were narrow stretches of dirt that were, during portions of the year practically impassable. From one year to another the vast majority of the rural people—the people of the towns and farms—did not get beyond their municipal limes. It was the exceptional rural family whose children went away to school. The standard of education was largely from the nines and the number attending universities was small as compared to the present.

"Under such conditions the horizon of the rural family was extremely limited. Its members had practically no contact with the outside world and quite naturally the interests of these rural people centred about themselves and their neighbors

"The country newspaper that catered to that local interest, that recorded the events in which the people of each community played a part, was satisfactory to the people of those communities. To this local news covering age, many editors added rome general information and entertainment material and made for that time a satisfying newspaper that met very rural readerdemand.

"Today conditions are radically different. The automobile and good roads have made travel possible The day's trip now is to the city nay-where from 50 to 300 miles distant from the rural home. The World War took tens of thousands of the boys of the farm into distant training camps and associated them with boys from every section of the nation, and with every class. It sent these across the ocean into far distant lands. It widened their horizon to include the entire world and all classes and all people and all forms of activities. It gave them a new outlook and new interests. That was 18 and 20 years ago. The farm and town boys of the World War days are now the men, the heads of families, of the rural communities of these days

"The radio has brought the world to the rural community fireside. It has widened the view of the people of these communities until it includes all Canada, the United States England France, Japan, Australia and every known point in the world.

"Go to the universities to-day and a large percentage of the students are from the towns and the farms. Those young people are acquiring for themselves and taking back to the rural homes from which they come, an increased interest in national and world affairs, in history in the making, in the arts and sciences and in literature.

"As a class the rural audience of to-day is a more intelligent audience than that of the city. The people of the towns and farms have to-day a wider interest than the average individual of the city. They are in no sense provincial

"It is such an audience the country newspaper of to-day and to-morrow must appeal to if it is to live. It must bring to those communities interpretations of what is happening throughout the world because it is to-day their world and they know that its happenings may directly concern themselves. The cotton farmers of the Southern States know that happenings in faraway Japan may make or break the price they get for their cotton. They know that should war come between Italy and Ethiopia, it might affect the regulation of the waters of the Blue Nile and so affect the cotton crop of the Egyptian Soudan and cause a higher price for cotton than the American cotton their cotton. The wheat farmers of Western Canada know that drouth in Russia, in Argentina, in Australia, in France or many other sections of the world would certainly raise the price they would get for their product

"The people of the towns and farms must upon keeping in touch with those national and world affairs that have a direct bearing on their lives They expect the newspaper they buy to bring to them interpretations of such happenings They do not want rumors and surmises, but they do want statements of fact and what such facts mean. They will buy the newspaper that gives them such information

"Weekly newspaper editors are awakening to these new conditions. They are realizing that it is quality and quantity of reading matter that is demanded, and that the demand can be met in the limited space of eight to 10 or 12-page papers giving them room to cover the community happenings and with that interpretations of events in the nation and the world and a reasonable amount of entertainment.

"For the paper that does these things there is a future. Such a paper will cover all of the to-day's national and world interests of its readers and will make itself so meet the requirements that there will be no necessary place for a paper from the outside For such a paper there is a future greater than that of the past, and the majority of the editors of country newspapers are awake to these things. The small minority that are not, or do not awaken will in time, pass out of the picture

Edmonton Visit

Appointment From Farmers' Keep Touring In, And Work Progresses

Hon. Robert Weir, minister of agriculture, received a report from Dr E. S. Archibald, director of experimental farms and chairman of the advisory committee which has the reclamation work in hand. The report indicated active co-operation from the western farmers to the undertaking.

Up to date 80 townships in drouth-frequented areas have joined the community effort by which each farmer agree to follow advice of the department experts in cropping their lands, sowing grasses and in other ways co-operate to protect the communities from soil drifting and other evils this

Applications for engineering and other assistance in the construction of water conservations are being received This assistance is asked for in the construction of dug-outs, small stock-watering dams, small irrigation dams for farm and ranch forage crop productions, flood schemes and pumping schemes. "They are covering this work by the department at the rate of 60 to 100 a day," the report

"On July 5, there were 162 applications from groups of farmers asking for aid in dugouts and small irrigation projects for their farms per application." There were more than 700 other applications from individual farmers

"Over 70 applications have been received and a certain amount of engineer investigating has been done. Plans and estimates for the construction of community dams for domestic use, land irrigations, or animal in transit water supply," the report

"Amongst those which have already been found practicable by the engineering staff are Wild Horse project, White Mud project, Souris dam, Crystal City dam and Pelly dam

"An engineering staff consisting of one senior engineer, nine engineers and one junior engineer has been reported on and thanks to the co-operation of the Domin'on hydrometric service, which has supplied necessary information, are busily engaged in field engineering work. Reports with recommendations are coming in from these engineers rapidly.

New Form Of Flight

Man In Florida Has Used Wings With Success

The idea of strapping "wings" on the human body and "flying" is not all by Leonardo da Vinci. At the Science Museum in South Kensington there is the replica of the machine which he designed by Frost in 1902. It is a beautiful work but unmee few. It seems now that a new form of flight has been successfully established by Clem Sohn, known as the "human bat" who only recently flew over Daytona Beach, Florida, in a machine of his design attached to his arms and "webbed feet". The earliest dreams of the human flight that was acquiring for themselves and taking back to the rural homes from which they come, an increased interest in national and world affairs, in history in the making, in the arts and sciences and in literature.

Empire Trade Agreements

New Deal With Canada Desired By Australian Premier

A new trade agreement with Canada embodying additional features is desired by Australia, Prime Minister Lyons of the Commonwealth of Australia said in his conference with Prime Minister R. B. Bennett.

The new empire trade agreements negotiated in 1932 had proved satisfactory and had brought about an increase in trade. Australia was anxious to achieve further increases and believed a revision of the present treaty in the light of experience would encourage that. The value of true Canadian exports to Australia had increased more rapidly than Australia's exports to Canada. Australia had no grievance and did not consider it had got the worst of the bargain.

Dominion Atlantic Line

Change Of Name Is Announced By Agents

Dominion Atlantic Line is the new name for the former Anchor-Donaldson Line, it was announced by Canard White Star Limited, who are their agents in Canada and the United States.

"The change of name signalizes the return of the Canadian Atlantic passenger service to complete control by the Dominion interests which originally promoted it," stated George D. Roland, deputy chief Canadian representative of Cunard White Star, in an interview at Montreal.

"The Dominion Line itself commenced its Canadian operations in 1870 and has been maintained continuously its Canadian operations in service between Canada and its home port of Glasgow. Its growth has also been marked by the acquisition of the old Allan Line service to South America, the development of the Montreal-Bristol-London trade and the service from Vancouver to Great Britain."

Experiment In Human Nature

One Dollar Bond To 1,000 Toronto Citizens As A Test

An experiment in human nature was launched in Toronto when 1,000 citizens received a $1 bill in the mail.

The currency was enclosed in an envelope with a message from the Ontario Safety League.

"Here's a dollar. Keep it if you want to, but I don't think you will," read the letter from J. F. H. Wyse, secretary of the league.

The experiment started, officials said, when a citizen donated $1,000 to the league, and asked it be sent to 1,000 persons as an appeal for funds to protect the safety of children.

The donor pointed out 1,000 children were killed in Canada since 1926 and declared, "The return of a dollar is evidence of one man's faith in humanity and is invested in the belief every dollar will come back and that each dollar will bring back more."

Air Routes Are Valuable

Mines Department Official Tells Of Empire Possible

Air and Empire are closely linked. The most valuable routes in any empire are its communications. The Romans knew that. Their roads were veins for their empire's lifeblood. And Canada's chain of modern transport has made communications ten times more valuable. If Britons and Americans could have used airplanes to exchange their views in 1775 America might never have left the Empire. The more air routes are open to keep the Empire together the fewer problems will arise to keep it apart.—London Sunday Express.

SAYS PUBLIC IS LOSING INTEREST IN AGITATORS

Victoria. — Praise for the level-headed attitude of the provincial police in the Corbin riots this year, and some plain speaking from the bench featured in a judgment handed down at Fernie recently by Judge G. H. Thompson, who sentenced conviction of three men sentenced for making trouble at the scene, and who expressed a warning to others that the public was out of patience with agitators in Canada.

A copy of the judgment was received by the attorney-general's department. It read, in part, as follows:

"Three months ago," his bench told the accused, "the papers were full of your actions. The Corbin riots appeared on the newspapers with headlines in red. I was interested in reading this morning to see that you occupy about an inch of space in the newspapers. The people have lost their interest in you; you amount to so little in the eyes of the public that the newspapers hardly mention you.

"On the other hand, what is occupying the attention of the people to-day? Italy has occupied the thoughts of the people for the last 160 years until last summer there for certain Canadians to go to Canada! And so you thought you could fight Canada. Canada has no room for men like you. The people of Canada has no time for men like you. Canada is working out its own problems. All it has contributed to you is getting you out of trouble and letting you go."

Sentence was then passed by Dr Winton as half swept a large area of the bench that has contributed toward Carslwead and Strathcona. Strathcona's losses were reported to be light without any considerable damage was fairly heavy. De Winton's losses will run between 75 and 100 per cent. over most of the district. Wildwood at the north end of the district suffered but largo as marlene fell.

Heavy losses were reared at Stavely and Granum. Heavy rain fell over most of the southern section of the province and at Brooks it was reported to approach cloudburst proportions.

From Airdrie came a report that a severe electric storm struck the district. Farmers six to eight miles south were hailed out in the heaviest hail storm in several years.

Edmonton.—Nine Canadian wheat board probably will take over operations Sept. 1, it was learned here. Until it begins to function no announcement is expected as to the disposal of the wheat carryover, except the repeated assurances of Premier R. B. Bennett it would not be dumped on the market.

The visible supply of Canadian wheat is now somewhat under 300,000 000 bushels and will be less at the end of the crop year, July 31. It is expected much new wheat will come on to the market before Sept. 1 because the late spring held back seeding, so the visible supply should continue to fall until that date.

Personnel of the new board will be announced shortly and duties of its five members will be to decide the minimum price to farmers The suggestion has been advanced in the government farmers should receive 90 cents a bushel for number one northern on the farm as a first payment. This would be around 70 cents at the head of the lakes, it is contended

The act creating the board provides the board buy wheat from the farmer at a fixed minimum price and makes later payments if it is able to dispose of the wheat at prices higher than the minimum.

Strikers At Vancouver

Men Decline To Work At Relief Camps

Vancouver. — Approximately 150 relief camp men who went on strike at four camps near Hope, 90 miles from here, arrived in Vancouver by freight train.

When the men declined to work, camp authorities issued an ultimatum that they must work or leave camp. Some 50 British Columbia police were rushed to the camps to enforce the ruling.

There was no trouble. The men continued to decline to work and were taken in trucks to Hope where they caught a freight. Each man was given 50 cents on leaving camp.

A delegation from the strikers waited on provincial relief officials last night on relief. They were refused. Most of the strikers, it is reported, are members of the groups which arrived in Vancouver recently from Regina.

SEEK SOME WAY TO AVERT AN ETHIOPIAN WAR

London.—Anthony Eden, again in the role of peace-maker, will head Great Britain's delegation to the League of Nations council meeting opening this week called to seek some way to avert an Italo-Ethiopian war.

Other developments in the East African situation, which British officials continued watching close were:

Malcolm MacDonald, secretary for colonies, told the commons Britain's military forces in Kenya, bordering Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland, had been "partially redistributed" in view of "possible contingencies on that frontier."

Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, replying to questioners, expressed his belief it was not necessary to reinforce the normal peacetime garrisons in the Sudan.

Usually well informed quarters said Britain was ready to authorize arms shipments to Ethiopia, following receipt of communications from Emperor Haile Selassie certifying that Italian troops are using bombs held up here "for the legitimate use of the Ethiopian army."

The president of the union, Sir William Jowitt, on the witness stand urged the commission to "take steps comparable with those taken in America in getting at the bottom of things."

London.—The Prince of Wales delivered an address to delegates to the conference on scientific organization of agriculture and industry.

"Being personally interested in farming both in this country and Canada, the agricultural section of the exposition will have a special appeal to me," he said, "and in that connection the development of modern farming technique and equipment, be of the greatest importance because it produces new problems in its application.

"I would call the attention of ambitious young people to the proceedings of this conference. We have abundant evidence that organized discussion of our problems, and the sifting of opinions and ideas at five previous congresses held in other countries, bore valuable fruit in inspiration and in increased efficiency.

Medals For Veterans

Alberta Men Honored For Service In Red Revolt

Edmonton.—While an enthusiastic audience of 4,300 paid homage with applause, 97 of the early Alberta famous fighting men who participated in the campaign against the rebel Louis Riel in 1885 got recognition for their part in the historic struggle when they received "peace medals" given to them at the Edmonton exhibition by the Association of Alberta Pioneers' and Old-Timers' Association.

The veterans marched single file on to the stand, shoulders squared and heads erect, giving little evidence that half a century had passed since they had stood in that fashion in soldier ranks. Hon. W. L. Walsh, Brotenant-governor of Alberta, and Major General Hon. W. A. Griesbach handed their conduct in the frontier warfare.

Hon. R. C. Matthews, Minister of National Revenue in the Dominion Government, will not seek re-election to parliament during the coming General Elections. Ill-health is the cause of his retirement from politics.

MARKETING PLAN FOR WHEAT CROP WINS APPROVAL

Saskatoon.—Complaint of misrepresentation in the press of the wheat marketing legislation was made by L. C. Brouillette, president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, speaking at the evening session of the reunion of the United Farmers of Canada at Saskatoon. He praised the plan as likely to give a substantial reduction in interest charges, the money required and providing leadership in marketing which he held might lead to co-operation with other exporting countries.

As far as the compulsory features of the measure were concerned, they appealed just as charity in this act as in the original bill

There was no guarantee in the original draft of what the board would do. Under the powers in the act the board wished to apply these features the minister of trade and commerce could give effect to them.

Papers had referred to a strong pool delegation at Ottawa. There was one person. It would have been more correct to speak of the strong grain trade delegation there.

There seemed a misapprehension in the House of Commons as to the services that Mr McFarland was to render, an opinion that his job was to market wheat! His work was to stabilize the market to enable the farmer to get a price.

Explaining the act he pointed out that of the advance board of not more than seven members, four must represent the producers.

In regard to financing the provisions were broad enough to allow access to the Central bank through the government. This should result in low interest rates. He also referred to substantial reduction. Wheat was the best of security in view of the present world situation.

With an idea of causing a low minimum price to be set, statements had appeared that the initial price farmer could produce wheat at 40 cents per bushel about half the real figure

Mr Brouillette held that the minimum price should not be a price certain to be realized from the sale but one approaching the cost of production

The principle of protection of industries was established in Canada. Enormous payments had been made by the west to the east on that account. This act was an attempt to let the farmer share in that protection.

A tariff on flour had been considered but it would have fallen on poor people. This system was better as the proposition would contribute a larger share

If the minimum price was what it should be the farmer would get more than when a basis of what would be offered in the open market.

A grain trade representative had wanted the wheat board to buy on the futures market. He had told the committee he had opposed it. It was not the intention of the act to stabilize the futures market. That attempt had been the cause of grief to Mr McFarland The amendment did not go through the committee.

He considered the talk of "mine policy" which he said had caused a fal. at Liverpool costly to Canada

He saw the new system as giving leadership in marketing Producers had a keener interest in Canadian than other markets This legislation was a step in the right direction

MUST WORK OR BE CUT OFF RELIEF IS ONTARIO EDICT

Toronto.—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn has issued an ultimatum to unemployed in all parts of Ontario they must work or be cut off relief

The policy of "no work, no relief" goes for every part of the province.

Hon. David Croll, minister of welfare, declared no labor troubles would be permitted in the "cash relief for work" plan under which more than $8,000,000 has been assigned to municipal projects throughout the province.

"We've laid down a policy of 'no work, no relief'," the premier said. Agitators have been active among the relief workers and have done all in their power to dissuade people from working."

Strikers at Windsor's municipal woodyie held an indignation rally following the ultimatum. They decided they would stay off relief rather than work and started a collection for the "holdouts."

Alderman Ray Craft who has taken a prominent part in relief work on strike, led the rally and will head a demonstration in front of the Windsor relief office efforts will be made to keep as many as possible from returning to work.

Plan To Aid Jobless

Receive Wages For Breaking Up Railway Bot Cars

Toronto.—Unemployed get wages, the Canadian National Railway gets the cars broken up for scrapping, and Scarboro Junction gets a supply of lumber.

That is, in substance, is the ingenious scheme worked out to aid jobless in the township just east of Toronto. They receive wages for breaking up the old cars, instead of a relief allowance

In addition each man on relief is given a free truckload of wood which he is allowed to select himself. And in the $1 per load paid to truckers for carrying the wood away there is money for private truck owners and to the township for upkeep of its own trucks.

Approximately 1,500 men have had at least a few days work in the six weeks the project has been operating. The railway has 502 box cars to be demolished. Already 180 have been dismembered.

Upwards of 250 men are employed in one day. They are paid 90 cents an hour by the township, and report every two weeks for work. Each is entitled to as much work as his relief allowance would amount in wages.

Agriculture In School

An almost perennial subject of discussion is the school curriculum, what it should and what it should not contain. Many there are who contend that the present-day curriculum is over-loaded with far too many subjects and contain much that should not be there. There are others, including numerous organizations who are constantly demanding that this or that new subject be added. For example, there are those who strongly advocate the teaching of temperance, not so much in the wider meaning of that term, but in direct relation to the use of intoxicants. Others insist that religion should be taught; while others again would have the recitation of the Lord's Prayer or the Ten Commandments. Still others call for the teaching of co-operation, the meaning and use of money, while the number of so-called special subjects and courses of study advocated by different groups insist should be included in the curriculum are almost beyond calculation.

The real difficulty seems to lie in the opposing views held as to what is education, and what is the function of the school in providing it to the young people of the land. Is it the main function of the school to impart information, or is it to so develop and train the mind and intellectual powers of the student as to equip him or her for the battle of life irrespective of the sphere in which they may live or the particular activity in which they may be engaged? If the former, then a very extensive curriculum would be necessary to make for all classes of students; if the latter, a fairly short and condensed curriculum might serve all

There is one subject, however, apart from the rudimentary subjects such as reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, history, composition, etc., which it has been generally recognized should, to the full extent possible, be included in our school courses, and especially so in the western provinces of Canada, and that is agriculture. Addressing the recent annual convention of the Canadian Forestry Association, assembled at Edmonton, Dr R. C. Wallace, president of the University of Alberta, discussed this particular aspect of present-day curricula in the schools. Having stated that a good deal of thought has been given in past years to the kind of education in agriculture which can best be introduced into the school curriculum, Dr Wallace said that it had to be frankly admitted that relatively little success had attended the efforts of those who are concerned with school education in the teaching of agriculture; that the formal agriculture of Grade IX and X. of the high school and on the whole not achieving what was expected of it; and that the school garden, so enthusiastically proclaimed thirty years ago, cannot be seen in Western Canada to-day.

While stating that it would necessitate going too far afield to discuss all the underlying difficulties and failures of horticultural instruction of school life during the growing season, etc.—Dr. Wallace said it had been learned that in public and high school it was science and not the art of a vocational kind that could be taught successfully. For that reason he was of opinion that successful work in agriculture in the public and high school grades will come incidentally to the study of natural science. If the applications of the principles of science were continuously made in plant and animal processes, in weather lore, and in soil problems, an interest in agriculture and in agricultural procedure would grow naturally out of the underlying scientific principles which have universal application; and the teacher would not be placed in the compromising position of posing, unwittingly, as an expert in a field where he or she was not accepted. That would be, he felt, the emphasis of the future.

On the same hand, Dr Wallace pointed out, there had been real success in boys' and girls' club work, and in school fairs in which agricultural projects had played their part, mainly because the activities were extra-curricular and conducted in the realistic atmosphere of the farm with the help of trained district agriculturists. In so far as these projects were honestly carried out by the young people themselves, they were the soundest accomplishment which had yet been achieved in the vocational activity in agriculture of school age boys and girls. The unfortunate fact was that this type of activity, as yet, did not reach all schools and school children in the rural districts.

These observations by Dr. Wallace would seem to merit the serious consideration, not alone of Provincial departments of education and agriculture, but of the parents of farm boys and girls who are themselves the trustees of rural schools and directors of agricultural societies. Dr. Wallace places stress on those scientific truths which are fundamental, which must be recognized and obeyed if success is to be achieved. These can be learned in school through the natural manner rather than through such course sets out be distinctly isolated agriculture. Successful agriculture cannot be learned wholly from a book, or through a study course, any more than can carpentering or any other vocation. That if pupils are sent out from the schools well grounded in fundamentals, made acquainted with the wonders of Nature's laws, with intellects trained to observation, to the detection of the true from the false, imbued with initiative and resourcefulness they will be primarily equipped for a career in agriculture or in any profession they may choose

Likes Life In The Arctic

Quebec Girl Spends Two Years In the North, And Is Going Back Again

Cities have no attraction for Marie Ouvrard, 20-year-old Gaspe girl. She found city life "empty" when she visited Montreal after two years at Cameron Bay, a mining settlement on Great Bear Lake, near the Arctic circle.

Marie spent a few days with her sister at Montreal, then left for her home in Gaspe. Late in the summer she expects to marry a young mining engineer, a graduate of Queen's, now in the Athabaska district, and return to the north to live.

In the summer of 1932 Marie, then 18 and fresh from the sheltered life of a convent, set out from Gaspe for Cameron Bay, to visit her brother whom she had not seen for eight years. Travelling by rail to Peace River she joined a party taking in supplies. Then began a hazardous journey by boat through the Peace river, Lake Athabaska, Slave river, Great Slave lake and the Mackenzie and Great Bear rivers.

When the party reached Fort Franklin, 350 miles from their destination, Sept. 1, the water was freezing fast, and there was no hope of navigating Great Bear lake that season. A plane was chartered to complete the trip, and Marie had her first experience of flying.

Trips by airplane to visit silver and pitchblende mines in the vicinity were among Marie's new experiences. It was some time, however, before she was permitted to go down into the mines. The miners were superstitious about women coming near them.

At Cameron Bay, where Marie was one of eight white women, she had plenty of time to learn about the life and customs of the Ind ans and Eskimos. She preferred the latter, she said, finding them more pleasant in their habits than the Indians.

Where among the Eskimos may be heard the "Marseillaise" is the latest in commerce. Marie told of one occasion when an Eskimo offered his wife in exchange for a phonograph and the fine rifle which he coveted. Blaming another man's wife, however, is a serious crime, for according to the Eskimo idea of justice, death is the fit punishment.

Gulls Fond Of Cherries

Have Their Own Method Of Securing Them

A remarkable case of birds mending a new situation by a change in their natural habits has been reported to the U.S. Biological Survey. The birds are the gulls at Salt Lake Valley of Utah. They are fond of cherries. Great cherry orchards have sprung up through the territory in the last few decades.

The gull, with its long, strong, webbed feet, cannot perch on the branches and help itself to cherries in the way that robins do. But the fruit to fall which doesn't happen in the great commercial orchards. So the gull, hanging head downward on the tree, beat down the fruit with their wings and then fly to the ground to feed on it. Similar habits, it is said, have been observed in the bays of the cherry trees supporting themselves with their feet on the limbs and devouring all the fruit within reach.

The new food habit says Charles Corbaley, biologist of the Biological Survey, seems to have developed as a result of a locally increased gull population and the consequent greater competition for the limited supply of usual food.

Cheered Wrong Man

Lloyd George has a "double" in James Gray, a magistrate in Glasgow, Scotland. This former premier learned when he recently appeared before an audience of 3,000 in Glasgow to tell about his New Deal proposals. Gray arrived at the hall first, was mistaken for Lloyd George, and received a rousing round of cheers. When Lloyd George arrived much of the long power had been spent.

The Lunar Eclipse

A heavy shadow is caused by the direct alignment of the sun, earth and moon, with the moon passing through the umbral cone stretching about 860,000 miles into space. The long duration of the last eclipse — 1 hour 40 minutes and 16 seconds — is caused by the moon's passing through a thick portion of the cone, approximately 236,000 miles away from the earth.

South Africa Celebrates

New British Dominion Was Formed 25 Years Ago

In the battle period of the King's silver jubilee another has been overlooked, that of the Union of South Africa. It was in the summer of 1910 that the former Boer republics of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State joined with "The Cape" and Natal to form another British dominion overseas.

The Boer War had ended some nine years previously, and thanks to the vision, the generous trust of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Liberal prime minister, the Dutch people were granted a free constitution within the British Empire instead of being treated as a conquered nation. Instead of their independence being taken from them they were given greater freedom than they even had had under "Oom" Paul Kruger.

There were, and probably are still among the older Afrikanders, a few recalcitrants, but the great majority are, if not ardent Britishers, South Africans first and Britishers next—which is about the proper order. Canada—Canadians first, then loyal Britishers. Their loyalty was put to a severe test during the years after Union when the Great War broke out and Germany in South-West Africa attempted to foment an anti-British rising. A small number did make themselves troublesome, but Boer and Britain combined to crush the German forces and ended as an end to Germanism in South Africa.

There is no sturdier Britisher in the Empire than the Governor-general, Jan Smuts, who has one of the finest minds in the world, and General Hertzog, the prime minister, has also become a firm friend of Britain. South Africa has a white population of about two millions, 56 per cent. Dutch and 40 per cent. British. The country is very prosperous—barely owing to its vast gold belt, and it can look forward to the future with confidence.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Has Lived On Farm

Canada's Second Woman Senator Eight Years In Saskatchewan

Canada's new woman senator knows, from first hand, of life on a Saskatchewan farm. She is Mrs. Howard Failis, and she was recently appointed to the senate.

Mrs. Failis, in her days gone by, once lived for eight years on a farm in Saskatchewan, according to word sent east.

As eloquent and public spirited wife of a Peterborough, Ontario, farmer, Mrs. Failis played a big distinction of being the second woman member of the Canadian Senate. She is the third woman to be sent to the senate in Canada's parliament, and the only woman on the government side of the red chamber.

The first woman, Mrs. Iva Campbell Failis appeared among the list of 10 senators named by Prime Minister Bennett, being chosen for the responsible task of performing most of the heavy duties of farm life with that of motherhood and home duties.

In February, 1930, shortly after the judicial committee of the privy council had declared that women were "persons" and entitled to all the prerogatives enjoyed by men in respect to government, the then prime minister, W. L. Mackenzie King, summoned Mrs. Cairine Wilson, of Ottawa, to the senate. She was the first woman senator, and the second woman to become a member of Canada's parliament.

Mrs. Wilson died, in 1932, Miss Agnes MacPhail, a Grey county farmer's daughter and school teacher, was elected to the House of Commons for Southeast Grey, Ont. She was the first of her sex to take a seat in the commons. Four women members of Canada's parliament.

Damage Has Been Repaired

Last Evidence Of Zeppelins' Havoc In Hamburg

Last visible evidence of the havoc wrought on London and suburbs by the German Zeppelins has been removed. A waste block near Ely-place, in Camberwell, where three houses were destroyed by a bomb in 1917 in a raid, has been cleared for a row of modern buildings. It was supposed to be the last remaining ruin of any consequence. The base of Cleopatra's Needle on Victoria Embankment, only a few blocks from the Houses of Parliament is heavily pockmarked.

Health Of The World

Population Of Most Countries Reported Good Health During Years Of Depression

According to the data supplied by the League of Nations Year Book, it looks as though mankind not only could take the depression, but wax healthy under its vicissitudes. The death rate in all except three of the thirty countries reporting was less than the average in the prosperous five years 1926 to 1930. The birth rate average also fell, rising slightly in the last year in five of the countries, namely, Germany, Great Britain, Ireland, Poland and Denmark.

Germany has a long lead in this regard, her population increasing 7.1 per 1,000, which is fast as in 1929, and seven times faster than that of France, and more than twice as fast as that of Great Britain, where it was 3.3 last year. United States for 1933 was 9.7.

The League book does not touch upon the cause of mental illness, but a study made by the United States National Committee for Mental Hygiene and the American Psychiatric Association, asserts that mental ailments are also on an increase since the depression, a finding that is contrary to the general impression.—Winnipeg Free Press.

CROWDS IN ITALY ROAR APPROVAL OF WAR PROGRAM

Rome—Rome rocked to the refrain "Ethiopia for us," shouted from 100,000 Fascist throats as one of the greatest demonstrations in the capital's history gathered at Colosseo and Venezia to cheer to loud applause of Benito Mussolini's African program.

A particularly frenzied shout swept through the enormous crowd when the Fascist secretary for Rome, Ornato Orani, shouted that the crowd Italy would "be ready for war against blacks and yellows and, if necessary, blondes."

Previously the demonstrators had shouted their opposition to Ethiopia and her aged champion, Haile Selassie. The crowd took Orani's mention of "blondes" to refer to Britain, also accused by Italians of intervening in the dispute.

Fearing the demonstration would get out of hand, authorities threw heavy guards about the three regulation legions. No untoward incident was reported.

Washington. — A prediction was made by Norman Davis, United States ambassador at large, that the League of Nations would bring Italy and Ethiopia to a peaceful settlement of their threatened war.

"It appears of me," Davis said, "that France is not going to break with the league and with England at the same time just to support Italy in its present course. The league was not called into session just for a pleasant gathering."

Issue Of Peace And War

League Of Nations Must Act On Ethiopian Question

London.—Britain and France at last have agreed the special council meeting of the League of Nations must get down to brass tacks on the issues of peace or war between Italy and Ethiopia.

The brass affects the political independence of a state that is a member of the league. Neither in conversations with British representatives nor in official dispatches has Mussolini yet definitely formulated the nature of his demands on Ethiopia. But from semi-official declarations it is taken for granted that he wants political control over either part or the whole of Ethiopia.

Under article 13 of the covenant. It is argued, Italy is bound to agree to reference of the dispute to the league. The British hold the council should go ahead with the merits of the dispute whether Italy objects or not, and that the council should not be kept by some technicality to divest itself of responsibility.

This was stressed by Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, when he informed the House of Commons the forthcoming league council session would be expected to take decisive action in the Ethiopian dispute, adding: "The question of actions to be taken in any such event will have to be determined by the Council, in the light of the particular circumstances such as the provisions of the covenant, and I do not consider a declaration of general unspecified terms would serve any useful purpose." He did tell questioners, however, "this government will always be found ready to co-operate with the United States government in seeking to preserve peace."

Wants Action

Says Something Should Be Done To Relieve Unemployment

Edmonton.—Unless something is done immediately to alleviate the northern flood situation, he will lead a march of northern people on Edmonton to demand action by the government, L. A. Giroux, Liberal candidate for Grouard, said.

"People are demanding action, and not telegrams or communications and discussions with Ottawa," said Mr. Giroux.

Work and bank at the mouth of Lesser Slave Lake should be dredged and the 11 crooked bends at the mouth of Lesser Slave river be straightened out, said Mr. Giroux. This was a small undertaking, engineers having estimated in 1930 that the river course could be straightened for $9,000.

Author Has Into Difficulty

Found Ride Over Alps On Elephant Required Cash

Rome: Richard Halliburton, American traveller and author who is trying to emulate Hannibal in "conquering Italy" by crossing the Alps on the elephant's back is now in difficulties with Italian authorities at the frontier point of Gran San Bernardo told him he would have to pay a deposit of 50 per cent. of the elephant's value.

Halliburton was forced to return to Switzerland, however, minus the elephant, to obtain funds for the customs deposit — something Hannibal did not have to worry about. Halliburton returned with the money, but he still had another modern obstacle to overcome in his journey to Rome — veterinary rules that pass on the elephant's sanitary qualifications before it enters Italy.

Chosen For Olympics

Member Of C.N. Police At Winnipeg Going To Rome

Montreal.—Constable R. G. Pitchell, of the Canadian National Railways police force in Winnipeg, has been chosen to represent Canada and the British Empire in the Olympic shooting matches to be held in Rome in September, it was announced in a cable received here from London.

Pickrell suffered a serious wrist injury at Bisley and was unable to compete in the second week's shooting, the cable said. Despite his handicap, however, he lost the Bisley pistol championship by only one point.

Last month he captured the annual Scottish pistol match at St. Andrews, Scotland, with 97 out of a possible 100.

May Not Be True

Ottawa. — Functionary officials here had no knowledge of the alleged wish-holding of letters from Norman "Red" Ryan during his incarceration in Kingston penitentiary. 2100

Plan To Start Shortly

Social System Will Be In Operation Within Month

Ottawa.—Application to youthful offenders in Canadian penitentiaries of the Borstal system probably will be in operation in another month.

The necessary changes for their segregation are understood to be underway. The old buildings at Kingston penitentiary which previously housed women convicts is expected to be utilized. At St. Vincent de Paul, the new Laval penitentiary likely will be used.

The system applies to those under 21 years of age and is a combination of mental, moral, physical and industrial training.

STATES STAND OF B.C. IN RESPECT TO TRADE MATTERS

Victoria.—British Columbia should "demand" a new national policy from the Dominion, or adequate compensation for its present position in its internal and external trade, the provincial government was advised in a report of The Economic Council, released by Premier T. D. Pattullo.

The report, prepared by Dr. W. A. Carrothers, chairman, and the council's research department, states:

"British Columbia buys the major portion of the manufactured commodities which British Columbia sells to eastern Canadian factories in protected markets and sells the major portion of its own products in competition in the markets of the world.

"British Columbia is dependent upon the revenue arising from its exports to pay for the imports from eastern Canada. If the prices of the commodities which British Columbia sells have fallen to a greater extent than the prices of the commodities which it buys, the province places British Columbia in an unfavorable trading position.

"Mainly because of tariff protection, eastern manufacturers have been able to resist falling prices while producers in British Columbia, mainly producing primary products, are exposed to the full competition of similar producers in all parts of the world and consequently are not in a position to resist falling prices.

"This disadvantageous position of British Columbia has been a large factor in increasing the burden of debt, public business and private, of the people of this province.

"This study clearly shows British Columbia has a logical claim for redress.

"This claim may take two forms. To demand that a national policy be adopted which would place the producers of British Columbia in a comparable position with the manufacturers of eastern Canada as far as the marketing of their products are concerned; and, if it is not considered to be in the national interest to maintain such a policy with respect, then adequate compensation should be made to the people of British Columbia."

Expense Survey

Would Investigate The Whole Field Of Governmental Expenditures

Saint John, N.B.—Appointment of a royal commission to survey the whole field of governmental expenditures "for the purpose of indicating where and how such expenditures might be curtailed," was urged here by A O Dawson, Montreal, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce as he spoke at a luncheon sponsored by the Saint John Board of Trade

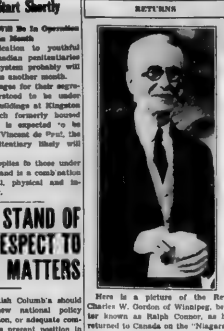
"Effectiveness of the drive for economy is illustrated in the fact that a large number of municipalities, especially in western Canada, have actually put their budgets in balance that the controllable expenditures of the Dominion were reduced some $1 millions dollars during the past three years, 1931-1934, and that there has been a net decrease in provincial expenditures of some 74 million dollars during 1933-34, compared with a net increase of some 79 million dollars during the preceding year," Mr. Dawson said

More On Voters' List

Ottawa Voters' lists for the federal election will be completed August 15, it was announced by Colonel John Thompson, Dominion franchise commissioner Following the recent revision, they are being printed at the government bureau at the rate of 10 ridings daily. The lists will be 6,000,000 men and women eligible to vote, an increase of 72,000 over the basic lists last year

Veteran Printer Dead

Montreal Isaac Glennie, 79 one of the veteran printers of Montreal well known here and in western Canada died suddenly last week. He went to western Canada 25 years ago and was manager at the Dai Man until he returned to Ontario.



RETURNS

Here is a picture of the Rev. Charles W. Gordon of Winnipeg, better known as Ralph Connor, as he returned to Canada on the "Niagara" from a visit to the Antipodes.

THE KING REVIEWS HIS AIR FORCE

This picture shows His Majesty the King wearing, for the first time, the uniform of an air marshal as he reviews the Guard of Honour at Middenhall, where he inspected the greatest gathering of British fighting planes in the history of aviation. More than 200 types of aircraft took part in the great jubilee review and later flew past Their Majesties at Duxford

Higher Duty On Jap Goods

Canada Has Increased Tax On Imports From Orient

Ottawa.—Canada has hit back at Japan's edict imposing a 50 cent surtax on Canadian goods going into the Oriental kingdom. Effective on and after Aug. 3, all imports entering this country from Japan will pay a duty of 33⅓ per cent. ad valorem, addition to duties now levied

The effective date in the case of each country conforms so that goods now in transit either to or from Japan are exempt from the imposts the two nations have clapped on Intimation was the next move in the trade situation was up to Japan

There is a difference between the two surtaxes. Japan applies her extra impost to 10 imports from this country including lumber, pulp and paper; but excludes what she needs, such as nickel, lead and zinc. Canada's surtax applies to all imports from the Oriental kingdom.

Guests At Exhibition

Saskatoon Entertained Riel Veterans And Indians For Day

Saskatoon.— Representatives of both sides of the last great historic struggle between the white and the red men, with western Canada as the prize, stood side by side on the grandstand platform at Saskatoon's Industrial Exhibition to be officially welcomed and introduced by Mayor Ford to the large assemblage in attendance

It was just a half century ago that these veterans of the rebellion of '85 went to battle on Saskatchewan soil The mere handful of the old guard now left were the guests of the exhibition management for the entire day. The event took the form of a reunion, some coming from Regina Brandon and other points in the west, including Victoria, B.C.

WOULD SUGGEST A FIXED PRICE FOR WHEAT CROP

Saskatoon.—Wheat was the major subject under discussion at a session of the provincial conference of Co-operative Young Associations here, east of a demand for special legislation from the provincial government, and a resolution urging $1.00 as the basic price the farmer should receive for this year's crop were highlights of the meeting.

The legislation which will be asked, A. F. Sprunk director of the pool from La Fleche intimated will aid the farmers to receive higher grain storage charges of one per cent per bushel per month for wheat held by them in their farm bins or elevators. Elevator companies received this amount and farmers should be entitled upon the same basis, he believed

He intimated that legislation would be sought at this session of the parliament but he did not know what it might grant. Government authorities and relief agencies said the Yangtze a devastating flood of five provinces of China is so immense that it still is impossible to estimate the total losses

Floods In China

Red Cross Has Picked Up 30,000 Bodies Of Victims Drowned

Shanghai The Hankow Red Cross Society announced it had picked up 30,000 bodies of persons drowned in the present floods along the Han and Yangtze rivers near Hankow alone Reports from other points indicated a far greater loss of life

While central China turned to the task of counting its dead, piling up by the tens of thousands along the banks of rivers from which flood waters were receding, the northern provinces continued to battle the floods of the Yellow river

Only a temporary barrier after barrier to swallow immense new areas of fertile farmlands, has already been thrown in their path 1,000 miles Eleator companies received this amount and farmers should be entitled upon the same basis, he believed

EARLY HISTORY IS RECALLED AT ANNIVERSARY

Wahaw Sask Fifty years after the Riel rebellion, relatives of Louis Riel rebel leader who was hanged at Regina, for the part he played in rhinelanders in Saskatchewan Indians and Metis, together with white men, who fought under General Middleton, met at Batoche, where Riel staged his last stand. More than 1,000 visitors attended the fiftieth anniversary celebration and sports day not forgetting to attend special masses sung in the Roman Catholic church.

Proceedings for the day were opened with high mass, said in the Batoche Catholic church, by Father Robert and by Father Boucher of St Louis. In the church grounds stands a monument erected to the memory of those who fell in the four day battle waged at Batoche in 1885

Buffalo meat, supplied by the Dominion government, was the fare eaten by the visitors at a banquet held on the sport grounds shortly after church services.

W. A. Boucher reeve of St. Louis municipality and a director of the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities, was the main speaker. After welcoming delegates from distant points, he told of the thirty historic days of Batoche how, in 1870 the settlement was formed, following the founding of a Roman Catholic church parish under Father Moulin. At Batoche the speaker stated, the first school in the North West Territories was built Yesday the school is known as School District No 1

The speaker traced the happenings during the rebellion blaming the misunderstanding for the strife. After the rebellion Batoche municipality had developed into one of the most quiet and prosperous ones in the province

Kellogg's Corn Flakes are the largest-selling ready-to-eat cereal in the world. The reason for this is threefold: They're oven-fresh, they're flavor-perfect, and they're made from the finest ingredients obtainable.

When the Kellogg Company started making Corn Flakes 30 years ago, it changed breakfast habits the world over. People everywhere eat Kellogg's Corn Flakes — because no imitation can equal their delicious flavor and crispness.

When you buy Kellogg's, you get true value. Reduce a substitute. The original Corn Flakes are made only by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

DEATH OF FRED KEYS

Fred Keys, well known old time resident of Vermilion, passed away at his home on Saturday last, July 27 following a second stroke suffered on Tuesday of that week. Fred, for the past six months, has been convalescing from the effects of a stroke that laid him low and apparently on the mend on the road to recovery when taken by the second stroke. He is survived by his widow and daughter Mrs. Victor Peach of Edmonton, and one son, Clarence, also of Edmonton.

The funeral was held on Monday at 3.30 p.m. in the United Church and was conducted by Vermilion Elks, of which lodge deceased was a member. The Rev. H. A. Boyd officiated at the services. Interment took place in the Vermilion cemetery. The large number of floral offerings testified to the esteem in which Mr. Keys was held throughout the district. A complete obituary will appear next week.

OF INTEREST TO THE LADIES

An item of unusual interest to the ladies of Vermilion and district will take place at the School of Agriculture on Friday afternoon, August 9th, when there will be a demonstration by the Singer Sewing Machine Company. This will be the last afternoon of the Farm Women's Week but the display will be open to any lady who may wish to attend.

The Singer Company is showing a display of dress and other goods of such a nature. A living model will demonstrate the various gowns and the goods will be on exhibition with which the dresses have been made. There is no idea of selling any of the dress goods, it is simply a demonstration of the wardrobe. If there is time the party will also be a demonstration of the attachments for the Singer sewing Machine.

The demonstration will begin at 2 o'clock sharp, and will be held in the Agriculture Building in the basement. It will run through until about 4.30 o'clock. This is just for Ladies.

ISLAND HILL

Hello Everybody! After a well-earned holiday (Ahem) we return in chronicle the doings of our residents and the residents of some far away places, for we are glad to know we have readers far beyond the boundaries of our heading.

Our friend Bradley like ourselves, is very silent these days.

Seeing Hagyia Cabina program is vastly curtailed, could an exhibition match not be arranged at Island Hill? Oh yes we could scrape up a team that would give you a run for your money.

The battle for Social Credit has commenced. The generals have been chosen and it only remains for the rank and file to do their duty to ensure a victory for their homes and farms that will re-echo round the world. The Vermilion constituency so we anticipated, Mayor Fallow is the standard bearer and as on this election is mainly a battle of finance no better man could carry the flag. Apart from that, folks should bear in mind it is not the man but the principle of Social Credit that they are rallied upon to vote for.

Some people tell us of the silliest mistakes made by Mayor Fallow in the past but remember the man who never makes a mistake would be equal to God, and God has no equal.

Social Credit is being supported in quite unexpected places. Speaking to the life partner of a man who is dead against the new system she surprised us by saying she would vote S. C. at the election. The women know what they are suffering under the present system and they know that the basic dividend will ensure that the home will be provided for.

Noticed during the week

The Lib-ral candidate Mr. Hunter accompanied by Mr. Wm. Telford canvassing for votes. No, they did not pay us the honour of a visit.

TOLLAND TIMES

Tolland played host last Wednesday to the largest picnic crowd of the season. The usual well run sports and tempting provided entertainment and by the appearance of the booth-shelves by dance time every one was broke.

In the boys' meed events, first prize, Master Charles Mantell took a dinner's trip to the Plaza. Darrell Portsmith 2nd; Roy Brown 3rd.

Woodvale took revenge at their picnic on their old adversaries and ran away with the pole vaulting. However it had been necessary to call in on their team owing to a shortage of the Club players.

The hard-ball series caused great excitement and at last Island Hill's stout mettle be it said no one point; Only unions looked unconquerable, but lines like and at the team of will in the field.

The Union girls took on the softball game on a picked up team here and provided visitors with a real treat of fun. Once again the crew was chosen Mr. Telford Field-ing, the out played by one point, which would have been double by 1 point had not the time keeper's whistle nullified the last hit. Tie — bad, just the breaks.

Mr. J. Kaminsky spoke during the afternoon and found the Tolland folk to be as hospitable as ever. Complimentary to Island Hill.

The good time was more appreciately wound up by the cars ensemble and a real Canadian dance. The outdoor pavilion was to a certain extent crowded by a lovely of town and the cars and side were decorated reflecting the national car flights playing on the dancers made the scene like a part of fairy land with the pretty colors of the shimmery dresses and the graceful moving figures. Indoors a second romantical crowd danced and visited, as older members of the community exchanged greetings. Sometimes the dancers dodged raindrops but not enough to discourage the gay young crowd. We ourselves had a wonderful time and was the famous Wildmere dance crash across with a crowd of revellers. We are all excited we were going to meet Winkie at last and then the sad truth she hadn't come! But we recovered, and the dancers swept on.

Another day of road work and lazing was running and Tolland picnic was over for another year

Do it again!

PAID BY MOTORISTS

According to statistics issued by the Montreal Motorists league; thirteen years ago, Alberta collected $635,000 from registrations fees on motor vehicles. Last year the amount had increased to $1,488,114, but the peak of collections was reached in 1930, when $1,889,790 was collected from this source alone.

In addition to registration fees, gasoline taxation came into effect in the same year (1923), with a tax of two cents per gallon, when $105,118 was collected. The tax was raised to five cents per gallon in 1929 when collections swelled to $2,148,612. A further increase occurred in 1933 and the province obtained six cents per gallon while the present rate, introduced in April of this year, is seven cents per gallon.

Last year with a tax of six cents per gallon $2,056,600 was poured into the provincial treasury by motorists on their purchases of gasoline and, in the space of thirteen years $17,-042,003 has been collected from this form of taxation. Aggregate collections for registrations fees ($16,726,623) and gas tax ($17,042,003) have amounted to $33,768,583 since 1922.

The export trade of Canadian cars from Maritime ports to Denmark and the West Indies has increased during recent weeks and has created a fat quarable influence.

WILDMERE WINKS

We were sorry to hear of the ball damage on Sunday to crops in the country north of us.

Several Wildmere and Daxwood folks took in the dance at Tolland last Wed. evening, a good crowd and a good time was enjoyed by all. The rain, coming at supper time, put an end to the outside dance platform, and made it a little more crowded in the school.

Wildmere League meeting was very well attended on Thursday, July 25th. A very interesting soft ball game was enjoyed before the meeting. The game was kept neatly a tie until the last inning when the score ended 15 12. We are sorry Autumn Leaf League cannot visit us this week owing to a double date over which they have no ball that day. Better luck next time.

Miss Edith Jeffcott Daxwood spent the week on Monday in this week after visiting for ten days with Mrs. Fred Hunt at Whitney. Edith also spent a couple of days at the Riley home.

Dori Riley was holding Miss Wilson to a few days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bredell on Tuesday had Mr. and Mrs. J. Bonin of Edmonton with them for a few days last week. Mr. Bonin is an inspector for the Canadian Mutual Insurance and was out looking over their farm. Mr. Bonin is from Countries.

Miss Margaret Chalmers and Mr. Wm. Sharp spent Sunday last at Mr. and Mrs. Sharp's home at Pine Lake.

Wildmere Club dance came off successfully as a nice crowd turned out. The ice cream and homemade candy was fine and it was a very warm night. Nellie Riley held the lucky ticket for the candy and cake.

Mrs Riley cut the 2nd prize at the dance and Bonnie Riley the 3rd prize of ice cream and candy.

Dorothy Baker Daxwood is confined to her home these days with a painful boil on her knee.

Miss Margaret Francis of Kinsella by and William Pitzsell of Rosetown were married last Wednesday at a quiet ceremony performed by Rev. Mr. Bell, spent Sunday at the Wallace home. Tom Peel, T. Graham, D. Hall and Ed. Schroeder were also visitors at the same home.

Fred Webber Tolland visited one day at the Smith home in Wildmere.

Daxwood church board, consisting of Mrs. Gibson, Mr. Gibbons and Frank Gibbon, and Wildmere Board members of Mrs Hodge, Mrs. Rose and Mrs. Smith met at the Auburndale

POLICE COURT AT CLAN-DONALD

On Tuesday last Basil Jack James Mallon of Victoria pleaded guilty to three charges of theft. He was charged with the theft of a wagon, mower and hay rake.

Magistrate Blackwell of Lloydminster licensed to Mallon's plea that he be given time to recover and restore the implements in question. He was given one month from date to make good, in default he is to appear again for sentence.

The Magistrate expressed his reluctance to allow counsel asked for he very emphatically declared that the sentence should have been six months imprisonment, but on account of Mallon having a large family dependent upon him, which was pathetic and sad, a month's grace in which to recover the articles which he had illegally disposed of.

CEREAL CROPS FIELD DAY, LACOMBE AUG. 14

The annual Cereal Crops Field Day will be held at the Dominion Experimental station, Lacombe, on Wednesday, August 14. This is always one of the largest and most important Field Days of the summer and this year there are several new varieties, and many marked differences of yield emphasis strength of straw and general suitability which during this exclusion so adapted or not adapted to Alberta conditions of soil and climate.

The one thousand plots of the Dominion Crop Testing plan will make a most interesting subject for comparison and discussion.

This year there is a total of 6,827 plots under test at the Experimental station. Many of the grain growing experts of Canada will be at the Station to take part in the discussions and answer questions. Addresses will be given by Mr. Newman, the Dominion Cerealist and other prominent seed growing specialists. For sure crops are rapidly increasing in importance, but grain is still the most vital crop in Central Alberta. Come to the Cereal Crops Field Day on August 14 and learn many valuable lessons concerning better varieties, improved methods and the fine art of growing grain.

The Experimental Station will provide bottle tops, cream and cups, coffee, sugar, cream and cups, coffee, sugar being their lunches. The programme will commence at 1 p.m. or immediately after lunch.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

Dewberry

The showers of rain have been scattered over very patchy areas in this district, but generally we had over two weeks of real hot dry weather up to the 24th. Matters had almost reached a serious degree, when a rain that night checked real drought. Stook and coat, prospering are better, while north and west, results are disappointing. Union district reports very little rain, even gardens suffer. Generally it would seem as though the coulee south of us draws rain in fact observations make this almost certain. Sunday's brought two heavy rains favoring the western portion of the Neighborhood.

Since haying, summer-fallowing and cultivating are in full swing in the Neighborhood, the picnic at Turney Hill and the Stampede at Derwisle did not receive a large attendance from this locality. Telland park drew a fair crowd but not a full quota.

The Neighborhood is very proud of the improvement the much-needed gravel is being laid across the road between and north along the Rise to place considerable work was also done on the roadbed itself, widening and levelling. As the light and heavy rains go over the roads this fall these excellent pieces of real hard work will be forgotten, but you may be assured the satisfactory results will be noted and appreciated.

Well, the election day has been discussed at last, and if they can anything true to turn to politics we can suggest the dirt be handled by Jim Cook's outfit will be looking for it inland Hill's shovel and scraper, and into action again.

The travellers this summer are many and wide spread. The most welcomed visitors to the Neighborhood this summer were Mrs. Ella Hilton and daughter, Marie, from Cherry Grove. Mr. Chas Friedland left Allen Porter on bondage in Cherry Grove when he brought the two ladies down and Allen is visiting Walter and renewing acquaintance with the mules. On the return trip Verna Porter and Olive Friedland accompanied Marie but do not intend to stay. During her short stay, Miss Hilton paid many visits, and met old friends at two picnics as well as many in Vermilion.

Mr. and Mrs Artie Friedland and daughters, Olive and Jean, took in a Social Credit picnic at Jarrow, to be caught in some of those copious southern showers.

Miss Audrey Doyle is spending a very enjoyable holiday at the home of Miss Edith Olds, in the Hewbert district. Mike Evelyn de Revelle spent a month in the Fairsight district, returned for a short visit and whizzed back to Lac La Biche. Kay Wagwinges is staying at the Barr Dairy Farm, guest of Dorothy and Betty Barr. Her brother Florent, accompanied by his summer visitor, George Barr, motored with Mr Yau to Edmonton to take in the Exhibition. Hughie Porter left our midst to stay with relatives near Manville. It was only through lucky circumstances that Hughie was not in the accident on the highway near Minburn reported two weeks ago.

The insect world seems to be getting the best of it at the home of Mr Artie Friedland. Mrs. Friedland received a bad bee sting on the lip, from one of a swarm in the pumphouse and they didn't Artie discover the enemy of all gardeners, some pesky bugs! Quick Henry—the Pin! Only it was Johnny Wilhite who came hurrying to the rescue in each case with the fly gun.

The favorite activities outside the daily round with housewives these days are berry picking and ironing of raw wool. The warm days dry the latter perfectly after washing and we have seen several fluffy loops in different stages of drying on the warm quilts. It's hard to believe when the thermometer hovers around 90 that it drops far below zero, but it's on and that wool feels good then. The hot rites always speak for themselves.

Master Wood Dixon returned with the party from Cherry Grove, and will visit among friends in the Neighborhood for a couple of days. Glenn dropped in on the Neighborhood Sunday when Mr. and Mrs. Wm Wilhite drove out from Vermilion on their way to the home of Wes Lampert.

We respectfully offer Mrs. E. Ibi out our Pie Plate for her words of cheer and encouragement concerning this column. We often have our distracted moments, but we do appreciate it is nice to know they appreciate our "general letter from home."

Driving a car from Wainwright last Sunday evening after the heavy rain and hail storm, the writer had reason to fully appreciate the program of road improvement carried out by the Municipal Districts of Grizzly Bear and Vermilion Valley. The whole road was practically without chains, due to the fact that the Battle River valley roads, and every other hill and valley road, had been well graded and then surfaced with a generous amount of real gravel. Narrow and high grades had also been gravelled, making travel possible under almost any conditions.

BOARD OF TRADE NOTES

Nothing very startling was brought up at the Board of Trade luncheon on Monday. Following the usual, the business session was opened, the matter of raffling dairy cows was tabled for the time being, while Mr. Andrew conveyed that if the Board wished to sponsor something of the nature of improvement of Dairy cattle in the district, that the matter of Boys and Girls rail clubs be inquired into. There are on a recognized footing throughout the province and are under the jurisdiction of the Dept. of Agriculture. Literature in regard to clubs was distributed. A letter of condolence to Mrs. Keys was passed. It was announced that the town will take immediate steps to repair and improve the road to the swimming pool.

Regular luncheon on Monday noon next, 12.10 sharp.

HURRICANE, RAIN AND HAIL SPREAD HAVOC IN WAKE SUNDAY EVENING

Thousands of Dollars Worth of Damage Done

The storm which swept this portion of Albert last Sunday evening apparently vented the bulk of its spleen on the district a few miles north of the village, and thousands of dollars worth of damage was done by the high wind and hail. These latter were in the form of jagged chunks of ice which broke windows killed hens and flattened grain. The area affected chiefly stretched in a north easterly direction from Bonaghanna, damage was done their crops by hail and other damage reported by wind was: Elmer to house at Purvis farm: Large barn and outbuildings demolished at Swans, stock was let out when some of the twister appeared in the sky; Bill Axley's - house shifted and wind uns all broken, barn, sheds etc. twisted. Christopherson's, wagon blown on top of binder, implements, outbuildings damaged; John MacPadyen - roof and loft blown from barn, implement shed and hen house none completely. Horses were hurt in barns hens were killed and some people suffered cuts and bruises. Large trees were blown up by the roots, and stacks of creosoted scattered far and wide.

Most of the wind damage was observed between 4.30 and 5 p.m. while the hail came about 7 p.m. The loss by hail was estimated running from 25 to 50 percent. The noise of the wind, rain and hail was deafening for a time.

The above is but a scattered report of what happened. A complete report is impossible.

Returning To Japan

Charming Native Of Korea Spends Three Years Attending Canadian School

Soda Nesmith — charming native of Korea, is returning to Japan after spending three years in Canada attending Canadian colleges. She plans to take back to her native land methods of western education.

She taught school in Korea, later going to Japan, where she worked with Dr. F. G. Price, evangelist. On his advice she left for Canada, spending two years at Alma college, St. Thomas, Ont., before studying at a training school. She plans to be a religious instructor in Tokyo.

In a Japanese kimono she loves to dance the interpretive dances of her people. She is an accomplished musician.

Miss Nawine is visiting in Edmonton as the guest of Miss Jessie McBain, with whom she attended United Church Missionary Training College in Toronto last year.

She said no English translations could do justice to Japanese poetry which reflects in two measures, one containing 31 lines, metrically divided, and the other only 17 Chinese in their quotient tanners recognized verse, and like much of her first poem at the age of five.

Japanese women were invading every field: even the police force and were popular officers, she said.

Restrictions For Newsboys

Vendors In Peiping, Chien, Forbid Gas To Shield Shadows

Learning that the lend cries of newsboys tended to spread alarm and unnecessary panic in that already nervous city, the Peiping authorities have issued an order whereby all newsvendors are prohibited from shouting the headlines of their papers, but must limit themselves to merely waving the names of their publications.

Another reason for the new ruling is that the newsboys advertise in a particularly loud voice the racy and vulgar stories that appear every in the last detail, in the less reputable papers.

No Tool Needed

American paper money will fold five thousand times by actual test, without cracking or breaking There is no need for any such test in Canada where it is impossible to hold on to paper money for more than one folding says the Ottawa Citizen.

Pens And Penmanship

Steel Pen Invented Early In The 19th Century

The charge that has come over pens and penmanship, letter-writing and bookkeeping, the whole art of correspondence, in the last half century is an illustration of our development in speed and consequent change of practice. We have gained much, although we have lost something What we have certainly left behind us is the wondrous variety of characteristic caligraphy, often difficult to decipher, that was carried by the pen.

The earliest writing instruments were the brush of the Chinese and the Egyptians and the stylus of the Greeks and the Romans. The origin of the quill for writing is uncertain, but it was for many centuries the chief writing instrument, holding its own until the middle of the last century Fifty or sixty years ago, a judge on the bench might still be seen scratching his notes with a goose quill, and many men, clinging to habit, wrote their correspondence that way.

The steel pen was invented early in the 19th century and took the place of the quill. It made style somewhat more uniform and its wide popularity, despite the influence of the typewriter Many leading men in Canada write their letters by hand with a steel pen and that is still almost the ultimate of courtesy in letter-writing. The stylegraphic pen came next, but it has not prospered and the fountain pen, a handy instrument, although it is not possible to display with it the richest effect in calligraphic or decorative writing

There are over half a million fountain pens made in Canada in a year, and the factory value of other pens is over $80 000 Our importations are considerable but the domestic production is far in excess.

This information is taken from reports issued by the General Manufacture Branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Gardening Favorite Hobby

Daughter Of Women Show It Tops The List

Be she over or famous, woman apparently still hesitates to tell her age, "American Women" contains biographies of 6,214 women chosen for the sacred fane. But 2,507—more than one third—declined to tell their age or their subjects too there was no time—1,852 did not state politics and 1,171 did not state religion.

The famous woman is mostly unmarried, 59 per cent. to be exact.

Teaching and writing ranked all other occupations; gardens topped the hobbies with 396 adherents, walking was the ladyfike first choice for exercise and sports with 731 declaring for it. Swimming was second with 592.

Baby's Wheat-Mixing Law

Has Cut Down Imports Of Grain Considerable

Imports of Canadian wheat into Italy are restricted, not only by relatively high customs duties—over six dollars per 100 kilos—but also by the application of the wheat-mixing law. The latter, as at present effective, compels Italian millers to grind in all per cent. of both hard and soft Italian wheat, thus leaving only one per cent. foreign wheat in the finished product. In spite of these difficulties, Canada exported 34.512 metric tons of hard, 18,525 metric tons of soft wheat, and 13,994 quintals (220 pounds per quintal) of wheat flour to Italy in 1934

Too Much Waiting

Young People Are Not Creating Opportunities As They Should

Students of Canadian history have been impressed of late by the thought that many present difficulties would disappear if young people were prepared to face pioneer conditions and make a way for themselves as earlier generations did in this country There is too great a tendency to wait for governments or organizations to create favorable opportunities and too much dependence upon services and conveniences and environment which exists only because of the toil which others performed many years ago

Encouraging Results

Discoverer Of Emetl Stops Treatment May Result In Cancer Control

Dr. J. C. Connell, McGill professor announced discovery of biological products he named "emetin" for treatment in cancer, and he was greatly encouraged over results so far achieved. He has been working steadily on detailed reports for publication in medical and scientific journals, with the assistance of a pathologist. He has also been studying the cause of cancer.

Marked improvement has been shown by patients under Dr. Connell's care, even after 10 days' treatment. Requests for treatment, from as far away as Texas, continue to come in.

Dr. Connell has found injection of the "emet" solution into the bloodstream arrests cancer growth. He hopes the treatment may prove decisively to control cancer.

Limit Of Bulk

A school inspector began by putting a few questions to the small girls.

"Now," he said, "if all the good people were white, and all the bad people were black, what color would you be?"

Some of the children said white, and others black, but little Cherie, who had remained silent until the others replied, said, "Please, sir, I'd be streaky."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

AUGUST 4

JOSIAH (A Religious Reformer)

Golden text: Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve. Matthew 4:10.

Lesson: II. Kings 22:1 to 23:30. Devotional reading: Deuteronomy 6:4-18.

Explanations And Comments

The Covenant Made by King Josiah and His People. II. Kings 23: 1-3. After the finding of the book of the law, told about in the chapter preceding our lesson, Josiah, the King of Judah, called a representative assembly to Jerusalem, elders and men of Judah, priests and prophets (Jeremiah, Habakkuk and Zephaniah were living about this time) and the people "both small and great," young and old. After having them listen to the reading aloud of the book, he stood on the platform and covenanted before Jehovah to keep with all his heart God's commandments and testimonies and statutes "to perform the acts his warnings and his rules" (Moffatt's translation) the words that he just heard read, and then he called upon all the people "to stand to it," to signify by a rising vote their purpose of keeping the law. "All the people confirmed the compact" (Moffatt's translation).

Josiah's Religious Reforms, II. Kings 23:4-20. Very thorough was Josiah in his reforms. Not content with had the temple purged of every idol and every vessel that had been used for idolatrous worship, removed the idolatrous priests, and destroyed all the idolatrous places and altars in Judah. Not content with this, he had the reforms carried through over all the Northern Kingdom, even digging up the bones of the priests of Baal and burning them upon the altars of Baal, and having the graves of priests of Baal slain.

The Passover Kept, II. Kings 23: 21-23. Second Chronicles 35:1-6 gives greater details about the keeping of this Passover. So careful was the keeping of the Passover in its strict following of the law as laid down in the Book of the Law and in the numbers taking part, that the record of the account declares it far exceeded any observed during the days of the judges or in the reigns of any of the kings either of Israel or Judah. Josiah's keeping the Passover has been a household feast which could be observed anywhere throughout the country (Dt. 16 5); now for the first time it was confined to the place that should come up to Jerusalem for the purpose of celebrating it."

Little Journeys In Science

ACIDS

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Acids are important hydrogen compounds which when dissolved in water possess a sour taste. They also have the property of turning blue litmus, a dye extracted from certain lichens, red. A substance such as litmus, which undergoes a change to color upon the addition of an acid or alkali, is known to science as an indicator. Thus litmus is red in the presence of an acid and blue in the presence of an alkali.

The most common acids are sulphuric, hydrochloric, nitric, carbonic, and acetic. Acetic acid is the active part of vinegar, which has been used by man for thousands of years. Apples, lemons, grapefruit and other fruits owe their agreeable flavor, in part, to acids, such as malic, citric, and tartaric. Acids always contain the element hydrogen and often oxygen.

Hydrochloric acid gas may be prepared by pouring strong sulphuric acid upon salt. It is a very soluble gas and the solution is known as hydrochloric acid. This acid is used for the preparation of hydrogen and chlorine and for cleaning the surfaces of metals.

Concentrated sulphuric acid, or oil of vitriol, contains about 8 per cent. of water. When strong sulphuric acid is poured into water, an enormous amount of heat is liberated. Concentrated sulphuric acid has a great affinity for water, for the elements which make up water, namely hydrogen and oxygen. Cane-sugar, for example, is a chemical compound composed of the elements carbon, hydrogen and oxygen. When concentrated sulphuric acid and hence cast. Nitric acid when pure is a colorless liquid. Commercial nitric acid contains about 68 per cent. of the active substances and 32 per cent. of water. It is made by heating nitre with hydrochloric acid a mixture known as aqua regia (a translation of aqua regis is the latin for royal water and is given the name because it dissolves the noble metal gold. Nitric acid is used in the manufacture of explosives and fertilizers.

Carbonic acid is produced by bubbling carbon dioxide gas into water and is found in natural waters. Although it is a weak acid, which decomposes very readily, it plays an important role in certain processes which take place in nature. Thus, limestone caverns are enlarged by gradually dissolves carbonate rocks to form caves.

Earth May Blow Up

Surrounding Shell Being Gradually Blown Away By Solar Heat

Old Dr. Bailey Willis, 78, of Palo Alto, who loves to carve the wits out of "seismophobic" Southern Californians, presented a theory of the Earth's history and structure which disquieted many a long-range imagination. The Earth, he said, is a segregated, originally was an aggregation of cold substances which gravitation pulled into a ball. Little planetary mass somewhere between 50 million and two billion years ago. Ever since, radioactivity—discovered by Earth's materials have been driving energy towards its centre until to-day the Earth is a hot ball with a solid mass of iron, nickel, radium and other heavy elements 4,000 miles in diameter surrounded by a rocky shell 2,000 miles thick, and this by a relatively thin crust, residue of atomic forces continue, and will continue to supply heat and melt the surrounding rocks with the result that Mother Earth may eventually take her place among the stars."

Seeking a [illegible] for the frequency of earthquakes along the Pacific Coast, Dr. Beno Gutenberg of Pasadena presented a thesis that the Pacific Ocean represents a vast crater, which Dr. Willis feels has lost 20 miles of outside skin. That "raw spot in Mother Earth's epidermis to explain the true nature of Earth's distortions," the "crust" movements appearing to extend along the edges of the shinbone crater. We shall not be able to predict the day on which an earthquake will occur. But it is possible that we shall be able to set the date to within a year or so."—From Time.

Bread Made From Seaweed

Seaweed bread now has a modest sale along the Pacific slope. It's made from giant kelp plants that grow in profusion along the coast and contains iodine and other mineral considered beneficial. And while the bread has an odd flavor, its far from unpalatable.

Women pipers, it has been decided, are not eligible for membership of the London Scottish Piping Society, a body composed of bagpipe players only.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gay, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costumes for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all he had, and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At this point a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions.

After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Aunt Arrive at Pine Ridge. They are met at the railway station by Columbine Nelson, who in turn introduces Mark and Matthew Adams, two neighbors of Aunt Columbine, and the pet cat for Pine Ridge, which village causes disarray in both Nancy and Jack because of its dilapidated appearance and general lack of comforts. Nancy and Jack are shown to the rooms they are to occupy, and both the young people consider the furniture and decorations baleful and, contrasting the present scheme with the luxurious home in Boston, wonder if his family

LARGE SUM COLLECTED FOR RURAL ROADWORK

Citizens Display Real Feeling for Farmers

The Vermilion citizens, through their organization, the Board of Trade this week collected over $150.00 subscribed to grade one mile of the main road leading to the Cummings district. Funds to do this were lacking and Councillor Reddaix of Vermilion Valley, made an appeal to the Board of Trade for aid. A special committee of J. A. McBride and E. M. Stewart were appointed and their canvass met with surprising results. Not one person solicited refused to donate, everyone appearing quite anxious to give the farmer a good road to town.

Last year leading farmers of the south asked the aid of the Board of Trade in approaching the Department for additional grants, as this road is one of the main arteries from the south into town. The road was in a poor condition, the grading was below standard and the surface rough. The Board of Trade co-operated by sending two delegations to the government. When arrangements were finally completed this summer it was found that funds for the grading of one mile were lacking. The Board undertook to raise the money needed although the road where the money will be spent is well out in the country. The canvass, as stated above met with very satisfactory results.

Baseball Play-Off Series Start Here

Vegreville vs. Locals Monday Evening, 6 o'Clock

Vermilion and Vegreville baseball teams are due to clash on the fair grounds here at 6 p.m. Monday night in the first round of the Alberta Provincial championships. These teams have met several times before this season and with their strongest lineups in action, just about as good baseball as played in western Canada will be seen.

This is the first time that a Vermilion team has entered the play-offs. The locals, an all home town outfit, have a remarkable record behind them this season and will probably travel darn a good many rounds of the series.

Pitching selections have not yet been announced but the game starts at 6 p. m. sharp Monday, Aug. 12. It is the only game to be played in Vermilion. This is a best 3 of 5 series. The second game is scheduled for Wednesday at Vegreville and the third if necessary will be played the evening of the same day.

Messrs. Curtis of Manaville and Hughes of Minburn will handle the game here.

Anniversary Fair Is Success Despite Rain

Vermilion's thirtieth Fair opened in a very damp beginning on August 1st, the heaviest rains of the entire season coming to mar the program which had been so carefully planned in celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the conduct of the exhibition; rains continued throughout the entire day and into the morning of August 2nd, making it difficult for the management to pursue their original plans.

With an entry list considerably larger than for some years past and with the stage set for the holding of the best fair in the history of Vermilion, people were kept at home by the impassable roads, and arrangements for sports, races, etc. were of necessity changed or abandoned. At noon on Friday the weather cleared and the Fair Board threw the grandstand open to all and sundry; the packed grandstand viewed what are considered to have been the best attractions of tourist this country in many years and gave the performers a large meed of appluase. Early in the evening another downpour sent the hopes of the board allotments and made it impossible for the attractions to be repeated. The rain on the main days as possible again without change to the people in attendance.

The Fair was conducted on Saturday and Vermilion was favoured through the air we are largely responsible, in bringing in huge crowds of people. The horse racing program was carried out on Saturday and Monday baseball and softball tournaments on Vermilion's baseball diamond, the game with Vermilion teams for the latter's expenses this greatly assisting in the entertainment of all in attendance.

Locals conducted participated but little save many an opportunity to test their judgment and participated in those interested, in one unfortunate case when the armbands were mixed up the drivers with the result that some who should have received dividends on their investment never left out in front.

Record Of Publisher

Lord Atholstan Has Served Montreal Star For 66 Years

Lord Atholstan, publisher of the Montreal Star, the Montreal Standard, and influential in other Montreal publications, has attained to the venerable age of eighty-seven years and is still in active service, giving all his thought to the welfare of his country, his city and his daily paper as a commentator on public affairs. Seldom does he miss a day at his office, and never in the 66 years he has been director of the newspapers is quite apparent

Of his eighty-seven years some sixty-six have been given to the Montreal Star, and that is a record which has never yet been attained by another editor or publisher in Canada—sixty-six years of continuous service and of rulership of the leading most influential paper in Quebec, probably in all Canada, for the Weekly Star is a wonder in its way, going each week to a quarter million subscribers.

Lord Atholstan was born as Hugh Graham, in the little village of Athelstan, Huntingdon County, on July 5, 1848, but journeyed to Montreal, as did many other ambitious lads from the peninsula of Quebec Province He started the Star whilst the other pages in the metropolis were in either a semi-stupor or a poor stage.

Mixed Lots Of Sympathy

Editors Of Newspapers Do Not Have Hard Job

Governor Eugene Talmadge, himself an editor in Athens, Georgia, died a hero for newspaper workers.

"Newspaper work is all work and no play, and very little pay," commented the governor. "I used to think anybody in newspaper work had a nice, interesting job.

"When you hang a paper going, and try to keep your news columns interesting, let me tell you, brother, you've got a job on your hands. I'm hanging my paper out of debt, but it's hard work.

The governor is associate editor of The Statesman, a weekly political paper.

The Joys Of Motoring

Toronto Man Had Plenty Of Grief For One Day

Even Chief Draper never had any more trouble with parking and parkers than a well known man had the other day . . . He spotted a space between a small sedan and a large coal truck, but despite clever manoeuvring, the space was a bit too small.

Climbing out, he stepped back to the sedan, only to find it locked, and unbudgeable . . . Then he approached the truck, hoisted himself up to the driver's seat, released what he thought was the emergency brake . . . and dumped five tons of coal on Yonge street.

Of course, you think the tale ends here . . . but our man has had more bad luck, and this, cross our heart, is a true story. He casually tossed a cigarette out the car window and some time afterwards smelled smoke

Looking about, he discovered that the lighted cigarette had gone into the back seat instead of on the road, and that said back seat was now on fire. . . . Keeping his presence of mind, he stopped the car, lifted the entire back seat out, and threw it over the fence into the field . . . And while he was congratulating himself on getting out of that nasty situation nicely, he heard shouts . . . and turned around to find that he had set fire to a hay field, which, before the volunteers had it quelled had burned two acres of hay.—Toronto Telegram.

The Rubber Industry

Production Has Shown Astonishing Growth In Present Century

Rubber as an industry has had a most phenomenal growth and is one of the highlights of twentieth century civilization. At the beginning of the present century, production amounted to four tons a year; in 1934 it had reached approximately 1 000 000 tons. One of the chief rubber producing centres is British Malaya which produced 468 765 tons of rubber last year, or about half the world's production, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. The improvement which has taken place in world trade is reflected in the value of the rubber exports from British Malaya for the first ten months of 1934, which increased to $239,840,000 from $122,500,000 for the same period the year previous, or 97 4 per cent. At the beginning of last year, British Malaya had 3,135,-000 acres of land under rubber. A total of 1,000 of the latest cars come from British Malaya. Imports into British Malaya from Canada show an increase of 30 per cent. 1934 over 1933, principally in motor cars, dried fish, canned milk, canned vegetables.

Dalai Lama Chosen

Search Lasted Eighteen Months Before Eight Baby Found

It has taken eighteen months for the Great Lamas to find the right successor to the late Dalai Lama, in whose office the Hawry Kingdom combines that of Emperor and Pope. The chosen successor must be a Tibetan baby, born at the same moment that the Dalai Lama died, and into whose body the august dictator's soul has passed. A commission of seven priests searches for this baby, and on this occasion found twenty, from whom six were chosen by the Grand Lamas for final selection before the praying-wheel and image of Buddha in the Lhasan palace. After being anointed with sacred butter, and bathed in water from the Ganges, the new infant Dalai Lama, guarded by soldiers, is carried from his mother forever. His parents are paid for his high station, but she is recompensed with material wealth. She is taken before her departure to the palace treasure chamber, and may carry away as much gold and gems as she can gather in both hands. That is a pleasure, three times as big as France, almost as cold as Siberia, and most of it higher than Mont Blanc.

Ends Long Canoe Voyage

Montreal Girl Makes Trip To New York Alone

"Fed up" with humanity, Ida Lyman, 23-year-old Montreal social worker, recently completed a 550-mile water trip from Montreal to New York in a 15-foot Indian kayak.

"The trip has been a good rest for me," she said, after she finished telling of the rigors of the voyage. Storms and rapids beset the route—via Lake Champlain—which was that taken by the pioneers of 300 years ago.

She is the first person to make the trip single-handed, said Capt. Bill Byrne, president of the George Washington Boating Association, New York, at whose float she tied up.

Miss Lyman, a native of Denmark and a naturalized Canadian self the first leg of the trip was the hardest. "There's a lot of white water in the Richelu River between Montreal and Lake Champlain, and several days I had to 'buck storms,' she said. Her cockleshell craft she built herself two years ago.

Miss Lyman returned to Montreal by airplane.

Knew Famous Nurse

Ontario Minister Was Once Engaged To Florence Nightingale

Among the interesting books and papers which have been presented to the University of Western Ontario, London, by Thomas Conner of Godrich is a collection dealing with the Rev. John Smithurst, who died at Ekore, Ontario, in 1867, and who in his youth was engaged to Florence Nightingale, the famous nurse. Rev. John Smithurst was born in Derbyshire, England, and was a cousin of Florence Nightingale. In his youth they were engaged to be married, but as he was an ardent follower of Christ he objected and the engagement was broken. Mr. Smithurst came to Canada as a missionary and his famous sweet on to reach great heights of fame as a nurse.

Twinkle, twinkle little stars," and they're really not so very far, for this is the kind even you can capture and anchor securely to earth by means of a beautiful patchwork quilt. The pieced star in the center is clearly defined points, bordered by right contrasting diamond patches, has all the delicacy of a snow crystal, yet is surprisingly easy to piece, and makes a decorative repeat on an all-over quilt. Only four materials are needed for it and, to simplify matters, there are only three pattern pieces. This quilt is an old colonial favorite

In pattern 3249 you will find the Block Chart, an illustration for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

AUGUST 11

DANIEL (Temperance and Health)

Golden text: Know ye not that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which ye have from God? I. Corinthians 6:19.

Lesson: Daniel, Chapter 1.
Devotional reading: Psalm 46.

Explanations And Comments

King Nebuchadnezzar's Plan for Daniel and Three Companions, Daniel 1. It was in the third year of Jehoiakim's reign (606 B.C.) that Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, first besieged Jerusalem and carried back to Babylon Jewish captives, together with some of the treasures of the temple. Among the captives were Daniel and the other youths of our lesson. The king had directed one of his officers to take Jewish youths of noble families who were especially fair and bright, and have them enter what has been called "The Princes' College of Babylon." For three years they were to receive education for the civil service. They were to be taught the language and learning of the Chaldeans. They were to be nourished with a portion of the food and wine served to the king himself.

A Wise Experiment, Daniel 1:8-18. Daniel firmly resolved that he would not defile himself with the king's meat or wine, for he knew they were not good for him. Moreover, he thought of them as defiling, for the "abstainers" of Israel have often refused to sacrifice to idols, or eat meat that had been prepared according to Jewish laws, or would be the food of animals deemed to be unclean by the Jews. See the law in Dt. 14; 15; 32; Lev. 11; Acts 10. Daniel requested Ashpenaz, the chief eunuch, to allow him, then, to permit him and his three companions to refuse the food given. Though kindly disposed, he was a heathen officer hesitated to grant his request. Why, should the king consider that Daniel with those of the other youths that were with him were in poorer condition than they? he questioned. Then Daniel suggested that they be given enriched myself with what had been provided for you, and my life would be forfeited," he added.

Daniel had a plan which he himself not put into effect but suggested. He proposed it. "Test us," he said, "let us eat pulse (herbs, Revised Version; vegetables, Moffatt's) and drink water for ten days, and then compare us with those children of the youths who eat the king's dainties (food), and deal with them accordingly.

The Success of the Experiment, Daniel 8:14-18. Ashpenaz yielded to Daniel's request, doubtless with many misgivings. At the end of the time suggested by Daniel the experiment had succeeded. The four youths were found heavier and fairer than those who had eaten the king's meat. They were put permanently on their simple diet.

Plain Living and High Thinking, Daniel 1:17-20. God gave the four lads knowledge and skill in learning and wisdom. Daniel was also given understanding in all kinds of visions and dreams: see Chapter 2. When all the youths were summoned to his presence, the king found them four-fold better than all the magicians and enchanters in his realm, and they were given positions which involved personal attendance upon him.

Town Crier Not Needed

Newspaper And Radio Have Killed Profession In England

The job of town crier of Cromer, England, does not pay and R. H. Laurence has resigned the post. The crier's average earnings during the summer season were only $3 a week. In the winter he earned practically nothing at all.

Hence the office of town crier has become vacant and the gorgeous uniform has been folded away among the mothballs. The 300-year-old bell is silenced.

In the summer there were entertainments and theatrical performances to advertise in the ancient manner of "crying" in the streets. Occasionally a visitor employed the crier to announce the loss of some article. For a modest fee Laurence donned his uniform, packed his bell under his arm and worked his way right through the town, stopping at every important corner to cry his news.

Town crying as a profession in England is falling away. Newspapers and the radio have crimped their style.

Paper was made in Egypt centuries ago but to-day there is only one paper mill, located at Alexandria, and it produces cardboard for making cigarette boxes for which there is a great demand. Waste paper and rags obtained locally are used in the manufacture of this cardboard.

Little Journeys In Science

ALKALIS

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

The term alkali is of Arabic origin, and is used to designate certain substances like lye, washing soda, and ammonia solutions which are capable of neutralizing acids. Alkaline substances possess properties in many ways just the opposite of those of acids. A carefully balanced mixture of an alkali with an acid is generally neutral, being neither acid nor alkaline. A person who has swallowed an acid poison is given a dose of an alkaline substance such as washing soda, which is known in science as bonline carbonate, or even plaster scraped from a wall.

Alkalis when dissolved in water have the property of turning red litmus, a dye extracted from certain lichens, blue. A rubstance which changes its color upon the addition of an acid or alkali, is known by scientists as an indicator.

The alkalis commonly available are sodium hydroxide or caustic soda, potassium hydroxide or caustic potash, calcium hydroxide or slaked lime and ammonium hydroxide or ammonia water. The latter under the term base is also used to designate alkalis.

Sodium hydroxide is a white solid which dissolves in water may be prepared in the form of long sticks. It is very soluble in water and solution is usually called lye. The solution has a caustic taste and a slippery feeling. Sodium hydroxide is used on a large scale in the manufacture of soaps, and in the cleaning of cotton, wool and other textile fibres. Potassium hydroxide is used in testing goods for cotton or other vegetable fibres.

Ammonium hydroxide, known commercially as caustic potash, is very similar to sodium hydroxide, but is more expensive.

Calcium hydroxide or slaked lime is used on a large scale in mortar. It is also used for whitewash and in preparing lime-water. In the laboratory lime-water is used to test for carbon dioxide when the latter carbon dioxide comes in contact with calcium hydroxide a chemical reaction takes place producing a white insoluble substance known as calcium carbonate, which changes the clear lime-water solution to a milky color. The formation of calcium dioxide and hence if a person blows through a straw into a solution of lime-water, the lime-water turns milky. This is a simple experiment to show the presence of carbon dioxide in the breath. A lime-sulphur combination spray is prepared by adding sulphur to calcium hydroxide

Magnesium hydroxide is similar to calcium hydroxide, but is less soluble in water. Milk of magnesia is a very weak solution of magnesium hydroxide in which magnesia, or magnesium oxide, is suspended acids.

Ammonium hydroxide is formed by dissolving ammonia gas in water. A solution of this base is used on a large scale in the cleansing agent and for neutralizing acids.

Blind Are Good Swimmers

Show Amazing Coolness When Diving From Springboard

Blind girls use their toes instead of their eyes, as was demonstrated to Viscountess Hampden at the opening of the new swimming pool at Chorleywood college, Hertford, Eng., where blind girls are being educated.

The pool has a raised pavement round the edge and the springboard is fitted with a doubled thickness of matting at its end. Using their toes as guides instead of their eyes, the girls plunge in with easy grace

An official of the National Institute of the Blind says: "Swimming is one o. . . d the blind enjoy with the confidence of sighted people and the coolness with which some of the blind girls at Chorleywood leap off a six-foot diving board is amazing."

The college is for those who are totally blind or whose sight is so poor that they are not read more than one or two books in a year.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

From the Neighborhood of the [illegible]

The Neighborhood expresses its sincere thankfulness that it missed the damage of last week's storm, and by no narrow s margin! Every sympathy is felt for those who were in its path, however, and we realize that only a fresh of weather kept us from being victims.

The later rains held up haying operations, but brought crops and meadows to a much better stage. The outlook is now much more favorable.

One aftermath of the storm was the work needed on the part of the local telephone owners to repair damage done along the highway south. In some cases, poles and lines had blown clear across the road.

Among our travellers, we note that Mrs. W. Doyle Sr. and daughter Joy, journeyed to the east country to pay her last respects to Mrs. Doyle's daughter, Mrs. Wm. Dunning. Some of the berry bunters in the Neighborhood intend to keep on going this summer until they reach the blueberry country. Oh those pies!

Miss Kay Van has returned home, and now Mr. and Mrs. Van Wageningen intend to show some of the northern lake fish just how they should be caught. We prophesy plenty of bites all right, but not all from the fish.

ISLAND HILL

Although experiencing a rain storm Sunday week unprecedented in the annals of the district we were fortunate to escape the hail which did so much damage in other districts. Barney Pawul and the Noonan family, Turkey Hill, had 100% crop loss and Barneys' house and barn were almost completely wrecked.

John and Brodee McDaniel Edmonton are on a visit to their parents here.

Eric Hawken after some weeks in the hospital is home looking remarkably fit after his operation.

The Dominion elections will soon be over and it is interesting to note how Canada came to be called a Dominion. When it was decided to unite the various provinces under one government in 1867 there was much much debate over the choice of a suitable name for the new confederation. Names have been suggested but no title seemed comprehensive or appealing enough until one evening when a member of the committee [illegible] Tilley reading the 72nd Psalm before going to bed came upon the passage "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth". "There is the name for Canada" he exclaimed and when he related the incident to his colleagues next morning they adopted the title "Dominion" with acclamation.

Two of our residents Messrs. Hugh B. Evans and L. Payne succeeded in securing their fish for being the largest judged having the largest number of years residing in the country.

CHUB REPORT

Rust, Drought and Hail have taken their toll of crops in Western Canada in the past three weeks, and have lowered the percentage condition figure down to 76% or normal as against Ninety-two per cent reported three weeks ago and sixty-one per cent at this time last year, according to the Searle Grain Company' Crop Report based on reports from eleven hundred and ninety five reports from correspondents.

Manitoba has suffered the most of the Three Prairie Provinces. The Wheat condition is now reported at fifty-nine per cent whereas three weeks ago it was one hundred and two per cent of normal and was sixty-seven per cent last year. The rust infestation throughout the Southern and Central districts of the Province will greatly lower yields. The full extent of the damage will not be known until threshing time.

The Saskatchewan crop is now reported at seventy-nine per cent of normal as against seventy-six per cent

Mr. Mills, the student minister for this summer for this district, is organizing a boys' camp at Wade Lake, south of Lloydminster. Several lads from here will attend.

Mr. Ralston, the student for last year, who is now stationed at Biggar, Sask., has been back to these parts for a fortnightly visit, and has been given a warm welcome by his many friends in the district. Mr. Ralston reports that Biggar has had its first rainy season for eight years, but even then, that our local crops make a better showing.

Messrs. Fred Haines and Jack Lyons attended the U. F. A. Federal constituency convention at Edgerton on the 26th. Mr. Haines being a delegate.

Mr. F. Slocum again played his part nobly as a community member by kindly giving attendants to the boys and girls camp the necessary transportation to town in his car.

The last meeting of the Grizzly Bear Juniors was acmally attended, some many members were at camp. The brave calm who turned up showed the Grizzly spirit by taking a swim to Mr. Ford's dam, even though a cool breeze was blowing with the rain washed hills.

MYRNAM NEWS

Mass Demonstration Against War and Fascism

Myrnam's rally against war and fascism held on Sunday Aug. 4th, under the auspices of the Canadian League was a great success. The interest displayed by the rural population can easily be judged. People travelling distances up to 50 miles, by truck cars and teams to take part in this protest against war and fascism.

At least 600 people, the youth strongly represented, filled adjacently to the various speakers, who outlined the futility of imperialist wars showing how the working class of the world are only used as pawns to the gain of the capitalists, and the cynical lust and greed disregard for those who fight the battle for capitalism. The main speaker, Mayor Harold Gerry of Beverly Alberta who is a member of the Edmonton Branch of the League against War and Fascism related the history of the league since its inception and in particular its work in Canada. Judging from the demonstrations of those who heard the various speakers, the initiative committee of the league at Myrnam will be successful in building a strong branch of the league at Myrnam, swelling the volume of world protest against these retrogressive actions and tendencies of the decayed and dying order.

All nominees for the Vermilion constituency had been invited to attend this meeting, to give their stand regarding war and fascism but only the Communist Candidate responded. Wm. Hainz took the platform fully endorsing the main speakers views on the question under consideration and pointed out that we can only judge by our previous experiences in combatting the vile evils and following the policies pursued by the Communist party in struggle against war and fascism.

A concert was given by the students of the Sisbee summer school, in the Labor hall in the evening at which Mayor Gerry spoke again.

Word has been received by the Communist Election committee for the Vermilion constituency that Tim Buck, leader of the Communists in Canada will spend a day in Vermilion constituency before the provincial elections take place. The committee intends to call the meeting in the most central place in the constituency to enable all to attend. Watch for date and the place of the meeting and make your arrangements to be there in good time.

William Philipovich, the bright pitcher and captain of the Myrnam Strikers' baseball team and hockey enthusiast left Myrnam on Aug 2nd for the Soviet Union. Together with other prominent Canadian sports and field men he will be a guest of the Sport International of Soviet Union and attend the first International Spartakiad that will take place during September and October The Workers' Sport Association of Canada which has a very large membership made possible for a Canadian Sport delegation to Soviet Union of some thirty athletes.

Here's hoping that Wm. Philipovich will bring back first hand news regarding the development of athletics and conditions in general in the Soviet. Money was collected and some of it borrowed for his fare. Anybody that wishes to donate a few dollars to wards his fare may do so by sending it to the Workers Sports Association at Myrnam. this will be very much appreciated.

Exhortations to co-operate are heard from every platform these days and it is co-operation that the town requires this month in the matter of tax payments, light, power and steam heat payments to provide for debenture retirements on September 1st.

What is really needed is a census of political parties. In Alberta right now are Conservatives, Liberals, United Farmers, Laborites, C.C.F.-ers, Social Credit-ers, Marxists, Communists, Single Taxers, Economic Reconstruction associationists, Independents of various colors, and probably some others that have been missed in the rush

Here are five Canadian Rover Scouts on board the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of York, in which they sailed from Montreal to attend the World Rover Moot being held this year in Sweden. Rovers and Wanters Canada are represented by the five, who, left to right, are: L. P. Simmons of Peterboro, Ont., Allen Moore, of St. Paul, Alta., A. B. Cormack, the scout of Ottawa, Ont., Eleanor Webber, of Edmonton, and A. C. Kemsley, of Saint John, N. B.

The Canadian Rovers will form part of a British contingent of 1,000 attending the Rover Moot, or nearly half the entire number expected to attend. They will be in camp for six days at the Moot headquarters on Ingarso Island, not far from Stockholm Elaborate preparations have been made by the Swedish Rovers, hosts of the gathering, who are headed by Prince Gustaf Adolf, eldest son of the Crown Prince of Sweden. The camp will have a fire brigade, telephone offices, post-office, hospital and will publish a daily newspaper in the four official languages of the Moot, English, French, German and Swedish.

The Swedish Moot will be the second World Rover Moot. The first was held in Switzerland in 1931. Two of the five Rovers in the above picture, A. C. Kemsley and Allen Moore, attended the

This might well be regarded as an election issue of the Standard, as three of the five parties who are contesting the provincial election in this constituency, have put their policies before the people by means of the advertising columns of the paper. They considered that 3000 readers—and this is rather a conservative estimate — read The Standard weekly it can easily be seen that there is no better way to reach the electorate.

There is only one more publication of The Standard before election day — August 22nd.

ISLAY News

George Bowen who has been working near Camrose has returned to Mrs. Stone's farm here. He arrived on Sunday.

Mrs. H. Stone, Bill Stone and Miss Marjorie Powell returned by car from Edmonton on Sunday where they had been to attend the wedding of Miss Dorothy Stone, which took place on Saturday. They were also accompanied on the return trip by Miss Clara Bothwell, who has spent the past month in Edmonton taking organ lessons.

Miss Jean Beecroft of Edmonton, spent from Saturday to Monday at her home just south of the village. Mr. and Mrs. Beecroft just returned from camping at Lake Laurier, previous to Jean's arrival.

Congratulations to Islay high school pupils who are seeking higher education elsewhere. Miss Kathleen Gordon, Miss Alison Beecroft and Dillie Bothwell, third year high school students, were successful in passing all of their units and now enter their final high school year.

The C. G. I. T. Girls returned from a 10 day camp on August 1, from Elk Island Park.

The Lloydminster Pair proved a big drawing card to large numbers of Islay and district residents the first three days of the week.

Mrs. Henry Potvin and three children of Weyburn and Miss Smith of the same town, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Potvin and also Mrs. Pete Kennedy.

BATTLE RIVER U. F. A. CONVENTION

A very successful convention of the above association was held in the grounds of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Spencer, south of Edgerton, during the last three days of July.

Numerous people brought equipment and camped for the full time.

The first two days were fully occupied by special speakers, reports and business.

Besides the member (Mr. Spencer) the following people gave addresses: Mrs. Price president of the U.F.W.A., Mrs. Frank Redmond director of the Battle River Constituency, Miss Margaret Archibald vice-president of the Juniors, who recently won the gold medal for speaking at the young people's conference at Alberta University, William Irvine M. P., W. D. Farquharson M.L.A., Lloyd Reynolds M. A. and Dr. Cousier, the U. F. A. Nominee for the Provincial House.

The weather was perfect, the attendance splendid and much enthusiasm was evinced throughout the proceedings.

The third day was given over to the Juniors, who attended in a greater number than ever before. Part of their time was occupied in the convention hall, and part given to various sports such as softball, tennis, bathing, horseshoe etc.

Mr. Spencer's Report on the Past Session of Parliament

In making his annual report, Mr. Spencer began by giving an outline of the speech from the Throne. This he said, referred generally to the promises made by the Prime Minister in his radio addresses in January last. An important piece of legislation, however, not mentioned but after wards introduced, was that to establish a Canadian wheat board. This later legislation was fought tenaciously by the Grain Exchanges of Vancouver, Winnipeg and Montreal, and also by such papers as the Winnipeg Free Press, and the Financial Times.

The Budget, he said, was very different from any of the first three years of this Government. Of the Tariff changes there were 48 decreases and only 4 increases, special attention being given to the British Preference. Taxes on higher incomes were increased, and a gift tax introduced to obviate people dodging payments. There was a deficit of $48,500,000 in the budget, if extraordinary and capital expenses were considered.

The trade of the country has slightly increased by both exports and imports.

Two outstanding items of expense are the interest on the National debt which amounts to $140,000,000 and the cost of relief, which was $30,000,000. The Dominion Government has spent on relief in the past five years no less than $175,000,000.

Mr. Spencer said that during the last five years, and especially the last two, the Government had made frantic efforts along orthodox lines to make our present economic system work. We still face however the serious problems of unemployment, ill-will, sickness, poverty and crime. Something more therefore must be done to restore the purchasing power of our national credit and to give to people a protective power to solve the problems of unemployment, unemployment, disease, poverty and ill-will in this respect.

Below are some outstanding features during the session were as follows:

1 Amendments considered to the B. N. A. Act
2 Unemployment insurance and social legislation
3 Economic Research Council
4 Civil service amendments
5 Public Works expenditures
6 Considerable legislation passed on recommendations to Privy Council Commissions
7 Grain Board Bill
8 Attempt to make Bank a public utility
9 Revaluation of gold
10 Amendments to Bank Laws No 11. Adoption of a definite Health Policy

At the end of his report on the session was given an outline of the evidence to ask questions of the Premier in relation to his parliamentary work.

The keenest attention was given to Mr Spencer's report and applause was taken at the question period particularly with respect to the Wheat Bill.

During the business session much pleasure was given from time to time, by musical and other items which were very enjoyable and was proved by the applause, and by continuous encore.

The U. F. W. held a separate Conference on July 30 when a splendid exhibit of handicraft was shown the prize being won by the Metiskow Local This was a beautiful quilt made banner made and presented by Mrs A. E. Pinniger of Hardisty.

Throughout the whole of the days the keenest interest was shown by the five to six hundred enthusiastic people in attendance, not a dull moment being experienced.

The picnic committees seem to be very popular and can be made more so in the future

JULY HEAT SETS 28-YEAR RECORD

Mean Monthly Temperature Was 65; Touches 94 July 15

Distinguished by record breaking heat during the month, July weather records reveal the highest mean monthly temperature in the last 28 years, the highest minimum temperature for the same period and the second highest maximum temperature ever left in Edmonton. Total precipitation was below average and total hours of sunshine were entered as "normal" in the official weather records.

The stirring 91 degrees above on July 15 was the highest since 94 above in 1921 and the mean monthly temperature of 65 was the highest in twenty years. In 1919 the mercury touched thirty-seven above for the lowest minimum and the 46 above set in July this year was the highest minimum in 28 years.

A total of 1.43 inches of rain fell during the month as against 2.97 in July last year. The highest was 4.91 inches in 1929.

There was bright sunshine for 295 hours as against the highest of 374.5 hours in 1920 and 272 hours in 1923, the lowest ——Edmonton Journal

Branded beef sold in Canada during the month of May, 1935 amounted to 4,183,742 pounds. The amount sold in May, 1934 was 4,296,336 the last May, 1933 really registered an increase because May 1934 was a five week month as against four in 1935. In May, 1933, the amount sold was 1,794,265 pounds, a transaction that was considered satisfactory at the time but not merely as a basis of a highly popular undertaking

CROWD MOTH CAMP IS REAL ASSET IN ALL TOWNS

At a time when progress is being made in competitive fields in the all-weather highway to Jasper National Park while other parks are linked with road systems and with air flag standard visitors are going to be interested more than ever in the auto facilities available in this province

One of the first questions is in relation to auto camps. People want to know where they are located and what they have to offer

Officials of the Alberta Motor Association are urging that municipal auth orities, business men's associations or others give immediate attention to auto camp accommodation. Towns which do not have such camps would do well to see that they are established without delay if only on a limited scale this season

Other camps which have been in operation might well stand some overhauling and improvement.

The leadership given by Edmonton, Calgary and other urban centres might well be heeded at this time. There the camps have been well for sized and operated while their popularity has made it necessary to extend the facilities this year. New rooms have been built and even with these, there are not sufficient at times to take care of the demands.

Municipal authorities are being impressed with the need of some sort of camping and without delay to build up an attractive auto camp. It is an investment on a cash business that will reap good returns while it is possible that there is no finer type of advertising than that which gives prospective visitors a local auto camp. If people everywhere delighted and the delighted ones invariably brag.

The Electors Shall Judge!

The United Farmer Government of Alberta submit herewith a series of cold hard facts concerning their tenure of office, guarding and guiding the business of the people for fourteen years, during which time there has not been ONE CHARGE OF GRAFT OR CORRUPTION laid against it . . . . a record - an enviable one - in Canadian politics.

Read! Consider! Weigh in the Balances this truly Progressive Record!

HIGHWAYS

It inaugurated the first planned program of highway construction freed from the petty patronage system. When the Liberal regime retired from power in 1921, there was no highway program in existence, and only 17 miles of gravelled road had been built. At the beginning of 1935, as a result of the policy of highway construction instituted by the U.F.A. government, there were more than 2,000 miles of main all-weather highways, and many more miles of standard grade earth highway, as well as 70 miles of hard surface road, a system second not only to large section of rural Alberta with substantial market roads, but connecting all the main centres of the province.

The miles of standard grade highways at January, 1935, totalled 2,919 miles, of which 2,113 miles are gravelled. The total expenditures on highways for maintenance and debt charges alone since 1905 have been $31,-542,000, while the total tax collected from motor license fees and gasoline tax in the same period has been $32,251,000, so that the charge often made by the opposition that the taxes collected from motor vehicles are much less than the amounts spent on highways, is disproved.

EDUCATION

It has put into effect a system of equalization grants to aid financially weak rural school districts. The total grants given for education in 1933-34 were $1,523,623, compared with $1,158,983 in 1921. The number of schools operating over eight months was 3,339 in 1933-34 compared with only 1,863 in 1921, and the number of pupils in attendance more than eight months had increased nearly double, the increase in the number of high school pupils at the close of the Liberal regime in 1921. The expenditures for the vital services of education by the present government were $2,452,000 in 1934 compared with $1,294,000 in 1918.

PUBLIC HEALTH

It has put into operation an advanced program of public health service for the people, including travelling clinics, extension of district and public health nursing service, health education, etc. Has introduced legislation providing for the inauguration of a state plan for medical services based on records-decisions of the joint legislative committee For the provision of the all-important public health services in the province, the government in 1934 expended $1,550,000, compared with an amount of only $212,000 spent by the former Liberal regime in 1918.

SOCIAL SERVICES

It has developed many social services to meet the economic needs of our people, such as Old Age Pensions, Mothers' Allowances, Relief Projects, etc. In the financial year ending March 31, 1934, the total expenditures, including grants from other governments for Old Age Pensions amounted to $1,288,000 and for Mothers' Allowances $149,000.

ECONOMIC SECURITY FOR OUR BASIC INDUSTRY

It was the first government in Canada to pass debt adjustment legislation and has more further than any other government in Canada to provide economic security for the farmers and to aid them in securing seed grain to put in their crops and feed for their live stock in areas where crops had been a failure due to climatic conditions. Towns which do not have such camps would do well to see that they are established without delay if only on a limited scale this season

The Debt Adjustment legislation and the Agricultural Stabilization legislation passed by the present farmers' government provided that the sum on the land out of the proceeds of his farming operations, also be entitled to food, shelter, clothing, medical attendance and the wherewithal to carry on his farming operations, before any creditor is entitled to take legal action for the recovery of any debt contracted prior to July 1st, 1931. This means keeping more purchasing power in Alberta communities which helps not only the farmer but the local merchant, doctor, blacksmith, implement dealer and all other supply needs and services to maintain the normal operation of our great wealth-producing basic industry.—Agriculture.

THE HOMESTEADER

The present government has removed the $10.00 fee formerly required to secure a title to a homestead and provided land relief area of virtually 1935, has done much to relieve the economic burden borne by our homesteaders in newly settled areas.

NATIONAL WHEAT BOARD

It has advocated a National Wheat Board, to handle the Canadian wheat crop during the period of the present depression, believing this to be the best method of protecting the interests of the wheat grower.

MONETARY REFORM

It has been for in the lead of any government in Canada in favour of putting monetary reform proposals, and has advocated monetary reform calling for :-

(a) the public control of the issue of currency and credit through a publicly owned central "ank.

(b) a reduction of interest rates on bank deposits and other sound moneysaves to encourage a general reduction of all interest rates;

(c) controlled currency inflation for the purpose of restoring price levels to the proper relationship with our debt structure

INTEREST RATES

It has, through the best offices of the Alberta bonds made in December, 1934, secured the lowest interest rate in twenty-five years on Alberta long term borrowings, namely 4.38½%. During the last year of the Liberal administration (1921) the interest rate the province paid was 6.30% in interest. Alberta has also an enviable record in municipal finance, since the percentage of defaults in municipal debentures in Alberta has been only one-half of one per cent, compared with Ontario's 19½ per cent, Manitoba's 12 per cent and B.C.'s and Saskatchewan's 5½ per cent. This is a complete answer to those government critics who claim that the administrative policy of the farmer's government has destroyed the credit of the province.

VITAL SERVICES FULLY MAINTAINED

These economies have not been made at the expense of Education and Public Health as some of our opponents have claimed. We are today spending more money on vital services than in the peak year of good times in 1928-29.

Expenditures—	Mar. 31, 1929	Mar. 31, 1934	Increase

REVENUE AND TAXATION

Critics of the present government have had much to say about the increase in the tax burden in Alberta since 1921. Such critics fail utterly, however, to prove their arguments because increased revenue derived through increased business is not in any sense increasing the tax burden on the average Alberta taxpayer.

For example, auto licenses provide nearly a million dollars more revenue today than in 1921, yet the individual motorist pays less today than he did in 1921 for his auto license. Real and personal property taxes paid by landowners are $942,000 less today than in 1921. Gasoline tax is as low in Alberta as in any western province.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER

When the Liberals denounce the present administration as a govern ment that has forgotten the taxpayers, we would remind the people of Alberta that fourteen years ago they had a Liberal Government that spent over $1,500 more per day than the present government is spending on the four items of advertising, printing, stationery and travelling expenses

ANSWER TO CLASS GOVERNMENT

Much of the criticism of those opposed to the Government has been directed against the Government's policy of assisting farmers. This has been the argument used to label the Government as a class government' serving the interests of farmers only. Opponents of the Government who use this argument fail to take into consideration the very important fact that the Province has contributed more in grants to the rural industry, man ufacturers' associations and federal chambers of commerce combined, has been lost in guarantees to farmers' co-operative activities. They also fail to consider the fact that the assistance given to co-operative enterprises by the Government for the purpose of increasing the financial returns of the farmers of Alberta, is really in the interests of the Province as a whole, for without purchasing power in the agricultural industry, no other class of people in Alberta can prosper.

BALANCING THE BUDGET

Balancing the budget will not be a difficult problem once purchasing power is restored to our basic industry. This, however, cannot be done by provincial action alone; it requires both national action and international co-operation. After all agriculture is our basic industry, when it is prosperous provincial revenues increase, when it is languishing provincial revenues decline. This statement is amply verified by the fact t years Alberta has had balanced budgets we have been those when ... and one hundred million dollar wheat crops.

CONCLUSION

When you are considering the confusing and extravagant election promises being made in the present political campaign, please remember the record results in some other provinces where failure of governments to carry out election pledges due to limited provincial jurisdiction has resulted in such bitter disappointment to the people.

In actual results, not in promises, the present Alberta government has protected the debtor farmer and has passed more progressive legislation in the real interests of the people than any other provincial government in Canada. It has no apology to make for its legislative and administrative record and appeals for the support of all Alberta citizens on the ground that it has given good government to the people of Alberta during a period when radical measures were required to meet drastic changes in our economic situation.

Since 1921 Alberta has had an independent provincial government free from the influence of the entrez campaign fund and its twin sister the party patronage system of government. It has had a government that has at all times advanced the interests and upheld the rights of the people of Alberta. On election day tuck and vote to retain progressive government in power in Alberta by electing to the legislature supporters of the farmers' government.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a rub-dub, a guy, irresponsible girl of nineteen, who cares beyond the choice of her name times for less reasoning party, kindergarten, in the market crash, her indulgent father came all to pieces. Nancy's family is faced with the possibility of a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who invites the girl to spend what seems to be impossible conditions.

After much consideration Cousin Columbine, a fussy old maid, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge. They are met at the railway station by Columbine Pinkham, who in turn introduces Mark and Matthew Adams, two neighbors of Aunt Columbine, and the party set out for Pine Ridge, which village counts due to the honesty and Jack because of its dilapidated appearance and general air of poverty. Nancy and Jack are thrown to the rooms they are to occupy at the Adams home. The people consider the furniture and fixtures of the latter quite interesting, the present quarters with their hundred years in Boston wonder if they can endure the change for any length of time. Aunt Columbine tells why she wrote the letter to them, and relates some of her early experiences at Pine Ridge of Sioux Indians and forest fires, of her father's burst for gold, and of her mother's splendid spirit, but frail body, which could not endure the strain of pioneer life.

Nancy set out one afternoon to climb to the top of a hill so as to obtain a view of the surrounding landscape and misses the path Aurora Tubbs had told her to follow. A track comes along the road, driven by Mark there Adams, and she asks him which way to go. They ascend the hill and look around, and then go on to Cousin Columbine's home. Columbine Adam tells Nancy that his brother Luke has broken his leg, and that Jack Nelson has been hired to help out while Luke's leg gets better.

No Go On With The Story

CHAPTER XI.

It was after Mark Adam had continued on his way, fortified by a substantial dinner of cornbread with pumpkin pie and Aurora's "compliments" for Jack, that Nancy carried a glass of warm milk into Cousin Columbine's bedroom. Nancy was not the invalid.

"You can sit down and let me look at you," responded the old lady. "I've got the upper hand of this cold already, and had nothing only last night because I believe in 'safety first.' Every hour wasted by sickness makes me impatient. There's so much to do in this wonderful old west, and when you're over seventy there's such a little time to do it in. Aurora tells me Jack's getting on all right—not that I expected anything else. He's got the Nelson grit, and there's no chance that he'll be imposed on by Luke's brother Jack ranch. Eve would see to that even if John Adam wasn't the kindest man alive. Aurora tells me they were too easy going when the boys were youngsters, but—look at the four of 'em!"

"Well, you'll see them all in good time, unless you get desperately homesick and run away from me. I love Pine Ridge even in a blizzard; but I can see how it looks like the end of nowhere to a girl brought up as you've been. I was glad Mark Adam happened in at dinner time to keep you company. Has Aurora Tubbs been talking you to death?"

Nancy laughed.

"Not quite. I let her rattle on and killed time listening."

"Killed time!" echoed Cousin Columbine. "Don't ever use that phrase again, child. Life's too short at the best, and even a day like this there are things to do. Everything's made too easy for people now-a-days. That's half the trouble with 'em. I was younger than you, my dear, when Father took me to Leadville. More than fifty years ago, yet I can shut my eyes and it seems like yesterday."

"Was it much of a place at that time?" questioned Nancy as Cousin Columbine sipped her milk.

"Much of a place! I wish I could make you see it. An entire forest had come down to make room for the town, Nancy, and new-loaded stumps of spruces were still standing in the streets—if they could be called streets. The houses were nothing but shanties or hastily made log cabins. Our crew was of logs with a big stone chimney. This thing next us used old tower pots for the purpose. Some of the shacks had only canvas for roofs; and others—if you'll believe me!—no roofs at all. There were even shanties half buried in the earth, while some set up on stilts. They were living in tents and wigwams, too—and now we shiver at a cold entry! Yes, life's too short!"

Nancy laughed as she hitched her chair nearer to the stove, and questioned, "Were there any shops, or did you get provisions from a distance?"

"There were stores of a sort, even at that time. I remember eager, sometimes desperate faces, standing in the middle of it, arguing and gesticulating—men of the world and big dogs—men of the world who knew the ropes and the vicious with one thing in common: the lure of silver. Saloons and houses were open all night, and so were theatres."

"Theatres!" gasped Nancy. "In a place like that?"

Cousin Columbine nodded.

"Not at the very first, of course; but less than a year after the boom began new mills got to work, and dwelling places grew more comfortable. Banks, and business blocks, and dance halls sprang up almost overnight. Women and children came, the town would have been happier without! saloons and gambling houses where many a hard-won fortune was thrown away."

"It doesn't sound like a very restful spot!" replied Nancy.

Columbine Nelson laid down her empty glass and pulled the blankets a bit higher.

"All boiling town in boom time," she asserted, "is about as restful as a hornets' nest that has been disturbed. I was the early nineties when there was a stampede to San Juan county and the town of Creede was founded. I saw two lines in a newspaper that I never forgot:

'It was day all day in the day-time
And there was no night in

"And it was the same at Leadville. Bullion broke loose after the men stopped work, and it was almost impossible to sleep till daylight."

"We've heard a lot of the gold and silver rushes, Cousin Columbine!"

"Creede came later than Leadville, as I said; then Cripple Creek, not to mention the Pemperton hoax, my dear. Some day I'll tell you about that, but I mustn't here you with too many tales at once. We grow garrulous as we grow old, I fear; and it's years since I've talked over those times with any one."

"But I'm not bored," Nancy assured her. "You'll have to tell this all over again when Jack is here. I wouldn't have his miss it for the world. Do you suppose we could see one of those mining towns some day?"

"No reason in the world why you can't. Come spring we'll make an excursion to Cripple Creek. Even now it will give you an idea of how a mining town is built; and no doubt Mark Adam would jump at the chance to drive us over. Did he say how Luke was getting on?"

"He'll be home soon on crutches. Does Luke look like his brother, Cousin Columbine?"

"Not in the least. He's the odd member of the family and resembles no one. Luke was a timid little boy and not quite so lanky as the others. He's taking a year off before entering college."

SASKASAL

"Aurora says he's his mother's favorite."

"Stuff and nonsense! If she felt any favoritism Eve Adam has too much sense to show it; but Luke's affectionate, and not ashamed to let folks find it out. I've thought at times that Eve had a leaning toward Matthew; but if that's true it's because he's so shy she wants to protect him."

"How old is John?"

"Sixteen. Living with friends at the Springs and going to high school. He's boarded for college in the East. He and Mark are as alike as two peas in looks; but John's more quiet and studious like his father. He's the liveliest member of the family, but Eve has a right to be proud of him even if he has only a high school diploma in place of Matt's A.B. He still hopes to study forestry when his father can spare him. Put a stick of wood in that stove, Nancy, and then I'll try to get a nap."

As Nance obeyed she glanced at the bedside table on which lay a copy of the Atlantic Monthly almost a year old. The magazine was one of the Bostonite Mary's lack of reading matter, and she asked: "How does it happen that there's no Atlantic here, Cousin Columbine? It's a pretty small place, but doesn't anybody like to read?"

It was moment before the old lady responded; then she said: "I suppose most of the folks 'round here are—well, they haven't a great deal of education, and no background whatever. The Adams, and Theodore Taylor, our postmaster, are the exceptions. The truth is, Nancy, the youngsters with ambition usually leave town, which is not to the advantage of the rest of the community. Then too, every one has work to do, and reading's regarded as a luxury. That's wrong, of course; but there's a pioneer I can understand it."

"But they have time to lend around the store," observed Nancy shrewdly. "And if they could get good books just by going to a library, perhaps they'd begin to buy those awful magazines Juanita feeds on."

"Maybe they would," admitted Cousin Columbine, "but public libraries don't grow on bushes; and in a place like this there's no money to rub his wonderful lamp and wish for one!"

Nancy laughed as she went out, leaving Cousin Columbine to her nap. Almost would she do to Pine Ridge if she possessed his lamp? The Adams home and the location which was born of it an hour later, so absorbed the girl that any necessity for "killing time" was quite forgotten.

"What you been doin' this long afternoon?" questioned Jack Nelson as ing her head into the tower room without ceremony. "Supper's been ready for ten minutes but every thing's as still '. und here I thought maybe you was sound asleep."

Nancy glanced up from the lengthy and concentrated letter she was writing to her Aunt Louise.

"You're right, Aurora. I think I've been asleep for hours! And I'm not washing up, thank goodness! Did you ever hear about Aladdin and his wonderful lamp?"

CHAPTER XII.

Nancy's letter to her Aunt Louise arrived on a Saturday, and she carried it out to Edgemere to read aloud. The young people had not gone more than a month, and as the strangeness of their absence wore away, life were settling down into a new routine, and Phil declared he never wanted to go back to the city as long as he lived.

There were times when his mother agreed with him. Despite Eve's worry, Margaret Nelson was conscious of a sense of restfulness which had been lost to her during the last few years Found as she was of her husband's sister, Louise's almost daily comments on the children often annoyed her; but now the week-end visit was something to look forward to. To-day she arrived on the train with her brother, and said before she had taken off her hat

"I've a letter from Nancy. It's rather surprising on the whole. Shall I read it now ?"

"Let's wait till I get supper on the table," suggested Margaret, with a glance at her husband's tired face "Phil says he's famished, and no wonder! He's dug out every path since four o'clock. I don't know what I'd do without that boy, here in the country. He's a real worker."

"And in town there were no chores to occupy him," observed his aunt. "This move has been a splendid thing for Phil, Margaret. He looks and acts like a different boy. And I'm not sure but that the visit to Colorado has done something for Nancy, even if I did oppose it. Just wait till I drop my things and I'll help with supper. Those beans smell like my Boston baked beans ought to smell! I'll be down in a moment."

Watching his sister run lightly up the stairs, James Nelson wondered if the change in environment hadn't benefited her as well as Phil. Possibly Louise appreciated this taste of family life the better because of her absence during the week. As she disappeared, he bent to kiss his wife for the second time since his arrival. It was, Margaret comprehended, an effort on his part to make up for the lack of cheering news, and tactfully refrained from asking how the day had gone.

"This is wonderful brown bread," declared Louise when they assembled at supper. "In our days of affluence, Margaret, I'd completely forgotten that you could cook! I'll take two bites and then read the letter. Have you heard from Colorado yourself to-day?"

"A note from Jack. He says—"

"It was addressed to me," broke in Phil impatiently. "She'd learned to milk; and is riding horseback every day. He says those Adam people are mighty nice, and that Mr. Adam does a lot of cooking because his wife doesn't like to and he does. He hadn't seen Nancy for more'n a week, but one day Mr. Adam kept them to dinner—at Cousin Columbine's, I mean; and there's been a blizzard, and Cousin Columbine and Nancy are going to eat Christmas dinner at the ranch 'cause they can't spare Jack; and Mr. Adam's going to cook the turkey all himself. I wish I could go to Colorado and get a job. Just feel my muscle."

Aunt Louise complied obligingly; and having satisfied her first hunger, opened the letter from Pine Ridge

"Read it all," urged Phil. "We haven't heard for several days."

"No doubt Nance counted on my bringing this out to-night. I almost have reached me sooner Those storms in the middle west delayed it, but she's in a hurry for an answer too. She says:

Sugar Treated With Liquid Air Makes High Explosive

Sponge cakes and lumps of sugar may serve as bombs in the next war, if the discovery of scientists in London was true.

Professor W. B. Tuck of London University demonstrated the deadly nature of these sweets before the scientists. He soaked a piece of sponge cake in liquid air which flared up violently when touched with a match.

"Treated with liquid air a piece of cake or a lump of sugar could be used as high explosives," said Professor Tuck.

Great Seal Of England Has Caused Some Uneasy Moments

The custody of the Great Seal, which passed from Lord Sankey to Lord Hailsham, the new lord high chancellor, in the recent changes in the British government, has given some uneasy moments to sundry lord chancellors of the past.

More than once the symbol of authority has been stolen, and on one occasion it was not recovered. James II., when flying from Whitehall, threw the Great Seal into the Thames, whence a fisherman recovered it by chance many weeks later. Once when Lord Brougham was in Scotland the Great Seal was abstracted from his room by playful young ladies who, on beholding his extreme distress, set him to find it, by a game of "hot and cold," in the family tea-caddy.

In 1813, when Lord Eldon's house took fire, Eldon himself rushed out with the Great Seal and buried it in safety in a flower bed. In the excitement he forgot the hiding-place, and after the fire was extinguished the whole family had to set to and dibble with sticks in the various beds until it was located.

Explorer Claims Discovery

Polish Count Believes He Has Found King Solomon's Mines

A claim to have identified Ophir, the mysterious country from which King Solomon procured gold for the temple of Jerusalem, is made by Count Byron de Prorok, the Polish explorer

He says the Ophir of the Bible was the modern Wenka Wanka, in the unknown mountains of Western Abyssinia, which means "the valley of gold."

Count de Prorok found that mines which furnished gold for the tombs of the Kings of Egypt thousands of years before Christ are being worked to-day for local native rulers.

It was only with the greatest difficulty, and after the personal intervention of Lord Tyrrell, ex-British Ambassador in Paris, that he obtained permission from the Emperor of Abyssinia to visit Werka Wanka, he declared.

Even then he and his party had to travel at night and by secret paths to avoid capture. Near the spot he came on hundreds of mines seeking gold. Nearby were stone pyramids, said to be tombs of slaves of the time of the Egyptian kings.

Now tell the jury, lady," instructed the young lawyer, "just where the prisoner was milking the cow."

The young lady, a trifle embarrassed, smiled sweetly and replied, "Why, I think it was just a little back of the centre, sir."

Little Helps For This Week

Who hath despised the day of small things? Zechariah 4.10.

Little things on little wings
Bear little souls to heaven.

An occasional effort even of an ordinary holiness may accomplish great acts of sacrifice, or bear severe pressure of unwonted trial. But constant discipline in unnoticed ways, and the spirit's silent unselfishness becoming the hidden habit of life, allow to it its saintly beauty, and this is the result of care and lowly love in little things. Perfection is obtained more readily by this constancy of religious faithfulness in all minor details of life, consecrating the daily efforts of self-forgetting love.

Love's secret is to be always doing things for God, and not to mind because there are such very little ones.

Found In Amherst Records And Dated 1770 And 1776

Two samples of paper currency, issued by British Colonies in America before they became American States, have just come to light at Cincinnati, Ohio. They are a Maryland bank note for dollars, entitling the holder to receive "Bills of exchange payable in London with gold or silver, at the rate of four shillings and sixpence for each dollar," dated 1770, and a New Jersey bill, issued in 1776, for twelve shillings. Both bear the warning: "To counterfeit is death" The bills were found in a bundle of old records in the Cincinnati Board of Education Library. How they got there is a mystery, however

SEASON'S BIGGEST VALUE

Sixteen Years Ago To-day

Interesting Items gleaned from the Files of the Vermilion Standard
THIS DATE 16 YEARS AGO — 1919

The 5th anniversary of the Great War was celebrated here on Monday evening by a Veterans' concert at the Columbia theatre, the principal feature of which was the presentation, by Z. W. Morrison, as mayor and president of the Soldiers' Aid Commission, to the Vermilion branch of the G.W.V.A., of the building and lots formerly occupied by the Canadian Bank of Commerce, as a memorial hall and Taxpayers' Rink.

The "Stampede" at Upwards Creek, 15 miles north of Vermilion, was a greater success than ever before and was attended by over 2000 people. The events came to an abrupt termination at 6 o'clock when a drenching downpour fell and continued the rest of the evening.

H. H. Parker returned from Edmonton where he was presiding over a section of the exam. paper reading. S. W. Cummings returned to town after overseas service.

Sample and McRae are advertising pool drilling and boring in this issue. See their ad.

Several stockmen of this district shipped 11 cars of stock to Winnipeg and in the majority of cases came out on the right side.

The annual Masonic picnic will be held at Indian Lake on Wednesday, August 13th. Arrangements are being completed for a good time.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

(This paper does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.)

The Editor
The Standard.

Dear Sir:

May I, through the columns of your paper, call the attention of the town council, and also of the Medical Health officer, to a condition which exists around the town pump located in the west end, on Mr. I Pinchbeck's corner

My first complaint is from the point of view of convenience to the ratepayers using the pump and the second is from a sanitary angle.

About three times a day, winter or summer, and it is worse in the winter, large numbers of horses and cattle are taken to the pump and watered. This usually happens around the noon and supper hours when practically everyone replenishes his supply of water, the result of horses and cows being watered there is usually a dry well, for the person who wants a culinary pailful. This happens, as you very well know Mr. Editor, about once out of three or four trips to the pump. The well holds, I am told, about 10 to 20 pails. This happens more frequently in the winter as there are several milk cows now pastured out that used to receive water there.

Secondarily, from a sanitary standpoint, those cows and horses are taken right from the pump, and as a result the immediate surroundings at times are indescribable in these columns. For the past week drainage water has been lying near the well and the whole thing now resembles a pool hog's wallow

I have been rather disappointed Mr. Editor that you have not mentioned this condition before in your paper as you are fully aware of it. Might I also suggest that the M. H. O. who draws $200.00 of good money from the ratepayers of Vermilion make occasional tour of the town and look over prevailing conditions. The cost to the town per annum of money at most warrants such.

In the little Alberta villages where I lived some years ago, which is only about one-sixth the size of Vermilion, but which apparently enjoys more advanced legislation, there was a by-law forbidding the watering of animals at the town pump, the water having to be hauled to them.

Thanking you for your space, Mr. Editor

Col. Jamieson Hurls Defy at U.F.A. Government

Addresses Meeting in Orange Hall in Support of A. E. Williams

Challenging the Farmer govern ment to state its attitude on the question as to whether it was to adopt the three fundamental principles proposed by Major Douglas as essential to the success of his theory of Social Credit or cancel its contract with him, Col F. C. Jamieson drew a round of approval from the crowded Conservative meeting in the Orange Hall Tuesday evening. Col. Jamieson was speaking on behalf of A. E. Williams the party candidate for this district. Col. Jamieson outlined briefly the growth of the Conservative party in Canada and showed how it was a party of progress, paving the way for the tremendous development that had taken place in this country. In Alberta it had never been entrusted with the reins of government yet it had directed public attention to matters which eventually had proven to have been correct. When the Liberal government purchased the Bell telephone the Conservatives asked that it be placed under a commission but the government refused with the result that it became money-combed with politics and finally one wrecked. There has been a loss of ten million dollars on the system and this loss is largely attributable in the unbusinesslike manner in which the business has been managed by the Liberal and U.F.A governments. The Conservatives also protested against the policy adopted by the Liberal government in the buildings of the northern railways with the result that the platform of that party admits now the province suffered a loss of over eleven million dollars. The present government had overspent revenues by over ten million dollars. Mr Dagnus, he said, had estimated and that estimate has not been controverted, that between three to four administrations sixty million dollars had been utterly lost to the people of Alberta, and there is not a mile, stone or yard of gravel to show for it. These items should warn us against removing confidence in either party Col Jamieson then reviewed the theory of Social Credit and was critical of the government for engaging Major Douglas as chief reconstruction adviser. It was the Liberals who first suggested that Major Douglas be asked to come to Edmonton. That cost us $1200 to $1500. The Conservatives opposed Social Credit from the start and are opposed to it today for the reason that they are considered the system as proposed by Aberhart cannot be put into operation only as a gigantic scheme of taxation. Taking wheat, he said, that the proposed levy of five cents would have to be collected from the farmer before he drew his wheat in the elevator or it could not be done at all. "Aberhart cannot wedge himself in between the time the farmer loads his wheat on the farm and it is unloaded on the Mersey to collect his five cents levy and I challenge the refutation of my statement," he said. He quoted exhaustively from the Social Credit Manual to show the impracticability of the Aberhart scheme. He threw out another defy on the interpretation of question 23 of the manual which reads: What would you do if a person did not wish to take Social Credit dividends? Answer: In the first place he would not receive any monthly dividend. It would be impossible in the second place, to evade the price control feature, and in the third place he would be taxed just to the same way that he is taxed under the present system which he wishes to maintain. There was no other meaning to this than if you did not support Social Credit you would not get a dividend and you would have to pay your taxes just the same. That was dictatorship with a vengeance. It was discrimination against opponents of Social Credit, an effort to drive all and sundry into the ranks of Aberhartism. In closing Col. Jamieson outlined the principles and policies of the Conservative party and appealed for support of the candidature of Mr. Williams. Mr. Williams spoke briefly.

A Social Credit advocate, Mr. Blain asked several questions after the meeting which were answered by the speaker but Mr. Blain left it that there was still a difference of opinion.

Successful Social Credit Picnic at Autumn Leaf

The Autumn Leaf Social Credit Study Group held a successful and well attended picnic on Saturday July 27th on section eleven of school lands, three quarters of a mile south of Autumn Leaf school. Lunches and refreshments of all kinds were served.

The picnic, which had been previously well advertised and broadcasted had been postponed on two occasions on account of rains, from Wednesday July 17th and Friday July 26th, but the heavy rains assured the district good crops, and this somewhat eased the disappointment felt on the two occasions when the picnic had to be postponed.

Rousing addresses were given by four Social Credit speakers, Mr. Gray, ex-M.L.A. of Wainwright, Mr. Locke, the Social Credit delegate for the Lima Group, Mr. W. Masson, Social Credit Candidate for Battle River and Mayor W. A. Fallow of Vermilion. Social Credit candidate for the Vermilion constituency.

Mr. Grannigan spoke very sincerely in support of Social Credit. He said he was sure it was a step in the right direction, and with the brains behind it, he had no doubt that it would work out satisfactorily to everyone. He implored the people to support Mr. W. Masson their Social Credit candidate in the next election.

Mr. Locke, Social Credit delegate for the Lima Group, in his earnest talk to the people on Social Credit, said it was the aim of Mr. Aberhart and his followers to bring prosperity to the country; to find occupations for the unemployed and do away, with the humiliation of relief and relief camps; to find positions for the thousands of young men and women who were graduating from our colleges every year, and who, under the present system, had nothing to hope for; to institute state medicine and dentistry, widows' and old age pensions; to institute just prices and do away with the old capitalistic system, and he was glad to say that in Mr Aberhart we had an able leader, and that we should stand solidly behind him and our representative Mr. W. Masson.

Mr. Masson in his energetic address assured his hearers that should he be elected he would do everything in his power to express their will. He said the object of Social Credit was to stop borrowing money from foreigners; to make it possible for the people of Alberta to use their own credit; to put the purchasing power in the hands of the people where it belonged and whose cultural heritage it was. He said we have real credit here in Alberta, rich in natural resources; everything we need. Why cannot the people of Alberta use these resources and build their roads, improve their cities and country and help their unemployed to work without having to borrow "money" and wait for permission from Ottawa, who will refer the matter to St. James or Threadneedle Street in London, England, who will in turn refer the matter to the Bank of International Settlements in Basel or Geneva, Switzerland. Police courts pepper rage, he said, are all that have to offer. Alberta has real wealth, real credit, and Social Credit will merely assist to unleash the value of these assets, and consequently decrease our interest charges.

Mayor W. A. Fallow of Vermilion the Social Credit candidate for the Vermilion constituency delivered an able, interesting and rousing address for Social Credit and the cause he himself would bring about a change for the better from the last fourteen years of Hide-peddling government Alberta trailed off by six cents on the acre and most disheartening despondency the country has ever passed through. He said he knew by the interested and attentive way around him that they were all one hundred percent for Social Credit and he heartily expressed himself as ready at all times, and no matter what obstacles were thrown his way to promote the interests and welfare of the people of Alberta. Governments, he said, were made to the will of the people and not the people to do the will of governments.

Present on the picnic grounds and representing political groups appointed Social Credit press Dr. H. L. Courtier of Wainwright and Mr. A Purvis of Edmonton but they made no effort to address the gathering.

Mr J Little the secretary for the Autumn Leaf district said he was fortunate to have the last publicity injured by a truck at the start of the picnic. We are pleased to report that he hopes to be all right again in the near future.

The baseball score was 5 - 6 in favor of Autumn Leaf. The Auburndale Ramblers won in softball.

TO THE ELECTORS of the Vermilion Constituency

Having received the official nomination as Candidate to represent the Social Credit force in this Constituency, I am taking this means of reaching those whom I have not had the pleasure of coming in personal contact with, or those whom I may not have the pleasure of meeting, before election day. I wish to say at the outset that I fully appreciate the tremendous responsibility that will rest upon the members of a Social Credit Government after the election. The Social Credit supporters in this Constituency have manifested their faith in me by placing me in the position where, if elected, I must accept my share or that responsibility. Knowing full well the herculean task we will have to undertake, and being conscious of the fact that the future of greed and avarice will place every possible obstacle in our way, and knowing from my own experience that all the fire and fury of the Devils or Satan will be levelled against us I unhesitatingly accept the challenge. I wish also to express my most profound gratitude in the expressions of confidence given in public by the other three candidates who were associated with me, as well as every member of the executive I have personally interviewed in the few rumors which have come to me in which it was stated that certain Social Credit supporters had deserted the cause in every case I found the rumors were absolutely without foundation in fact and every one of them received their pledges of loyalty. Let me here express my deepest appreciation to each party friends who have freely offered to their support on account of my not having private means to assist. To those who still disagree with me may I say that I shall steadily adhere to my endeavors to persuade you that the only impulse which actuates my activities in connection with Social Credit is my unbounded faith in its principles and a sincere desire to do everything that lies within the scope of my ability to lift the burden of drudgery from the backs of my fellowmen. Nor shall there be a shadow of doubt in my efforts to popularize Social Credit principles to decide you, right to think and act as you see best.

The election campaign is beginning to warm up. It will increase in heat as the election date draws near. It is of course obvious that some of our opponents failed to employ all the political trickery known to the game. They will try to offer, in order to poison your minds against Social Credit because that is the only kind of Social Credit permitted to pass in Alberta will serve to divert the attention of the voting public from the real issues. Let us not be misled. While I have every respect for the honest opinions of others I am sure we can be assured that the electors of this province have had a little more than a surfeit of merchant princes so beautifully exemplified on the floor of the provincial house daily. Newspapers as the Sun Edmonton Journal and the Edmonton Bulletin (instead of honestly presenting their own political views as offering honest criticism of their opponents views which they attempt to distort) are ready to assist the pet organs of the man who has dared to defend the rights of the people against the wrongs of persecution—Mr. Wm. Aberhart. It is not necessary to turn to the comic strips in the papers to get a good laugh. Read the financial columns of some of their political meetings. And when you turn on the radio and immediately the air is filled with groans and grunts from exponents of numerous leagues of profession al cringe hangers who moan and sigh at so much per minute, until you are prone to wonder "WHERE ALL THE MONEY IS COMING FROM." While these ludicrous manifestations provide the people with a great deal of amusement they serve to illustrate most clearly what Major Douglas had in mind when he emphasized the necessity for a non-partisan controlled broadcasting station" and "A Government controlled daily newspaper." These articles are essential in order that the issues involved may be able to keep the people informed in the truth concerning all matters affecting their welfare and to even better advantage. Battling public as we have endeavored to do as best I can, I feel it only fair to say that Major Douglas in this respect

Since the electorate which I am contesting, stretches as far as Alberta — and Social Credit does not expect the Eastern manufacturers may continue to talk with us. While I am sure there is not the remotest possibility of their doing any such thing as the highly protected interests of the East have always made it impossible for us as their legitimate rival and will continue to do so as long as it is possible should they however attempt any such thing, we would give the greatest care as a Western manufacturing industry to the best of our ability to see that we are not unfairly discriminated against in our home market. Western Canada would become a potent factor for our products on account of our low cost of production. Production being stabled in industry in this province, under Social Credit would support and increase the purchasing power of the people within the boundaries of Alberta. And what is there that the Eastern manufacturer which could not be manufactured right here in Alberta. Nothing. With our present productive basis available for it is true quite a Social Credit Government could very quickly expand one of industry, how to the same extent as would the manufacturing capacity of the Province to that extent. In addition to our own needs we would soon be in a position to supply our neighbors with our surplus articles

Infuse six heaping teaspoons of Salada Black Tea in a pint of fresh boiling water. After six minutes strain liquid into two-quart container. While hot, add 1½ cups of granulated sugar and the juice of 2 lemons. Stir well until sugar is dissolved; fill container with cold water. Do not allow tea to stand before adding the cold water; otherwise liquid will become cloudy. Serve with chipped ice.

Whither?

Like many other Canadian citizens the writer listened to Hon. Mackenzie King's first radio broadcast a few nights ago. Just as he has listened to the radio addresses of Premier Bennett and other political leaders in which their respective party programmes and public issues of the day were discussed. In his address Mr. King gave emphasis to a word—Whither. He, of course, applied it to the political trends of the day and asked the Canadian electorate to give serious thought to "whither" the various policies now being urged upon them for acceptance were leading.

It is not the intention of the writer to follow Mr King in giving to this word a political application. Party politics are eschewed as subjects for discussion in this column. But as we have listened to Mr. King and his use of this word, the thought was forced upon us: Do we as individuals ask ourselves, as we should, whither we are headed in many of the undertakings upon which we embark? Or do we lightly engage in them without sufficient consideration, and without any very clear idea fixed in our minds as to what we hope to achieve?

A sailor on he leaves h's home port knows whither he is bound. He is headed for a definite port, and he equips himself with chart and compass to guide him to such port by the most direct route. He knows why he is headed in such particular port, and why he explores done not lightly enter into the trackless forest or well-nigh impassable jungle without knowing whither he is bound, and the mining prospector likewise knows whither he is bound and the objective he hope to achieve.

But how many of us we go around our way through public school, and possibly through high school and even college and un-versity had a definitely defined goal before us which it was our ambition and determination to reach? But, as we drew near graduation, how many knew whither we were bound, or did we proceed unthinkingly with our school studies with no very fixed idea in mind as to the vocation in life we proposed to follow?

And so with possibly just a little more than the end of a job, or were apparently forced into some position or occupation seemingly by environment or force of circumstances, did we even then asked ourselves, whither am I going? Is this the kind of work for me? Am I best suited? Or am I just allowing myself to drift without any particular effort on my part to direct my life into proper channels? In a word, did we take the trouble to prevail ourselves with a chart and compass to guide us to our true destination?

Furthermore, having found our lot cast in a particular field of endeavor, and possibly feeling fairly content therein, did we even then query ourselves as to whither? That is, did we accept our work as a means of livelihood, and nothing else? Or did we, do we now, regard our work as something more, something finer, than a means of sustenance? Whither are we headed? To render real service to mankind and to our country, to make the world a better and happier place because we are in it, or are we simply content to walk the treadmill of life as we find it?

As citizens do we ever take time to pause and consider whither the community in which we live is headed, whither our churches are taking us, whither our schools and colleges are educating our children? What are the moral trends of the times? Are they in the direction of developing stronger characters than those of bygone generations, or in the reverse true? In our own little community growing better, or worse; is it being beautified or is it retrograding?

Nothing in Nature stands still If it has life it is moving, either forward or backward. Nature abhors a vacuum Mankind is the chief of all the works of Nature, and he makes progress or slip backward. Each individual, if he or she is wise, will stop and ask—whither am I going? The person tempted to a dishonest or criminal act should pause and consider, whither? Whither is the end of the road upon which I propose to travel?

And what is true of the individual, is true of the nation. All nations and all peoples may well ask themselves at this time of predictions of war, or warlike preparations in all parts of the world, of uncompromising attitudes of nations in international conferences, whither are we drifting? What will be the outcome, the end, of another war? The Great War was a source of loss to the whole world, to the victors as well as to the vanquished, and to those who remained neutral. Each and all suffered. It will be so again. Is that what we want, as nations, as individuals? Is it not time we stopped and gave consideration, the most serious consideration of the word, to that old English word—whither?

Let the reader apply this word to his own actions, his life activities, his next decision. Try and probe the future a bit; seek to visualize the outcome of any move you are about to make. Do not go blindly and thoughtlessly ahead. Ask yourself in all seriousness—wh.ther?

Relic Of Riel Rebellion

Old Ox-Yoke Presented To Museum In Regina

On exhibition in an ox-yoke made in 1862 by the late George Cruss of Duck Lake, and later used in the Riel rebellion of 1885.

It is made from oak and some idea of its durability was learned when it was found that for over 40 years the yoke has lain outside in all kinds of weather and is yet in a good state of preservation. It is being presented by Mrs. Cruss to the museum at Regina as a souvenir of early days in the west.

The First Photograph

Print Said Found Was Taken By December 100 Years Ago

It is just a hundred years ago that W H Fox Talbot, the inventor of photography, took his first picture, according to an English paper, which reports that that precious print has been found by his granddaughter, Miss M T Talbot, and is to be shown at the Royal Photographic Society when they visit Lacock Abbey, the Talbot home since the days of Henry VIII. Miss Talbot spent six hours a day for three months sorting stacks of papers and documents left by her grandfather.

Slow-Motion Camera Photographs Lightning

Means Electricity Is Built An Ex Ordinary Light Rush

Slow motion cameras have been used by science editors of the Chemistry Home, New York, to measure thunderbolts and estimate just how much electricity is released in a flash of lightning.

Considering all the noise a thunderstorm can make, it is a little disconcerting to discover that the average thunderclond has a store of only just about as much electricity as may flows through an ordinary electric light bulb in a minute. It generates this much electricity in five minutes, mainta'ns it at this value for a no longer or shorter period, and then lets it fly on a lightning flash at a pressure of about five billion volts, enough to blow a man down, or a horse, or even a small house. The pressure makes the discharge both spectacular and dangerous, and the thunderclond machine is continuously but unnerstaingly active at this pace.

Photographed in motion, it shows a cloud to resemb le part a thunderbolt it first comes out a tiny tongue of flame. This stretches earthward about 50 yards from the cloud. It pauses and then wakes out few a 10,000th of a second. It then re-pauses and then shoots out for a few yards. This process continues until the ground is reached. Branch tongues shoot out from the main flash, and the leading tongue lashes the earth, the main part of the stroke begins. Flames leap from the ground toward the cloud, retracing the path literally blazed by the flash. This second stroke is much quicker having but 50 millionths of a second.

Touring Continent in 'Plane

Editor And Engineer See North American From Clouds

Staning a trail from the west to the east coast of Canada, in the course of their tour of the north American continent, Albert P. Neeb, news editor of the Salt Lake City Desert News, and Mahlon B. Kesmarer, graduate mining engineer of Princeton University, brought their big Fairchild 71 type monoplane to rest at the Halifax airport recently. Although referring to themselves as "amateur airmen" the pair have experienced all the thrills of the toughest of the northland's bad weather pilots and have come through it with a whole ship and in excellent spirits.

Bucking bad weather almost since their takeoff at Salt Lake City, the pair pushed on whenever the breaks prevented themselves and when they brought their ship to earth at Halifax had left 4,600 miles of the estimated 11,000 mile continent girdling trip behind them. A faulty oiling system at the landing gear of the Waco cabin ship in which they started their tour, was the first handicap they met. It was at Cheyenne, Ore., the accident happened and, fearing that repairs would necessitate a long delay, they secured a big Fairchild, which so far has proved itself the ideal craft for the job, they stated.

The big monoplane, which is the same type as that flown from the Eastern Passage stat'on of the R.C.A.F. base here, is chartered by the owner the Gray Chest, apparently from the gray dogs that colors bar lounges and wagons. The ship, 42 fiers say, had a history of its own before falling into their possession. She is powered with a 450 horse Whitney Wasp motor and has a fuel capacity of 2,000 pounds and cruises at 110 miles per hour.

Had Remarkable Career

Woman Who Sculptures Horses Has Never Taken Lessons

A remarkable exhibition of sculpture by Gertrude Vanderbilt recently at Londonderry House in London. There, hundreds of them in plaster, each about a foot high, expressed every possible attitude of horse in action. They were the work of Madame Vera Lombardi, sister of Captain Rhona Churchill and wife of an Italian cavalry officer.

An interviewer found her covered with plaster smears and dust. They had come from Rome, and she had forgotten to mark the boxes "fragile." She unpacked them while she talked, and these are some of the surprising facts about her:

Until a year ago she had never dreamed of being an artist. She was a business woman and still spends eight hours a day in an office. She has never had an hour's lesson in her life, and knows nothing about anatomy. Her studio is her bed, where she works until she falls asleep.

Mme. Lombardi was "discovered" months ago by a great Spanish painter, Zuloaga. She has had a remarkable career. She nursed at base hospitals in France during the war, however, so that extremists can scarcely find grounds for breaches of the peace on its account.

A New Burglar Trap

Calgary Man Has Invented Gadget To Protect Banks

A burglar trap designed for use in banks has been invented by Adolf Johnson, of Calgary.

In his home he has built a working model of his invention. When a small button is stopped on, steel plates slip quickly into place over windows and doors, forming four sets of shocking escape of robbers.

Johnson patented the contrivance in 1927 and has been working on it ever since with a view to adding new features. Among other inventions he has developed are a machine for sale for street intersections, a portable "piano without either banging or tuning" and a number of automatic gates.

Bus Was Stolen

The word "take" is an Hawaiian contribution to the list of American guilt words, says a bulletin from the Bish-Paul-Ton Bureau Asking Polynesians had many taboo, typical among which were those forbidding to eat out in the presence of a man, or in the same house, or even to cook their food under the same roof.

Tiny Electric Motor

The world's smallest electric motor weighs just 1 2 grams and is so much as a match box and can be balanced on one finger-tip It was built by a 15-year-old student at a technical school at Moscow. Now he's working on a one to fit it, which will cut up matches.

Crowds Worship Sign

Crowds of superstitious persons have each night been worshipping before a mysterious red glow in the window of a school in the French concession at Shanghai They believed it to be the appearance of a certain Chinese deity. Then the red glow was found to be merely the reflections of an illuminated sign over a theatre across the street.

For Economy's Sake

Breakfast in bed may be only for wealthy Occidentals, but in Japan it is an economy measure, reports Miss Frances B. Clapp, Congregational missionary, just back from Kyoto, Japan. Fuel shortages makes it cost about 50 cents to build a fire, so many Japanese eat breakfast in bed to keep warm, said Miss Clapp.

Living Up To Reputation

China's Ungovernable River Noted For Its Destructiveness

If the Hwang Ho, the Great Yellow River, the most northerly of China's mighty waterways, is seeking to live up to the bad it deserved eighty years ago, it is doing no more than it's up to its reputation as a minister at Peiping. It is "China's Sorrow," "The Ungovernable," "The Scourge of the Sons of Han." The course it deserted has been built up into a thickly populated agricultural region; if the river re-establishes itself therein, the people will lose everything.

Too swift and too shallow to be of capital importance to commerce, it is notable mainly for its disastrous floods. Farmers cultivating the plain through which it now flows have sought to confine the river within dykes; in the flood season a thousand too narrow is overflowed. The silt once deposited over a wide area by the river is now deposited on the river bed so that at low water the surface of the stream is fifteen feet above that of the plain and thirty feet at normal high water. It has been proposed to straighten the river bed and thus get the benefit of the scour. But the Hwang Ho may persist in having its own way in the future as it has in the past.—New

Becomes Separate Grade

Recognance For Garnet Wheat Holders If Loss Results

Effective Aug. 1, Garnet wheat will be marketed as a separate grade, E. H. Ramsay, chairman of the board of grain commissioners, announced. Its price, he said, will be determined by ordinary market conditions.

The wheat will be marketed through existing channels, stated Mr. Ramsay. He looked upon the change as a routine matter, which should produce no undue difficulties.

At the last session of parliament, $1,500,000 was voted to recognance Garnet wheat holders while the new method of marketing was being evolved, if any loss resulted. Provision for such a refund has been graded with No. 2 Northern.

The 7 separated into two t... Garnet and No 2 Garnet. Any Garnet wheat not good enough to be graded No. 2, will be put into No. 3 Northern or lower grades. The price of the new grade will be fixed in the open m... choice, similar to the present method in force in other grades.

Dodges New Cuts

Washington—Following his motif from the dough-nut, President Roosevelt has designed a coin which soon may be dodging in American pockets. It is a half-cent piece, and treasury secretary Henry Morgenthau said it will be issued in the near future. President also sketched a one mill coin, which unlike all other United States metal money, is square.

Lauds In Wheat Exports

Ottawa.—Canada was first in exports of wheat to the United Kingdom market during the first six months of 1935, according to a statement issued by the Dominion bureau of statistics. The Dominion was also first in oats, wheat flour, lobsters, copper ore, copper rods, crude nickel, non-ferrous metals, palmi leather, and rubber manufacture.

ITALO-ABYSSINIA WAR MAY YET BE AVERTED

Geneva. — Italo-Ethiopian peace struggled in stormy waters of formulas, methods of approach, proposals and counter-proposals, deadlocks and rays of optimism, but an agreement appeared to be in sight.

The British, French and Italian delegates agreed upon possible ways to keep peace in East Africa. Only Benito Mussolini's final approval of the draft plan was needed.

The tentative program was worked out at two conferences Hasan Yusuf Bey Aloat of Italy, Anthony Eden of Great Britain and Premier Laval of France held.

Laval explained the tentative peace formula to Ethiopian representatives. It was understood they had no real objections to it.

The plan itself, for the time being, is set aside. Yet the difficulties encountered are minor compared with the difficulties which lie ahead of a peaceful settlement of the dispute.

Both Italy and Ethiopia are moving up their troops. The wet season is nearing its end.

Addis Ababa. — Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie with their army almost at hand, besieged hastily created recruiting stations after Ethiopian leaders had told him tribal chieftains ended their secret two-day council.

Denied the right to bear arms, women met in the Palace hall, formed "The Association for the Defense til the Country," started raising funds and subscribed $30,000 within an hour.

To Help Veterans

Organization To Seek Work With Re Set Up

London, Ont.—A national organization, secretary of which will be kept by a strong veterans' organization, will be set up in the near future to deal with unemployment among veterans, declared Brig.-General Tom, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, at the annual banquet of the provincial command of the legion at the close of the first day of the three-day convention here.

Set-up for giving assistance to unemployed veterans is embodied in the Hyndman report dealing with what is considered one of the most difficult problems confronting the Canadian Legion, he said. Gen. Ross explained that the committee to be formed would consist of three men, serving voluntarily, who would build up a national organization with boards in all towns and districts which would find work for veterans

Cheer King And Queen

Canadian Teachers In London Pay Visit To Palace Grounds

The serene atmosphere of the grounds of Buckingham Palace was shattered by three ringing cheers for the King and Queen from a party of 220 Canadian school teachers and school children, visiting London under auspices of the Overseas Education League.

The party was in the grounds when the royal car approached from an inner quadrangle, carrying Their Majesties to Victoria station en route to the Cowes regatta. The King stopped the car and with the Queen, rose to their feet and waved. F. Ney, in charge of the party, and some of the visitors

Bear Low Interest Rate

All Records Broken When Recent Loan Was Floated

Ottawa.—Breaking all records for low interest rates, a $30,000,000 issue of Dominion Canada treasury bills has just been sold, it was announced At the price received the average yield per annum on the bills is 1.3287 per cent. The previous low mark was on June of $20,000,000 sold to yield 1.39 per cent. per annum.

The bills are due November 1 and the discount price for which the bids was 99.69. Proceeds will be used to retire in part an issue of $50,000,000 in bills maturing on the charter and banks some months ago at a yield of 2¼ per cent. per annum.

Royalty Taking Holiday

Portsmouth. — King George and Queen Mary, accompanied by the Duke and Duchess of York, boarded the royal yacht Victoria and Albert and sailed for a two weeks' cruise which will include attendance at the annual Cowes regatta.

Flood Damage Heavy

No Transportation Into Slave Lake Area Except By Air

Slave Lake, Alta. — Rampaging Lesser Slave Lake, which for two and one half days has pounded five-foot waves into this flood-stricken town, had left a scene of desolation with residents living in tents on higher ground, small buildings washed away, and others undermined, until they threaten to crumble.

Lashed by an inshore gale, the waves battered away small buildings including the post office, sand-ras' dents and fearful that a new wind will complete nature's onslaught. The lake is already at high level and when an calm weather travel through the town is done by boat. Damage in the flood of the last few days is estimated at $25,000.

Valuable farm lands on the shores of the lake have been inundated and the valuable topsoil carried away by the waves.

There is no transportation into this town by air. The highway is still under water for nearly 20 miles, and the Northern Alberta Railway, which put through trains last week after 10 days' delay, again is blocked as a result of new undermining of rails by the waves. The farmer whose home was on which repair work was done are holding up, however.

Chinese Eat Unripe Grain

Endeavor To Stave Off Starvation Until Ripe Arrives

Changchiakow. — Flood survivors, swarming like locusts on the uplands behind this stricken city, devoured unripe grain in order to save themselves from starvation.

Relief from Hankow was 300 miles away and coming slowly.

The emaciated, ragged survivors sometimes in bands 1,000 strong, worked away gradually from Changpingpo where the dead seem to be everywhere, the bodies of men, women and children mingled with those of animals.

The Han river, which brought unprecedented disaster to valley dwellers, was down 20 feet in a few hours during the night of July 7 was still flooding the territory.

Relief food or hope of food, until relief arrives, the starving hordes in the uplands stopped to eat unripe they could find food. They did not plunder. They announced to inhabitants of villages they entered:

"We come to eat."

To Guard British Legation

Sikhs From India May Be Sent Into China

London.- Preparations are being made to send detachments of Sikhs from India to Shanghai if proposals from the British legation in Addis Ababa indicate they will be necessary to protect the legation building, it was learned here. Britain is also ready to evacuate British missions now in the interior zone in Ethiopia. All the missionaries have been instructed to keep in close touch with the British legation.

The report that in the House of Commons no embargo has been placed on the export to Ethiopia of war materials which could be used for the manufacture of munitions Great Britain has granted Italy 25 per cent of wood planes over British territory in East Africa, the house was told. Twenty of these were for British Somaliland and the others for the Sudan.

Canada Offers Wheat

Washington.—Canada was first in exports of wheat to the United Kingdom market during the first six months of 1935, according to a statement issued by the Dominion bureau of statistics. The Dominion was also first in oats, wheat flour, lobsters, copper ore, copper rods, crude nickel, non-ferrous metals, palmi leather, and rubber manufacture.

Counterfeit Coppers

Vancouver.—Counterfeit one cent pieces are the latest in bogus money to appear in this city. The coins are expert imitations and have only one defect. They are made from copper but one-half the thickness of the government issue. 2118

Garnet Wheat Price Set

Separate Grading Went Into Effect On August First

Winnipeg.—The approximate market value of Garnet wheat as a separately-graded wheat was established July 31 by the cash closing committee of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

No. 1 Garnet was quoted at 79½ cents, three cents a bushel under No. 1 Northern, and No. 2 Garnet at 77¾ cents, the same price as No. 3 Northern.

Previously, Garnet wheat has been graded with No. 2 Northern, but start'ng with the new crop year Aug. 1, it "ill be kept separate from the Northern wheats and graded separately into two grades. Any Garnet unfit for the two specified grades will automatically grade No. 3 Northern or lower.

SURVEY SHOWS RUST WILL HAVE SERIOUS EFFECT

Ottawa.—Rust had serfously reduced the yield of all bread wheats in Manitoba and the infection was spreading westward into Saskatchewan, stated a crop report released by the Dominion bureau of statistics. The drouth area in Saskatchewan was also extending.

In the west, the report sa'd, "July has again provided conditions that were fatal to the good crop prospects on the southern plains where the conditions in May and June were so promising." In addition to the rust, the drouth has which had been largely limited to rather narrow belts along the Alberta-Saskatchewan boundary, was greatly extended. Harvesting of the main wheat crop would not be general in that area for two or three weeks "so the prospect is very indefinite and unsatisfactory."

"Rust has so severely infected the 1,000,000 acres of Garnet wheat in Manitoba that only a very light yield of poor quality grain can be expected. The rust infection on the remaining 1,000,000 acres of Durum wheat rema'ns slight. Coarse grains are also rusted.

"Heat and drouth are causing serious reductions in Saskatchewan crop prospects and the weather of the next two or three weeks will have a very important bearing on the ultimate yield. In large areas running through the centre of the province from north to south, crop conditions remain very promising

"In Alberta, the southern and some central areas will harvest light crops but good prospects persist over the remainder of the province.

Winnipeg — Stem rust infection has extended in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, according to the third rust report by J. J. Woolman, officer in charge of the Dom'nion rust research laboratory

"Manitoba stem rust has affected wheat as far north as Riding Mountain National Park and in some cases has attained severe proportions" in common wheats, the report said.

The western limit of infection in Saskatchewan seemed to be slightly west of a north-south line drawn from Saskatoon to Moose Jaw, with severe infestation in the southeastern section. Some traces were found north of Prince Albert. No stem rust a reflet hat at present of less than 10,000 families

Start Aerial Survey

Dr. Charles Camsell Leads Party In Northern Trip

Prince Rupert, B.C.—A 10,000-mile aerial survey of northern Canada began July 30 when a party led by Dr. Charles Camsell, deputy minister of mines for Canada, hopped off at 2 p.m. for Wrangell, Alaska, in a seaplane piloted by C. H. "Punch" Dickins.

A. D. McLean, superintendent of Canadian Airways, and W. H. Sutherland, photographer, are other members of the party.

Dr. Camsell plans to take aerial photographs of 30,000 square miles of unmapped territory in the north, eastern Yukon, north of the Liard river. Geographers believe the Rocky Mountains come to an end in that vicinity and the Mackenzie river, which tie to the east, may be a separate mountain system.

The Nahanni valley of Indian legend lie in the region to be explored. If possible, the party will land and investigate these valleys

The survey will be concluded about August 15 at Edmonton.

He said millions of dollars of new wealth was created when the country went off the gold standard and in 1934 South Africa increased her purchases from Canada from $3,-000,000 to more than $7,000,000 became the second largest purchaser of goods from Great Britain

Ready To Retaliate

Scottish Co-Operative Secretary Warns Against Wheat Board Hindering Trade

Calgary.—If the new Canadian wheat board places any impediment in the way of trade, the Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society of Glasgow will retaliate by diverting its wheat purchases into other channels, J. McCormick, member of the society's party touring Canada, said here.

Mr McCormick, making a survey of Canadian political and economic problems with regard to their effect upon Scottish-Canadian trade, stated the society imported 2,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat a year. He added the society owns the largest flour mills in Scotland and made the best and cheapest bread in that country using 90 per cent. Canadian hard wheat.

He was not impressed with the Ottawa agreements, Mr. McCormick continued and Scottish trade had benefited little from them Free trade was the only proper method of dealing with international exchange of goods.

Chief accountant of the society, he is accompanied by Cameron Thompson and C. Hewitt, directors.

Russian Sub Sinks

Collided With Surface Vessel And 33 Men Drown

Moscow.—A brief official announcement, laconic as are most such Soviet revelations, disclosed the death of 33 Russian seamen, some of them naval cadets, in the sinking of the submarine B-3 in Finland Bay one week ago.

The submarine, participating in the current Baltic fleet manoeuvres, came up from an underwater cruise and collided with an unidentified surface vessel

A gaping hole was torn in her hull and she sank immediately. All aboard her—officers, seamen and naval school students perished.

The submarine was one of the old "barz" type built in 1917, toward the end of Russia's participation in the Great War. A memorial service will take place at Kronstadt.

The government will distribute sums of 10,000 rubles to families of the victims. Pensions also will be paid, it was announced.

RELIEF SYSTEM IN ONTARIO IS TO BE CHANGED

Toronto. — Drastic reorganization of Ontario's system of unemployment relief to curtail costs and to transfer responsibility for relief administration to the municipalities was announced by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn following a session of the Ontario cabinet.

"These steps are absolutely necessary to maintain the solvency of the government," the premier declared, as he revealed his government had established a new basis for the provincial contribution to relief costs. Instead of paying a proportion of total relief costs the government will make specified lump sum payments on a per capita basis.

From September 1, in all of the 17 municipal districts where the government has assumed the full burden of relief the province's contribution will be payment of a maximum of $7.50 monthly per capita. The per capita costs in these municipalities under the present system has ranged from $3.50 to $13.50 per month

In all other municipalities excluding the two white districts on the northern Ontario the government's maximum contribution will be $5 per capita after Sept 1.

Municipalities will be required to assume full responsibility for relief administration.

The reversal of the policy of Hon. David Croll will be accompanied, the premier said by a drastic shakeup within the welfare department. The objective is to reduce the welfare department to a mere shell the premier said.

The per capita cost of relief is seen in many of the municipalities which handle their own relief, the system has been too expensive," he said.

Under the present system the premier estimated that relief would cost the province about $36,000,000 a year By the new plan it is expected that a saving of more than $25,000 monthly can be effected. There would be an immediate saving of about $240,000 annually in administrative costs alone, the premier explained

AIR ROUTE ACROSS NORTH POLE IS SOVIET PLAN

Moscow.—Air travellers between North America and Russia may fly squarely over the North Pole two or three years hence, Soviet officials predicted, if success crowned Sigmund Levanefsky's proposed non-stop Moscow-to-San Francisco flight.

The trail Levanefsky's single-motor, radio-equipped ship will blaze through the polar regions may be the commercial route of the future, Otto Schmidt, head of the northern sea route department, declared

Levanefsky, the Soviet's most famed flyer, was confident he and his two companions could cross safely the polar barrens and down over northwest Canada to California 6,000 miles away

"We expect to reach San Francisco in three days and nights at the most," he said.

A permanent meteorological station located at the pole itself is another Soviet project, Schmidt disclosed, this to be supplemented by stations on the ice at either side of the pole.

Schmidt said the Russians already had established 40 radio stations above the Arctic circle on islands and the coast which send regular weather reports to central stations at Moscow Schmidt Dixon Island and the cutter Sadko.

Japan's Aerial Defence

Taxation For Commercial Program Is Heavy

Tokio — Japan is going ahead with a big plan for the encouragement of civil aviation side by side with the completion of her five-year plan of aerial defence.

Initial expenditure on the plan for civil aviation will total the equivalent of $60,000,000, and thereafter the ministry of Communications will spend about $1,000,000 a year in promoting aviation

The elaborate program to link Japanese domestic air lines with the world's airways has already been worked out.

Most of the money spent on the five-year air defence program will be spent in building new airdromes, purchasing new equipment and strengthening air defence generally.

Chinese See Falling Star

Toronto — A huge falling star which thrilled Toronto citizens was described as shooting like a rocket out of the northwest, leaving a streak of yellow light which remained in the heavens for about 10 minutes. Officials at the Dunlap observatory thought the star might have been a meteor and, if as brilliant as reported, might have fallen to the earth.

THERMOMETER NEAR THE FROST LINE

In spite of the high wind blowing Wednesday night and Thursday morning, the thermometer just merely cleared the frost line, 36 being the low point registered. At 8 p. m. it was 58, the lower point being registered sometime after that. Considerable anxiety was felt during the early morning as the sky cleared and the air seemed to be all set for an early frost. The high wind which even merged into in the evening was no doubt instrumental in keeping Jack Frost at a distance.

The weather on Thursday continued wet, cold and cloudy.

Motion carried. When received will be submitted to the proper officials of the Department of Municipal Affairs.

Motion by Mr. Stewart and Mr. J. Wenzel that the Secretary take up this matter with the Provincial Executive of the Amalgamated Boards of Trade, with a view to obtaining concerted action towards Government relief of the situation.

USE FIGURES ON YOUR BALLOT, DO NOT USE X

Voters must NOT use the X to mark their ballot in the provincial election to be held on the 22nd inst. Instead they must write the figure 1 in the circle under the name of the candidate for whom they wish to vote, the figure 2 in the circle under the name of the candidate they wish to vote for as their second choice, and so on, numbering as many candidates as there are candidates for whom they wish to vote, placing the figures in the circles under the names of the candidates. Voters must not indicate their choice by the use of the figure 1. If he does, the voter may stop there, and the vote is called a plumper, but is good. A full explanation is to be found in the editorial column.

Art Of Early Indians

Learned Many Things Long Before White Men Knew Them

Indians in Central America used anaesthetics long before Columbus made his voyage of discovery, and were acquainted with the fundamentals of mathematics long before white men learned them, according to Mr. Gregory Mason, American explorer and archaeologist. "Many American realize," Mr. Mason asked, "that the Toltecs built a pyramid three times as great in bulk as the largest in Egypt, that the Peruvians made tapestries finer than any of Europe, and that the Mayans invented zero 600 years before the Hindus—which means that the Mayans were able to multiply and divide 1,000 years before Europeans could The red-skinned natives of Yucatan whom the United Barbarians' were better astronomers than the Europeans, and had a calendar far more accurately than the one Columbus was using and in some ways even superior to the one we use to-day."

Most Intense Cold

Machinery Now Creates Temperature 300 Degrees Below Zero

One hundred degrees below zero, the most intense cold yet used on a big industrial scale was announced by the Du Pont Company of Wilmington, Delaware in the making of synthetic rubber

The temperature is lower than anything naturally occurring on earth, where the bottom reported is 90 below in Siberia

The Du Pont plant represents a bold step in the encroachment of machines into the regions of cold too dangerous for human touch, but not to science whose will sweeps and conquers industrial processes.

The 100 below cold will be used as one factor in separating from acetylene the substance which is the base of synthetic or artificial rubber This is mono vinyl acetylene, one of acetylene's gases.

Stories To Be Investigated

Search Started For Mysterious Tropical Valleys In British Columbia

Indian stories from the North that tropical valleys, filled with luxurious vegetation, exist in northern British Columbia, green oases in the midst of snow-capped mountains, will be investigated by Dr. Charles Camsell, Deputy Minister of Mines. He left Ottawa for the West to begin a 10,-000-mile exploration trip designed primarily to gather information on one of the last remaining blank spots on maps of northwestern Canada. For years tales have reached Ottawa that tropical valleys exist in an unmapped area along the Yukon-Northwest Territory boundary. Several have been found, fed by hot springs, with tropical plants growing in profusion. There have been tales of prehistoric animals surviving in the valleys, but they have remained tales.

As early as 1900, during the Klondike gold rush, Dr. Camsell camped with a party of hot spring valleys further south, and more recently Dr. and Mrs. N J Hedry of Philadelphia found one, perhaps the same one. But the valleys remain mysteries, their extent, whether they are free from snow during the long winter and their flora and biology. Indians have referred to the valleys for years, but have steered clear of them through superstition.

Dr Camsell will explore the area from the air in a plane piloted by F W "Punch" Dickins, a famous Northern flier. He will be accompanied by A. D McLean, superintendent of Airways, Department of National Defence, and W H Suther-land, photographer. The blind spot which the Mounties call "the Valley" which white men never have travelled.

A City Of Trees

Addis Ababa In English Means The New Flower

In the king's English, Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia, means "the new flower." Dr Marshall A. Howe newly-elected director of the New York botanical garden, said that contrary to general belief, it is a city of trees and many gardens, an excellent spot for flower growing.

Few persons pronounce Addis Ababa correctly, says the United States geographic board. The board says it is "Addiss Abowwa," with the second on the first syllable of each word.

Giant Cobras Aid Science

Venom To Be Used In Serum As Substitute For Narcotics

Two cubic centimetres of venom, enough poison to kill 140 men, have been extracted from an eleven-foot king cobra in a squad recently court of the Staten Island Zoo, 307 St. Mark's Place, St. George. Four strong men, headed by Carol Stryker, director of the Staten Island Zoological Society, the owners of the reptile, were required to perform the operation.

Elaborate precautions were taken lest the snake bite some one. Mr. Stryker and his assistants were equipped with twelve peculiar-looking instruments to control the reptile's movements. There were forked sticks, nooses, hoods, and hooks. A sixteen-gauge shotgun, both barrels loaded, was placed against the wall of the court.

After the venom had been extracted it was turned over to Dr. Samuel M. Peck, chief of the pharmalogical staff of Mount Sinai Hospital, Fifth Avenue and 100th Street, New York. Dr. Peck, for the last few years, has been perfecting a serum compounded from cobra venom which is expected to replace narcotics for alleviating severe pain.

Dr. Peck said that his experiments had been hampered considerably by lack of sufficient venom, and that the liquid extracted would be sufficient for 1,000 injections. It requires almost three weeks to transform the venom into a usable serum. He said that he hoped to

INJURED IN CAR CRASH

Auto Hurtles Over Four Times; Two Cars Met at Hill Top

Matt Brimacombe prominent Vermilion citizen, was injured and was in the hospital, while two other occupants of the car, the driver and owner Mr MacFarland, promoter of the Gal well here, and his wife received numerous bruises and a bad shaking up, as a result of a car crash on the hill one half mile east of the Claysmore corner Mr Brimacombe suffered severe but not serious injuries, which necessitated a stay in the hospital. MacFarland received head bruises and two broken ribs while Mrs. MacFarland was badly shaken up.

The accident occurred last Wednesday evening MacFarland, accompanied by his wife and Mr. Brimacombe were returning from a trip to Calmny. As they reached the top of the hill, they were crushed into by a car proceeding westward. MacFarland swung to the extreme edge of his ditch but the oncoming car, a heavy machine, caught the rear of the Vermilion auto throwing the back end around and causing the car to shoot across to the north side of the road where it struck the deep ditches and hurtled over at least four times. That the occupants were not all seriously hurt is a miracle The car is wrecked beyond repair

The other car skidded sideways across the road for a distance exciting and at last, after the impact, it was driven by Mr. T. Hayes, Jr. of Edmont Alberta. He is a well known Edmonton and had been at the Lloydminster Fair where he was exhibiting his stock

At the top of these hills visibility is limited to a few yards and it is possible that both cars were being driven a little too closely towards the middle of the road But while the Vermilion car was successful in swinging to their side the other car was not so successful and swerved, crashing into the side of the local auto.

No insurance was carried by Mr. MacFarland. Mr. Hayes carried five point insurance on his automobile.

"LEST WE FORGET"
Great Epic on War At Columbia Theatre Sept. 12, 13 14

The gallant Canadian Corps has mobilized once more in another war to end war. During the next month they are going to the top again in one of the most dramatic battles ever waged on behalf of peace

Lest We Forget" in Canada's own war memories is compiled and produced through the joint sponsorship of the Canadian government and the Canadian Legion.

It is an epic of heroism, self sacrifice, and almost incredible endurance. It is war minus its brass buttons and false glamour

This picture does not glorify war. What it does is to show pictures of scattered fragments that once were men, smiling, treasures on Vimy What else meant in the torn remnants of man kind? especially from the mass slaughter massacre at Cambrai" What thrill other than sheer horror— in the spectacle of the wounded on the Canadian Base hospital at Etaples" What else thrill ation of any part of the stupid bloody business, when the corpses of seventeen million hero dead cast their blight over the whole scene"

The Legion has chosen a purely fairly timely period for the release of its anti war film. "Can it ever happen again" is a question being asked on all sides as the rumble of marching feet no shudder across Europe and Asia.

Lest We Forget is a challenge to the common sense of every Canadian a challenge to fight for peace as resolutely as did our hero sons in Flanders Fields

THE MICROBE'S "FORMAL"

A lovelorn microbe met by chance,
On a sweater horizontal dance,
A proud bacillus belle, and she
Was first of the animalcule
Of organisms acrylene
She was the protoplasmic queen.
The microscopical pride and pet
Of the bacteriological smartest set.
And so this infatuated swain
Evolved a pleading, low refrain
"O lovely metamorphic germ'
What facile scientific term
Can well describe thy many charms.
Come to these embryonic arms'
No Ass away to my cellular home
And be my little atom!"
His epithelium burned with love,
He swore, by molecules above,
She'd be his own gregarious mate
Or else he would disintegrate.
This amorous mite of a parasite
Pursued the germ both day and night.
And 'neath her window often played
This Darwin Hunley serenade.
He'd warble to her every day
This rhinopodial roundelay
"O most primordial type of spore!
I never saw your like before.
And though a microbe has no heart,
From you, sweet germ, I'll never part;
We'll all beneath some fungus growth
Till dissolution claims us both."

IMPERIAL OIL CO. LTD. DISTRIBUTES 200,528 SHARES TO EMPLOYEES

Value of $4,000,000; Stock Acquired Through Company's Fourth Co-Operative Investment Trust

Distribution of 208,528 shares of Imperial Oil Ltd. with a market value exceeding $4,000,000 has been made within the past few days to 2,557 of the company's employees in Canada. Some of these shares went into practically every community in the country and a list of the occupations of the employees who received them would be almost endless.

In Manitoba 2,158 shares were distributed, in Saskatchewan 13,170, and in Alberta 21,810.

The employees acquired this stock over a period of three years through the company's Fourth Co-Operative Investment Trust. Due to the company's contribution and appreciation in the value of the stock, the employees actually paid only about $1,000,000. G. Harrison Smith, president of Imperial Oil, commenting on this distribution said that years ago the shareholders had speculated on Canada's future by investing millions of dollars in equipment to serve consumers everywhere in Canada. As business developed the importance of maintaining a personal touch with the consumer and of promoting industry and enterprise became increasingly evident and so the plan of making employees part owners of the business was devised. "It is part of a general plan relating to proper and just treatment of labour" Mr. Smith said "and is based not only on the belief that labour is entitled to good treatment but on the knowledge that efficient and economical operation of an industry depends upon a loyal and enthusiastic personnel. In most cases he said, when you deal with an employee of Imperial Oil you are dealing with a part owner of the company. Of the 25,000 Canadian shareholders in the company, more than 5,000 are employees."

THE PREFERENTIAL BALLOT: POINTERS ON HOW IT WORKS.

The ballot being used in the Alberta elections of next Thursday, is called the Single Transferable ballot meaning that voters express their choices if there is more than one of 2, 3 and so on according to the order he will have prefer to various candidates. Voters must NOT use the X in this election but do number the ballot inside and in the order of preference. Voters must NOT use the same number more than once. If they like only one candidate they need not express any other choice. If they like two candidates they need not vote for a third. The ballot is counted first for the candidate marked No. 1 on each ballot. If any candidate receives enough votes to be elected on the first count he is declared elected. If no candidate receives enough votes on the first count the candidate with the least number of votes is eliminated and if in the ballots counted for him any have second choices marked they are counted for the candidates marked as second choice.

If there are enough candidates to run for the seats to be filled, the candidate with the least

Nature Upsets Man's Plans

Harvest time in Western Canada has again arrived and for the next five weeks great activity, from early morning till late at night, will be the rule right across these western plains. Following several years of short crops, and in many sections complete failure of crops due to drouth, and consequently lack of resources on the part of tens of thousands of farmers in need and harvest a crop this year, governments and municipalities banks, mortgage, loan and implement companies made provision whereby farmers were supplied with feed, fodder, seed, gas and oil, machinery repairs, binder twine, and other essentials to the seeding and harvesting of a crop. Each individual farmer may not have received all that he desired, but, speaking broadly the needs of the situation were fairly well met.

Taking the country as a whole, and excepting certain more or less restricted areas, copious rains have fallen throughout the growing season, following a somewhat late seeding. Up to a few weeks ago prospects for at least a normal, if not above normal crop, were bright. Grasshoppers and cut worms which were at first threatened, seemed to have been brought under control, weather conditions prevailing being a man's factor in the end. Prospects for a fairly large and satisfactory crop were excellent, and estimates of as high as 250,000,000 to 400,000,000 bushels of wheat were commonly made.

But last month the bright picture became clouded as rust made its appearance in the wheat fields coming in from the southeast and spreading rapidly westward and northward. Governments, financial concerns, economic planners, farmers, every human agency is powerless against this development of Nature For years technical agriculturist experts, chemists and scientists employed by Governments have been reviving a means to offset the ravages of rust and to develop a strain of wheat that will be rust-resistant But Nature this year has defied all their efforts and it is now self-evident that Western farmers will sustain heavy losses through the effect of rusted crops.

Estimates of the loss through rust already run as high as 100 000 000 bushels of wheat; some estimates are higher and, of course, the actual loss will not be known until the harvest is completed. On many farms, even in some instances, no wheat will be harvested

There is no desire to be alarmist in surveying this situation. Notwithstanding the inroads by rust upon what a few weeks ago was one of the most promising crops in many years, the general agricultural situation is decidedly better than for some years past. Grass again covers great areas of the West which recently presented a desert-like appearance. Feed and fodder formerly lacking in now available. Garden crops are generally reported to be good. But the big cash crop of the West, wheat, will be smaller and of decidedly less value than was hoped for and expected a few weeks ago.

The whole country must face this unfortunate fact and meet it to the best of its ability. No human agency may be held responsible for the losses sustained. It was beyond Governments, corporations, and individuals alike to prevent. All will be included in the losses sustained.—Governments through loss of revenues and the necessity of providing assistance where it was not anticipated it would be necessary; railways through loss of traffic and therefore loss of revenue; railway, elevator, machine company and other employees, including farm laborers, through less employment; financial concerns to whom money for advances made is owing but which cannot be paid as fully as was anticipated; farmers more especially because the returns for their year's labor are swept away or very largely reduced. In a word, no existing political, financial, economic, or social system is responsible for the heavy losses the country is sustaining Nature and conditions developed under its immutable laws are the sole cause

But Nature is not always united. In the long run it always strikes a fair balance. Its laws operate not for one year, but throughout cycles of years. Man must not only recognize this truth, but govern himself accordingly. There is no good end to be served by becoming despondent and discouraged There is only one courageous thing to do, and that is to face the situation and the problems presented. They will be compounded if not met to-day, they will be compounded for by gains to-morrow. That is a law of Nature. Therefore, the future should be faced with courage and determination. Life is a battle and must be fought. Man could not exist on "honey bags of ease." If he is to succeed and reach the topmost rungs of the ladder of life, he must exert himself and climb, battling against all obstructions in his way, eradicating the weeds that cling and clog his progress, overcoming and strengthening the ladder. Climbing he will become stronger; crouching at the foot of the ladder, waiting for somebody to carry him up, he will become flabby and weak and eventually succumb. Courage and determination, which will bring confidence, is essential to success in any walk of life. And in the long run Nature will not bar the way, rather it will be found helpful and co-operating.

Wood Ready For Use

Germany Has Treatment To Season Trees While Growing

Telegraph poles, railway ties and other heavy wood necessities may be made to order by a treatment which it has just been discovered in Germany. Trees are made to season themselves so that when felled their wood is ready for immediate use. A bore hole is made in the tree trunk, and a special chemical solution contained, being arsenic and other salts is injected into the living tree. These chemicals sink into the tree's sap stream of the tree, and are gradually carried to the ends of the highest branches. The tree does not survive the treatment very long but as it died it becomes thoroughly saturated with preservative, and can be used as railroad or telegraph and telephone without any of the usual treatment.

A "parachute balloon," designed to change its form in the air and to descend as a parachute, has made its first experimental flight from the field of the government dirigible factory near Moscow.

The pilots, Medenkoff and Lindt, were ordered to ascend 10,000 feet, then to open the valve, permitting the gas to escape.

The underpart of the bag is designed to fold upward in such a manner the bag gradually takes the form of a parachute.

Trying For New Record

Speed Of 300 M.P.H. Is the Malcolm Campbell's Aim

A circus of record breaking under the boiling sun on Utah's salt desert, planned as the greatest show in the history of automobile speed racing, is the September aim of Sir Malcolm Campbell and Captain George Eyston, Britain's swiftest drivers.

The speed kings announced their plans—to sail together, Sir Malcolm to shoot again at his dream of 300 miles an hour in the veteran Bluebird; Eyston to tackle every mark between that one and 24 hours.

Filled with glowing accounts of the Bonneville salt flats surface by his friend, John Cobb, who recently set 21 new records there, Campbell is confident that old Lady Bluebird, the six-ton thunder wagon that rocketed to the present head speed record of 276.816 on the sands of Daytona Beach last winter, finally will carry him this time over a mile in 12 seconds flat—300 miles an hour.

"I'm sure I'll best 300 this time," Campbell said. "Then I'll chuck racing and stick to business."

The 50-year-old Englishman who has no challenger to-day for speed over a measured mile has added a few alterations in the Bluebird since his return from Florida.

Captain Eyston, who in the past nine years has set 230 records, more than any other living man, will alternate record tries with Campbell over the 22-mile course looking front-drive juggernaut, powered with a 600-horsepower Rolls Royce aviation engine. His tanks carry 22 gallons of gasoline, giving it a 600-mile range without refueling. Eyston believes he can average 300 miles an hour or higher for 24 hours and is bringing Albert Denly along to drive relief.

Fingerprints By Radio

Experiments Have Shown Great Improvement In Results Obtained

Transmission of fingerprints by radio is but one of the latest uses science and criminal detection—a link that is being more strongly forged by Scotland Yard every day.

Experiments were first started two months ago. Although not yet regarded as an every day practical business, considerable headway has recently been made in the results obtained.

At first the images were blurred, even when sent from enlarged prints, but greater technical experience is steadily overcoming these difficulties.

The time is very near when in urgent cases, portable apparatus will be used to send fingerprints direct from the scene of the crime to Scotland Yard records, it was predicted

As the technique of wired and radio transmission improves, it will be possible to send life-size fingerprint photographs over any kind of distance, police believe. Scotland Yard rapidly turns new scientific inventions to the use of the law in its fight against criminals. The present head of the famed investigating department, Lord Trenchard, has had much to do with the reorganization plans.

Power Of Sun Rays

Amount Of Sunburn Is Sunlight Measured By Machine

Government scientists of the United States have successfully tested a machine which measures the amount of sunburn in sunlight.

Dr. W. W. Coblentz, internationally famous radiation expert of the National Bureau of Standards, has perfected the machine which measures the ultraviolet rays of sunlight which cause sunburn and tanning. The machine is home technically as a portable prevision ultraviolet ray meter.

Ultraviolet rays comprise less than a thousandth of the total radiation coming from the sun, Dr. Coblentz said. Yet these particular rays are strong enough to scorch the skin with only several hours exposure during the summer months. The rays also are used in treating rickets.

Tests have been made at Washington and San Juan, Puerto Rico. Both are approximately at sea level and relatively free from atmospheric dust. Dr. Coblentz pointed out that altitude and flying particles were factors in measuring solar radiation.

The measurements were made somewhat stronger at San Juan than in Washington at the same comparative time of year. The extreme value of the radiation studies made in the tropics which show that the sun, being directly overhead, has to send its light through less ozone in the stratosphere. Experts estimate that the light must drive a fearsome looking front-drive juggernaut, powered with a 600-horsepower Rolls Royce aviation engine. It has tanks carry 22 gallons of gasoline, giving it a 600-mile range without refueling. Eyston believes he can average 300 miles an hour or higher for 24 hours and is bringing Albert Denly along to drive relief.

The King's Reach

Section Of Thames Named In Honor Of Jubilee

The River Thames, so far as it runs through the metropolitan district of London, is divided into a series of sections called "reaches." There is Chelsea Reach, Blackwall Reach, Greenwich Reach, Gallions Reach and so on, but one section appeared to have escaped this honor, a deficiency which has just been rectified in honor of the King's silver jubilee. This is the section between the Post of London, so familiar in pictures, just west of the Tower Bridge, and Lambeth Reach, which terminates on the Houses of Parliament side of Westminster Bridge. The Port of London Authority has decided to call it "The King's Reach."

Once upon a time the Thames was more used as the King's Highway than the river Medway, between Westminster and the Tower of London, the royal residence, St. James Palace being at one end while His Majesty's mint had business at the Tower—sometimes very dirty business at that. So the "King's Reach" is as appropriate name for this important waterway. It includes London Bridge, Southwark Bridge, Blackfriars Bridge, Waterloo Bridge to Westminster, and on the shore there are such interesting spots as Billingsgate Fish Market, Cannon street railway station, St. Paul's Cathedral, Victoria Embankment, including Cleopatra's Needle, Somerset House, where wills are filed and all the births, deaths and marriages in England are registered, Charing Cross and Scotland Yard.

So if you should happen to be in Old London and lean over the parapet somewhere between the Houses of Parliament and the Tower looking at what John Burns calls "liquid history," that part is "The King's Reach."—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Professor Of English Says It Is Language Of The Tribe

At the spring meeting of Yorkshire Dialect Society held at Wilberfoss House, H. C. Wyld, professor of English language and philology in Liverpool University gave an address on slang, cant, and jargon. He said it was impossible to acquire a thorough knowledge of English without being familiar with slang and vulgarisms. Slang was language on trial, but no word or expression had any real meaning outside its context and the situation in which it occurred. Cant was originally the secret language of the under-world, and he defined jargon as language unintelligible out of its proper sphere. Consideration would show the absurdity of condemning slang unheard. Attempts had been made to classify it accurately.

Slang was generally wanted when thought about the passing of sectional slang into general slang. Words which were started as slang had risen in value and he saw an essential part of our colloquial of literary vocabulary.

Britain Has Not Yet Decided On Naval Program

Sir Hoiton Eyres-Monsell, first lord of the admiralty, told the House of Commons Britain's naval building program could not be determined "until the results of a naval conference and programme of other powers are known."

Referring specifically to a publication report that Britain plans to build a new 35,000,000 battle fleet by 1942, he said: "No attention need be paid to unofficial and irresponsible statements."

Britain, he added, has advanced a hypothetical programme to the United States, Germany, France and others.

Dr. N. Reisz, a leading physician in Vienna, Austria, says honey is the best healer of wounds and superior to all ointments. He has treated several thousand cases with honey, and has not had a single failure. It soothes pain, hastens healing and acts as an antiseptic, he declares. It is also highly effective with burns and carbuncles.

Sees Market In Britain

Opportunity For Export Of Tuberculin-Free Cattle From Canada

Prevalence of bovine tuberculosis in Great Britain provides a great opportunity for Canada to develop herds bredeves to develop a large market for tuberculin-free cattle, Dr. Arbour Hopkins, director of the British Medical Association touring party, said at Toronto before entraining for Montreal. He is accompanied, also, man of Swansea, South Wales.

"Sixty per cent. of cattle in Great Britain show tuberculin reaction," Dr. Stephens stated. "Canada's development in recent years has shown this can be overcome. The market must be because opinion in Great Britain is strongly in favor of tuberculin-free herds, I believe a wonderful opportunity exists to benefit the Canadian cattle-breeders and the British people."

A Modern Samson

Native Of India Earns Nickname With His Feats

N. K. Modi of Dumka, Bihar, India, has earned for himself—with good reason—the nickname of "Samson." Here are some of the feats he has recently accomplished:

Killed a tiger single-handed, armed only with a stick;

Killed a buffalo by twisting its horns till its neck broke;

Put to flight, by himself, a gang of 60 bandits. Saved the life of a forest servant, who fell down a well. He was just in time to catch the man's left ankle with one hand as he disappeared over the edge, and he hauled him back with ease into safety.

Here's a simple to sew swagger coat that finds an important place in every modern wardrobe.

To-day's pattern also provides for seven-eighths length as seen in the small back view.

Should Name Delegates

Canada Urged To Appoint Representatives To League Assembly

Ottawa.— Representations on the threat by Italy of war against Ethiopia were made by the League of Nations Society to the Dominion government.

The government was urged to appoint at the earliest possible moment, the delegates that will represent Canada at the assembly of the League of Nations opening in Geneva on September 5.

In a resolution forwarded to the prime minister the society pointed out the period of the forthcoming meeting "promises to be a most critical one in the development of world economic organization." The agenda of the meeting, said the society's representations, "includes consideration of such important questions as the amendment of the league covenant and the prohibition under the provisions of the covenant of the supply of arms and war materials to belligerents."

Hail Damage Heavy

Storm In Alberta Ruins Thousands Of Acres Of Wheat

Calgary.—Two hundred thousand acres of wheat in areas ranging from Gleichen to Cremona, east of Calgary, and stricken farmers are seeking the assistance of insurance companies following a late July hailstorm.

First reports of the storm said only 50 per cent of crops had been destroyed but Vaughan S. Kimpton, Liberal candidate in the Gleichen by-election riding, here told of much heavier damage than originally reported.

Mr. Kimpton said the hail, driven by a high wind, was piled 18 inches deep in places, and that wheat stalks, cut off by the hail, were stained, were piled against fences.

Trees and hedges were stripped of leaves and many grouse birds killed. Partridges were found beaten to death, covering their young which were also dead.

Want School Established

Request May Be Made To New Mining District

Regina.—Residents of Goldfields, mining area of Lake Athabasca, are making the provincial government to establish a school immediately.

At present there are between 35 and 16 children of school age in the territory, and there is no school of any kind.

A public meeting was held in the Bank of Nova Scotia, which recommendations were drafted and forwarded to Hon. J. W. Estey, minister of education.

Stumbling block to the establishment of a school is the fact that Goldfields is not an incorporate property in the area, and thus there could be no taxes raised for school purposes.

It is understood that the department making a grant to the d s trict to be used for school purposes

No decision has been reached by the department.

Italy Pays Heavy Tolls

In Six Months War Transports Through Suez Canal Cost $16,000,000

Port Said, Egypt.— Approximately 240,000 Italian troops and laborers have passed through the Suez canal in the last six months, en route to East Africa, official figures disclosed.

In a single day recently, nine Italian transports laden with soldiers, aeroplanes, tanks and artillery explosives made the passage of the canal from the Mediterranean to the Red sea.

Not all Italian transports are bound for East Africa, however. The statistics show that in the last three months, 8'x large Italian steamers carrying more than 9,000 Italian soldiers and supplies from malaria, dysentery and typhoid made the transit of the canal for Italy.

Officials estimated that in the last three months, the Italian government has paid the Suez administrat on $16,000,000 in canal dues on war transports.

CANADIANS HAVE A GOOD MARKET IN SOUTH AFRICA

Winnipeg.—Canadians in search of overseas trade opportunities would do well to search out South Africa, according to D. de Wal Meyer, South African trade commissioner to Canada.

In 1932, Mr. Meyer said, Canada sold the Union of South Africa goods to the value of $2,750,000. In 1934, sales mounted to $12,000,000, topping by $500,000 the previous "high" recorded in the boom year of 1929.

"That is some record to be proud of," Mr. Meyer said. "Canada's prosperity has gone beyond the good times level," the trade commissioner said. "The 25 feet of rainfall which is causing power has increased enormously. Not only has the value of South Africa's Canadian purchases increased, but the percentage of our purchases of Canadian goods also has advanced. In 1933, 3.3 per cent. of our total purchases came from Canada. In 1934, the percentage had mounted to 3.6 per cent.

"It is worth while for Canadians to give special attention to South Africa. That is one of the most important markets in the world because of its prosperity," he added.

The increase of Canada's trade with South Africa is attributed by Mr. Meyer in part to the Ottawa agreements, and in part to the visit to that country of Canadian delegations, such as one that attended an educational conference in South Africa, and another of British Columbia lumber interests.

On the reverse side of the picture is the fact that Canada's trade balance is four to one in her favor. Mr. Meyer said, South Africa selling to Canada $3,000,000 of which corn and sugar made up about 85 per cent.

BRITISH RIDER WINS THRILLING RACE

Here we see Stanley Woods, the winner of the most thrilling Tourist Trophy Race seen by Manxmen since the contest was inaugurated at the Isle of Man in 1907, rounding Governor's Bridge on the last lap of the 264-mile race. No one believed Wood could win the race as he was 30 seconds behind J Guthrie with one lap to go but instead of stopping at the pit for refueling he dashed on at 100 miles an hour to win the thrilling race by 20 seconds. He gambled that he would have enough gas to win the race. The British and Italian ambassadors

ANGLO-JAPANESE CONFERENCE MAY BE HELD SHORTLY

Tokyo.—Great Britain has formally proposed an Anglo-Japanese conference to be held next autumn to discuss questions affecting the two countries and not yet settled, it was said.

The newspaper Yomiuri said diplomatic observers believed the government would ask for positive British co-operation in readjusting trade relations between England and Japan. Tsunuri pointed out Britain has an inexhaustible supply of natural resources and a large market, which Japan contends is closed to the outside world through the economic bloc, strengthened by the Ottawa and other conferences Japan and Canada at present have heated customs duties against each other pending reciprocations over imports.

The newspaper feels this exclusion policy deals a fatal blow to the economic and commercial advance of Japan, which suffers from scanty natural resources and a surplus of population. Consequently, Yomiuri said, have come the suggestions advanced by diplomatic observers that Britain remove economic barriers, if it wishes to establish firm and friendly relations between the two countries and thus make it a substantial contribution to world peace

England's Letter Post System

Was Started 300 Years Ago By Charles First

There was a letter post system in England 300 years ago and the proof of it is a document now being specially exhibited at the British Museum.

It is a proclamation issued by Charles I, in one Thomas Witherings, authorising him to "settle a running post" between London and the principal towns in the most important countries.

This document states Witherings is to provide messengers to ride between London and the towns set forth, who "must return within five days." They are to collect letters left at post-houses along the various routes, and to "take them as near as possible they can" to their destination.

It was to cost twopence to send a letter under 80 miles, fourpence between 80 and 140 miles and sixpence over 140 miles, while the charge to Scotland was eightpence

This year the Wm. Wrigley Jr. Co. of Canada Ltd. celebrates its fifteen Jubilee—twenty-five years of steady progress and achievement. It was just twenty-five years ago that Allan Ross, President of Wrigley's in Canada, and Vice-president of the Wrigley Company in the United States, came to Toronto to found a business that has grown to one of the largest in the country. Allan Ross was then only 22, but he had the ability to work hard, a brilliant imagination, and the courage to grasp an opportunity when perceived. To-day Mr. Ross is still a young man at the head of a business that stretches from coast to coast, a company whose name has entered every home, and whose advertising has created every individual in the Dominion. The history of Wrigley achievements in Canada is well known; it includes the founding of the Marathon Swims at the Canadian National Exhibition, the invention of "radio smateur night," the offer to Lone watcher what with all gum-dollars received the establishment of unemployment hostels, and hundreds of other contributions to the people

Mr. Ross says: "Without capable helpers, no business can succeed." He has followed that principle and has surrounded himself with unusually capable men. Highly efficient team-work, possible only with the highest type helpers has enabled Mr. Ross to build the Wrigley Company from a business whose yearly output would scarcely fill a room 10 x 10 x 10 feet to a daily production of tons upon tons. Wrigley's gum is sold to the public through 75,000 retailers—three out of every five retailers in the Dominion.

"There is only one way," says Mr. Ross, "to make progress; it is to make it slowly. So far as I know there is only one way to develop self and that is stable worthy material. It is: start to learn by actual experience—which it will take years to get—the fundamentals of whatever game you tackle."

Has Uncanny Powers

Man Who Produces Beetles From Air Puzzles Scientists

That he can produce beetles, birds, flowers, snakes and liquids from the air is the claim of Lajos Pap, a Hungarian, who declares his uncanny powers have puzzled doctors and scientists throughout Europe. He recently underwent a series of tests and experiments at the International Institute for Physical Research, South Kensington, London, but he still says that he can produce living and inanimate things," he said. "Many of the animals I produce from the air are living in various museums in Budapest." Dr. Nandor Fodor, honorary secretary of the London institute, said he had seen Lajos Pap produce 23 live beetles from the air at a meeting in Budapest. "He has to be in a complete trance to do it. He produces the beetles by snapping at the air. Every precaution was taken to see that there was not the slightest possibility of the exhibit being a fake."

PATTERN 5011

As cute an assortment of cuddle toys as ever gladdened a child's heart! They're ridiculously easy to make, too, for each animal requires but two identical pieces of material which you sew together and stuff with cotton. Of course the chicken's wing, and bear's jacket are extra, made with just a scrap of contrasting material. What youngster would not love to own one or all of them! They're just the thing for that bazaar, too, or for a present for the baby of the house. Gay calico, or other prints, cotton broadcloth, velveteen or sateen, are possibilities. Then watch the young admirers gather around!

In pattern 5011 you will find a pattern of the four toys shown, detailed instructions and yardage requirements for making them.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(UNIFORM IN

BARNABAS

(A Consecrated Man Of Means)

Golden text: He was a good man, and full of the Holy Spirit and of faith. Acts 11:24.

Lesson: Acts 4:36, 37; 9:26-30; 11: 19-30; 13:25; 13:1 to 15, 41; Galatians 2:13.

Devotional reading: Psalm 96:1-10.

Explanations And Comments

A Consecrated Man of Means, Acts 4:36, 37. Barnabas, the nickname of the early Christian Church of Jerusalem was a man named Barnabas, whose family had been natives of the island of Cyprus. In those days he who had given to him the name, whose family had been natives of the island of Cyprus. In those days he who had gave to him the name, without grudging, as Aristides wrote to the Emperor Hadrian. Barnabas was a very generous man. When he sold a field, he brought the whole sum and gave it to the apostles to spend for the poor.

Broadminded Men, Acts 11:19-24. Many who were driven out of Jerusalem because of the persecution, at the time of Stephen's martyrdom, fled westward beyond Judea and Samaria into Phoenicia, the province in which Tyre and Sidon were located, and still further to Antioch, the capital of Syria, the third largest city of the Roman Empire. Quarters, these men preached only to the Jews. Others, however, natives of Cyprus and Cyrene, Grecian Jews by birth, came to Antioch and there because of their cosmopolitan experience entertained fewer scruples about mixing with the Greeks. So it was that Jews of Palestine, when they came to Antioch preached to the Jews only, or Gentiles, also. God was with them in this their new movement, and large numbers of the Greeks believed their message.

The Church at Jerusalem was alarmed over this new departure of preaching to the Gentiles, and sent Barnabas at Antioch to investigate the situation. Now Barnabas was a good man—full of the Holy Spirit and of faith.

"It begins with the surface—He was a good man—and that cuts a little deeper—full of the Holy Spirit that is why he was a good man. And then—and faith; and that is why he was full of the Holy Spirit. Some men possess keen analytical models, whose one bite off like top some that resemble and flesh, and one layer like a deeper-seated organ. Luke's analysis of Barnabas penetrates like flesh to a vertical section, that discloses the vitals—but only the vitals—the highest of laughing flowers' on the surface, and the underlying soils which nourish these." (Alexander Maclaren).

Being a good man, Barnabas rejoiced when he saw the genuineness of the Christian character of the Gentiles. A writer thinks that the tribute to Barnabas in Acts 11:24 is recorded as if nothing short of such characteristics could have sufficiently emancipated him from the narrowness that would have refused to discern the good in such a revelation any proceeding.

Winter Shipments Of Ore Must Be Sent Out By Aeroplane

Eighty tons of concentrated pitchblende ore from the Eldorado Gold Mines property at Lake Athabaska, Great Bear Lake, arrived at Port Fitzgerald, Alta., by portage recently.

The cargo, valued at $750,000, was shipped south on the river steamer Wrigley from Fort Norman. Precautions to safeguard the radium-bearing ore are being taken. It was transferred to the "Mabel D" aeroplane which will carry it by air shipped by train to the Port Hope, Ont., refinery of the Eldorado company.

All but further shipments will be made by aeroplane, Gilbert Labine, president of the company, revealed in Edmonton recently.

Little Journeys In Science

WOOD FLOUR

(By Gordon H. Ouest, M.A.)

Products of the forest have always been of great use to man but in recent years science has discovered many new uses for wood, in the form of a very fine powder, known as wood flour.

The linoleum industry has been a large consumer of wood flour. It is used chiefly in the inlaid types and also in smaller quantities inlaid with cork flour in the production of the high-quality and printed types.

In the manufacture of explosives, wood flour has its greatest usefulness as a constituent of dynamite. The sensitiveness of liquid nitroglycerine, which is the explosive material in dynamite, is greatly reduced when diluted with some powdered substance such as wood flour.

The phenol resins, when used with wood flour or fillers, may be moulded into many useful and every-day articles. These include such products as telephone, radio and automobile parts and electrical equipment. Dr. Leo Baekeland was the scientist who did a great deal of the earlier work which led to this almost unlimited use of wood flour with the phenol resins. For this purpose the finest grades of wood flour are required. The finest and most highly thoroughly mixed with the resin, colouring matter and other ingredients produces a plastic mass. When this material has been dried it may be ground to fine powder and moulded under pressure and heat. Many useful articles are made of efficient binding materials to produce pieces of trays, buttons, bells, furniture parts, records and dolls.

Among the various uses of wood flour not connected with industrial might be included composition flooring, for artistic polishing, artificial utensils and metal products, fur cleaning, and as a food adjunct.

Various varieties, such as spools, buttons, wheels, trays, and more recently, as insulating brick, are being made from wood flour.

Wool Imports

Largest Amount Used In Canada Comes From New Zealand

Canada is a large consumer of wool for her textile manufactures, the cloth that makes our clothes, that makes our blankets, rugs and a large range of essential articles. Most of that wool is from the fleece of the sheep and the two great sheep countries of the world are Australia and New Zealand. In fact, the Antipodes is the largest sheep emporium of the world.

Last year we imported 15 million pounds of raw wool, that is, sheep wool in the grease, scoured wool, or nearly half of the total, from New Zealand, close to six million from the United Kingdom, and over three million from Australia. Besides this, we got 11 million pounds of noils and worsted tops mainly from the United Kingdom. We have been getting most of the wool imported from Great Britain came originally from other Empire countries, as a glance at the figures mentioned, as well as India, British South Africa and the Irish Free State.

It is surprising to find that most of our wool comes from New Zealand rather than from Australia, for although New Zealand has great flocks of sheep totalling over 30 million head, Australia, the greatest sheep country in the world, has four times that number

Canada is by no means a sheep country, with only about a million head so the chances are overwhelming that the cloth we wear is made of wool that came from the other side of the world.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gay, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of a new costume for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all he had, and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an obscure relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be a prosperous ranch.

After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and her mother leave for the West. They are met at the railway station by Cousin Columbine, who first introduces Mark and Matthew Adams, two neighbors of Aunt Columbine, and then the party sets out for Pine Ridge, which village causes disappointment to Nancy and Mrs. Nelson of its dilapidated appearance and general look of poverty. Nancy and Jack are shown to the rooms they are to occupy, and then the young people consider the furniture and decorations, which contrast sharply with the present quarters with their luxurious home in Boston, wonder if they can possibly endure the length of time. Aunt Columbine tells why she sent for them, and relates some of her early experiences at Pine Ridge, when Indians and forest fires, of her father's hunt for gold, and of her mother's splendid spirit, but frail body, which could not endure the strain of pioneer life.

Nancy set out one afternoon to climb to the top of a hill so as to obtain a view of the surrounding landscape and misses the path Aurora Tubbs had told her to follow. A truck comes along the road, driven by Matthew Adams, and she asks him which way to go. They ascend the hill, look around, and then go on to Cousin Columbine's. There Mark Adam tells them that Aurora Tubbs has broken his leg, and that Jack Nelson has been hired to help out while Luke's leg gets better With Jack away, Nancy knows she is lonesome, and having no books to read, the first thing she acquires is a public library at Pine Ridge seems a good one, and Nancy writes to her father to send all the books they could spare and all they could induce others to let them have.

The early winter darkness had fallen when they returned. Nance had had "a wonderful day." She had lunched at a delightful tea room, done her own shopping, visited Aurora's, Cousin Columbine's, and even Matthew Adam's! For when she met the escort at the appointed time, the young man confessed that he had delayed his own holiday shopping in order to profit by her service. Would Dot Meredith, the cousin who was in college at Denver and was to spend her vacation at the ranch, approve of silk stockings as a gift? And what size must he get? What color? Friends of the Family

Look at the packages on your pantry and bathroom shelves, and see what a multitude of brand names you recognize. Some of them have been familar for years. You may have made the acquaintance of others only a few weeks ago. But even these are not suspected strangers. You have bought them confidently because they were advertised. And it is the same with your sheets and towels, your shoes and clothes, your electric appliances, the car in your garage —nearly everything you use.

Advertised products have a standing that commands respect. They are not nameless, but vouched for by responsible firms. The fact that they are advertised is in itself an indication that their standards of quality are strictly maintained, that they represent honest value.

As science and discovery go on, newly developed products are constantly being advertised—ready to help you save money and improve your standard of living. Every advertisement of such a product you read in your newspaper is a letter of introduction too a new and possibly useful friend.

It will pay you to read the advertisements in this paper. By so doing you will meet many choice products—worthy to become friends of the family.

THE STANDARD
VERMILION ALBERTA
ESTABLISHED 1909
Published every Thursday Afternoon at the Office, Main St.
S. R. P. COOPER — EDITOR.

Vermilion, Alta., Aug. 22, 1935.

Regarding the [illegible] Standard a citizen which appeared in a recent issue, complaining of the incompetence caused other residents by the wholesale watering of stock at town pumps, thereby tying up the well and letting the man who wanted one pail of fresh water go without; and also of the unsanitary condition prevailing around the pumps as a result, the Standard is informed by the M. O. H. that water from all wells is tested regularly and that the water from the well in question comes well within the prescribed test as being free from contamination. This is as far as the Medical Health Officer is concerned in the matter.

As to the inconvenience caused by the well being dry after stock has been watered There are public wells and there is thus no restriction placed on their use by the town ect. If the citizens wish to have the act changed the thing to do is to petition the town council to restrict the pumps to drinking purposes only, requiring water to be hauled to stock in the town.

This prevails in some centres and no doubt, if the inconvenience amounts to anything, some action along this line would be taken.

No car reminders were put in the paper last week as it was felt that everyone required the full time to decide how to vote this week. Now that is over the Treasury Department of the town wishes to tell you that several thousand dollars are required by September 21st to meet municipal and school obligations. If you have not already done so, please let the town clerk have, at least, part payment on your taxes. If everyone would do what they can, your elected representatives on the council would deeply appreciate it.

Since the dawn of civilization, the Agricultural fair has been regarded as a great social asset, a factor quite apart from the facilities for trade and barter and the enlarged educational outlook consequent on new things seen and heard. In the early ages, religious festivals offered outlets for trade, and in the Code of Khammurabi, the Babylonian Emperor, B. C. 2250, the law is laid down for proper conduct of trade, based on the experience of the previous 1,000 years since the reign of Sargon of Sumeria in B. C. 3000 In China, the Emperor Puh in B. C. 2852 issued orders regarding agricultural fairs which were comprehensively dealt with by his successor, the Great Agriculturist, Shen-nung. The festival at Delos and the Olympian games in ancient Greece were merely the opening days of gigantic fairs, and in ancient Italy the vast annual assembly at Volturnus merged itself into a famous mass meeting for social intercourse and trade. India with its great annual fair at Hardwar on the upper Ganges, Russia with Nijni Novrod, Germany with Leipsic and Frankfort, England with Stowe, Barnet and Nottingham, all in turn have passed the torch westward to Canada, where at Toronto, the Canadian National Exhibition or fair, for that is what it really is, and the Royal Winter Fair stand at the present day in the direct line as among the greatest annual agricultural fairs. Modern inventions may claim to have displaced them and of course they have, but the radio, the telegraph, the motor car, and every other modern invention seem merely to have conspired to solidify the wisdom of the ancients in providing the thrill of an ever widening social circle and the opportunity for a progressive education through personal experience in the agricultural fairs of to-day

Foreman Chas. Wilson had the misfhap of having one fingers badly crushed in the frame, while working on the road at the bottom of the hill on Monday last.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

From the Neighborhood of the South-East

The effect of the frost of the 22nd in the Neighborhood is widespread and generally very apparent. All spuds are black, while delicacies are finished. Most grain was not ripe enough to escape damage.

The Neighborhood was the scene of a near disaster when a carload driven by Mr. Chas. Friedland backed down a very steep hill and turned on to its side at the bottom. Passengers were: Mrs. Friedland, Mrs. Potter, Johnnie Wilhite, Olive Friedland and Vevna Potter. They were all bruised, Mrs Friedland suffering the most severe, am shaking up through being tossed from the front seat into the back. The accident took place on the road leading east past Lavoie Lake, the hill in question being noted for its severe slope.

Threshers in and out include Mr. and Mrs. Artie Friedland and party who motored to Cherry Grove for blueberry season; Mrs. D. Doyle and daughter Donna spent a few days visiting Mrs. R. Powers in the Colne district; Miss Ethel Doyle journeyed to the east country to visit her sister, Mrs H Bohning, and Mrs. Bohning's guest, Mrs. Jay Doyle returned to the Neighborhood with Mr. Doyle and wife were visitors at the home of Miss Annette LaFrance of Wainwright district, with M. de Beverley when had brought his daughter Evelyn back to our midst. All these friends of ours show happy effects of their travelling and visits.

Our best wishes to Mrs. A. Gisbeen of 1 Hill who has recently undergone an operation in the Vermilion hospital.

Borradaile is becoming a prosperous looking centre as construction takes place on the bungalow of Mr. F. Scott and the new store quarters of Mr Walsh.

Mr C. E. Cox has two store-front buildings and three gas pumps situated at his gateway The Union Oil Co is partly responsible for some of these developments. The telephone line to Mr. Cox's residence is now being erected.

Mr. R. Powers has finished paint work on the Porter filling station, leaving that corner the brighter for his efforts.

Berry pickers report a much smaller crop than last year. Raspberries were fair but Saskatoons were very scarce

We offer our sincere congratulations to our co-worker, Mr. Ashley Cooper, and wish the couple every success.

Every good wish to "Ted"! May he be poet laureate of the S. C. cause But the printer got grey hairs over the amorous adventures of the mail route.

TRY THESE RECIPES!

PRUNE JELLY
4½ tablespoons CANADA CORN STARCH
2 ounces sugar
1 pound prunes
2 cups water

Stew the prunes in water to cover and cook until soft, about 15 minutes. Take the finely chopped prunes, crush and to a pulp in a mortar and mix with the corn starch dissolved in ¼-cup or cold water, taken from the given quantity of water, and sweeten to taste. Boil for eight minutes in a double boiler.

APPLE SURPRISE PUDDING
5 tablespoons CANADA Corn Starch
1 cup water
2 well-beaten eggs
6 medium-sized apples, sliced thin
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon salt
1¼ cups Crown Brand Corn Syrup
2 cup raisins
½ teaspoon ground cloves
1 tablespoon butter.

Cook corn starch, blended with salt and water, in a double boiler with corn syrup until thick or for about 20 minutes. Add well-beaten eggs. Place sliced apples in pudding dish, cover with raisins and sprinkle with sugar well mixed with the spices. Dot over with butter. Pour the hot sauce over all and bake in a moderate oven until apples are tender when pierced with a fork. Serve hot or cold with lemon sauce or garnish with whipped cream.

Vegreville Loss To Shadow

Vegreville lost two straight games to the Edmonton Shamrocks in the next round of the baseball championships and thus also take their place among the eliminated teams.

"What did your son learn at college?"

"Well, he can ask for money in such a way that it makes it seem a privilege to give it to him."

VERMILION BASEBALL TEAM ELIMINATED FROM PLAY-OFFS

The Vermilion baseball team was eliminated by Vegreville in the Alberta play downs in a three game series. The locals lost the first game here and won the second at Vegreville and then dropped the third. Scores were 7—6, 6—2, 6—0.

In the second game played at Vegreville on Thursday night last on short notice, after being postponed from Wednesday, the locals were only able to muster nine men. Jack Smith pitched a perfect game, as well as scoring one run, while there was only one error chalked up against the team. The best line up from snicker on was: Bill Mead, Smith, D. Brimacombe, Waldenberg, Banks, F. Brimacombe, Geoff Brimacombe, F. Mead, Gilbert Brimacombe.

Bill Mead scored the first run, coming in from third when pitcher Boutilier walked. Jack Smith climaxed the game with a two bagger, scoring on two singles.

Vegreville sent Sellands to the mound for the final game Friday night and he again proved a Nemesis for Vermilion batters, the latter outfit dropping the decision 6—0.

BOARD OF TRADE NOTES

The regular weekly luncheon was held on Monday, with a goodly attendance. This type of gathering seems to appeal to the members with the result that large numbers turn out

No momentous questions were brought up but a large number of odds and ends were settled. Chairman Robertson reported that owing to the nature of his business he would probably be absent from the luncheons for a few weeks. A. E. Kaiser announced that the President appoint a member to act as chairman for the next meeting, and that person appoint a successor and so on. Thinking the idea a good one Mr. Robinson named Mr Kaiser to conduct the Monday luncheon.

The Secretary reported to date on the steps which were taken to gather figures on the hail damage in this district. Mr. H. W. Brown reported that he had been supplied with government forms and had already received a considerable number of returns

Another luncheon will be held on Monday at 12 to county people always welcome any town man who has not yet attended should start once he may prove of great help to the Board and find them beneficial to himself and his business

Wood, president of Sears Roebuck, Chicago, who was in Alberta last year.

JUNIOR CHAMPS. PLAY BALL AT MANNVILLE

The Edmonton Junior Safeways played two ball games at Mannville Sunday and demonstrated just how the game should be played The feature of the display was the magnificent fielding of the Safeways team. The boys in the outer gardens were like lightning and no ball was safe out there. Altho the Mannville lads belted quite a few far and wide, none of them went for a hit. The visitors won both scores 7—3 against the Juniors and 5—0 against the seniors.

The Object Of An Election

By the time this article appears in print the very interesting Provincial election campaign which has been in progress in Alberta will be concluded and the election of that province will have rendered their judgment as between the several parties and their respective policies. This Alberta campaign has been unusually interesting, not only on account of the number and variety of political groups which have placed candidates in the field, but because a plan or system of finance and economics entirely new to Canada, namely Social Credit, has been urged for adoption and a trial. As a result the attention of all Canada, and even in other countries, was focused on Alberta.

By this time, too, Canadians will be in the throes of a Dominion general election which also presents a situation that is new in the political history of Canada. The present contest will not be confined to the two traditional parties, Liberal and Conservative, because since the election of five years ago another two political parties have come into being and are contending for the favor of the voters in support of policies and programmes which they believe are necessary to solve the problems which have arisen in this rapidly changing world.

So in scores of constituencies, instead of making a clear-cut decision as between two aspiring candidates for Parliamentary honors, and between two distinct lines of policy as represented by Conservatism and Liberalism, the voters will have to make up their minds as between three, four, and possibly even a larger number of candidates presenting differing programmes.

The situation is one that undoubtedly throws a greater responsibility upon the individual voter for at least one reason, if not for others. The object of parliamentary elections under the British system of democratic responsible government is two-fold, and it is vitally important that both be kept in mind, and due weight and consideration given to them by the voter as he or she proceeds to mark a ballot.

In the first place, the voter is making choice of a personal representative in the House of Commons, the person whom he or she considers best qualified to present his or her views and to look after the interests of that particular constituency, best qualified to represent the views and interests of the Province of which such constituency forms a part, and best qualified to deal with the larger questions of national, even world, policy in the statesmanlike handling of which the welfare of all Provinces, constituencies and individuals is involved.

But the selection of such individual representative is not all that is decided by a voter when marking a ballot. There is another, possibly an even greater issue at stake. The basic object of an election is to set up the governing body of the nation, to create a Government in which the executive members of which is entrusted the heavy responsibility of formulating policies and administering the laws and the national business of the Dominion. It is not merely a debating or consulting body that is being chosen, but the Government of the country.

The biggest business enterprise in Canada is Canada itself. If that business is mismanaged, if it is conducted along wrong lines of policy, then each and every other business in Canada, and every individual in Canada, stands to suffer loss. Stated another way, individual voters are the shareholders in the largest and most important of all business enterprises—Canada itself. In a general election they are not acting as shareholders to choose a board of directors—the House of Commons. From the 245 members there chosen, an executive or board of management is selected, namely, the cabinet of ministers chosen by the president of the whole corporation, the Prime Minister and responsible to him and to the House of Commons.

If in the exercise of their individual rights the voters choose various groups of members having opposing views as to how the business of the country should be conducted, and the nature of the policies that should be followed, and as a result no one group commands a majority over all other groups, and no responsibility or group is in a position to undertake the responsibility of attempting to govern the country, then government becomes practically impossible, a deadlock ensues, the business of the country is neglected or bedevilled because no definite course can be decided upon and a straight course steered. The proper conduct of government and national business is impossible and the whole country and every interest suffers.

Consequently, it is necessary for the individual voter in exercising the best judgment possible in making selection of a personal representative in the House of Commons to give consideration not alone to the qualifications of such possible representative, but also to the personnel, leadership and policies of the group to which he belongs and supports. He must decide, too, whether such group has within itself the necessary numbers, power and ability to establish a strong Government and give to Canada that sound and efficient administration which the welfare of all citizens demands shall be given.

Admittedly, Canada is a hard country to govern. With a comparatively small population, scattered thinly across half a continent, constituted of people of many racial origins, different languages, and various beliefs, several Provinces naturally most of the time at variance and jealous one of the most populous Provinces highly industrialized, the problem of popular democratic government is no easy one to solve. Yet it must be solved if all are not to suffer.

Such is the situation and some of the more vital considerations which the voters of Canada must seriously weigh during the next few weeks, and finally must register their judgment upon at the ballot boxe

Shark Catching In Bonny Water According To Captain

Up from the Philippines to New York came Capt. Jean M. Ehrlich with a message for businessmen in search of a new table delicacy and for ambitious young men seeking a job with a future.

"Shar-, meat," said the captain, "is a dish from heaven." The shark catching business," he added, "is a fast growing enterprise and one young man might well consider for their life's work."

The captain, who has sharked all around the globe, apparently never heard of steaks from Texas rattlesnakes, but he would have you understand shark meat has become a very popular dish. Why they're serving filet de sole from sharks to the most discriminating diners, although sometimes under another name.

In spite of the increasing popularity, the business itself has grown by leaps and bounds, he said, and even along with the red-ink manufacturers and the poe wee golf courses.

Like trouters, there appeared to be a trend to the smaller. Although a million are taken every year, there are just as many to-day; in fact 200 yearlings.

Capt. Ehrlich is here to learn the different varieties from aquarium specials and survey market possibilities.

In the Phil pocus he is at learned that thoroughfares the natives by throwing away all of the shark, except the fins, which they used for soup.

To-day the skins are used for leather, while the meat in addition to being a palatable food for humans is being used for feed stock food and fertilizer

Several odd tonnal products are obtained from the livers, and to distant parts of the world the teeth are used for money. In the far interior of Asia, says Capt. Ehrlich, a well polished shark tooth will win a bride where $10,000 would fail.

Man Signs Up For Test In Freezing Experiment

Stephen Simkhovitch, 24, a struggling fellow, writer and scenarist, signed a contract at Hollywood, Cal., which will make up the sum total of his life's ambitions, and possibly revived in the interests of medical science.

Dr. Ralph R. Willard, young Russian-born chemist, who said he has been freezing and reviving guinea pigs, rabbits and monkeys over a six-year period and claims that tuberculosis, at least, can be overcome through the process, has agreed to conduct the human experiment.

Simkhovitch (a) he was prompted by "a longing for a change," and (b) determine "if there is life after death."

He said he was born in Kiev, Ukrainia, professor of economic history at Columbia University, and Mrs Mary E. Simkhovitch, head of Greenwich House in New York, widely known student of sociology.

The Smallest Adult in World

Girl Nineteen Is Only Twenty-One Inches Tall

Margaret Ann Robinson gave a birthday party the other day. At nineteen she stands only twenty-one inches, or one foot, nine, in her slippers, and weighs only eighteen pounds. At the office of George Hamid Enterprises, 1560 Broadway, New York, where pictures were taken, it was declared that she was the smallest adult in the world.

Her mother makes her clothes. She quit growing when five months old, and she never has weighed more than twenty-two pounds.

She was born in Denver, had baby parts in movies, plays soliloies, has been in the show business two years, plays a violin eleven and one-half inches over all, lives in tiny house, dances, and walked a mile yesterday. She likes almost all food except milk and eggs, and recently signed a contract for exhibition at Shrine circuses.

Her father insisted that she is nine and one-half inches shorter than the renowned Tom Thumb, whose smallness helped to make him famous as a circus magnate, and that to step into the carriage which Queen Victoria gave Tom Thumb she had to climb on a two-inch block. "The carriage is now a museum piece at the University of New Hampshire.

Must Learn Over Again

Operation On Throat Forces Famous Singer To Begin Studies

Amelita Galli-Curci, internationally famous opera diva, must learn to sing her songs over again.

For 15 years—throughout the zenith of her brilliant opera career—the diva gave the world every music note and phrase gushed bubbled by gotten. By sheer will power she forced her beautiful notes on a devious detour through her windpipe.

Now, the tumor—"potato," she called it—is gone. Her throat has been relieved of its old problem, and filled with a new.

The successful operation that removed the 6½ ounce tumor abolished the amount of air her trachea can hold. She must now accustom herself to control the breath supply, and to use and produce the same clear tones.

The "re-learning" lessons begin in the near future, when the singer was resting comfortably.

Single notes and simple scales will adjust the disturbed vocal muscles before more difficult exercises begin. That will be after all danger of tostons has been passed.

Use Camouflage Methods

Speeding Motorists In London Trapped By Disguised Police

Disguised police in London have been using camouflage methods to trap speeding motorists. To-day one cannot tell, driving along London's streets, whether the lumber truck looking along in front is really a grocery truck. It looks like a grocery truck and even has lettering on its sides to prove it, but that's no sign the driver isn't one of Scotland Yard's finest, out enjoying the sunshine instead of directing London's new 30-mile speed limit. The "gangsters" as they are called by the police present a group when they've tried an unwary motorist, may be found in almost anything. In the 1912 model truck is the latest thing in sports models. They're disguised, too, with drivers over whose uniforms are concealed. Its tactics as an affront to Britain's sense of fair play, motorists are attacking signs on the backs of their trucks reading, "This is not a police car."

Canada Will Be Represented

No organization of a similar nature brings together more countries than the World's Poultry Science Association does at the World Poultry Congresses which are the triennial meetings of the association. Canada takes an important part in the spreading of scientific and practical poultry knowledge and will be represented at the next congress which will be held in Berlin, Germany, in 1936.

Pro Thinking

Dr. Inge, late Dean of St. Paul's, did well to remind his critics in his university sermon at St. Mary's Oxford, that originality means thinking for yourself and not merely thinking differently from other people. Free thinking is fine so long as there is sufficient emphasis on the latter word and not too much on the former.

INCREASE IN PRICE OF WHEAT IS PREDICTION

Montreal—An increase in world wheat prices due to poor grain conditions in the Argentine was predicted here by Hon. R. L. Butler, premier of South Australia, on his arrival in Montreal on the first stopover of Britain boat train from Quebec.

On his way back to Australia from London, where he attended meetings of the Empire Parliamentary Association, Premier Butler expressed interest in Canada's wheat crop, stating this country would probably get rid of its surplus wheat as it would undoubtedly be needed in the world.

"I can see," he said, "a general rise in prices throughout the world owing to the Argentine situation. Conditions there have been very bad."

Discussing South Australian wheat, the prime minister said his country in now sending very little wheat to Japan and the market there was expected to increase shortly.

Premier Butler was mildly criticized the Ottawa empire agreements. "They are written agreements," he declared, "and pacts put down in black and white cannot be set satisfactorily in these days of everchanging economic conditions."

He said he preferred "gentlemen's agreements," adding England had no written constitution and "she can change things as conditions warrant."

Italy's Demand

Settlement Of Dispute Is Occupation Of Ethiopia By Italian Army

Paris.—Baron Pompeo Aloisi, head of the Italian delegation to the Italo-Ethiopian conference, told the British representative, Anthony Eden, that Italy's minimum demand for peaceful settlement of her dispute with Ethiopia was occupation of Ethiopia by the Italian army.

Aloisi said Premier Mussolini would require this condition in order to provide for the enforcement of economic privileges.

Italy, he said, would not be able to accept the British plan for economic concess on in Ethiopia unless Italy could make Ethiopia respect them. This, he said, would mean Italy must keep armed forces in the east African colonies.

Aloisi was induced to call on Eden, it was learned, by Premier Laval after the latter had refused to visit the British diplomat separately on the eve of the scheduled conference between the British, the French, Italian and British governments.

After the meeting between the two, it was said in informed quarters their positions were as "irreconcilable" as before the meeting.

For People To Decide

Says Government Should Not Precipitate Canada In War

Saskatoon.—"Dominion governments should precipitate Canada into a foreign war "unless it was clear that the people of the Dominion understood the situation and approved the action," Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction party leader, said here.

At his meeting Mr Stevens was asked his view of Canada's participation in a foreign war. "I'll be no mealtics as an affront to Britain's sense of fair play, motorists are attacking signs on the backs of their trucks reading, "This is not a police car."

Water Development

Provision Of Drouth Areas Most Urgent Reference In Plea

Ottawa.—Farmers and ranchers throughout the drouth area of the prairie provinces are showing keen interest in the water development committee which has been organized as part of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act," according to Hon. Roberet. Weir, minister of agriculture, here. The solicitor has returned from a trip to Western Canada.

"The problem of supplying a more adequate and dependable water supply to farmers is a vital one on many farms and ranches," said Mr. Weir. "The demand for the assistance is evident by the fact that since the general program was first announced only a few months ago over 4,600 individuals have made application, either directly or through their municipalities or organizations. Applications are at present pouring into the office of the water development committee at Swift Current at an average rate of over 67 a day.

"Of the total applications received to date over 200 are from Manitoba, over 2,800 from Saskatchewan, and somewhere around 1,400 from Alberta.

"Field work was started 1935 more than three weeks ago with four full engineering units in the field. Since then the field staff has been enlarged to 21 engineers, including field engineers and their assistants."

Islands Under Martial Law

Blockade In Force On Italian Possessions In Aegean Sea

London.—A Reuter's News Agency despatch from Athens says the Italian-occupied Dodecanese Islands in the Aegean sea have been placed under martial law with a severe blockade in force. The island of Leros has been converted into a fortress.

Visitors are not allowed to disembark at Leros, the only exception to the Rhodes where all are subjected to a close scrutiny. Private houses on the islands have been requisitioned to make room for the sick and wounded. All motor vessels also have been requisitioned.

The small islands of the Dodecanese are in the Aegean sea off the coast of Asia Minor. The islands are Rhodes, Kalymnos, Leros, Patmos, Lisyros, Telos, Syme, Khalke, Astypalaia, Karpathos, Kasos, Patmos and Kos.

Formerly the possession of Turkey, the islands were occupied by Italy during its war with Turkey in 1939. It evacuated them by terms of the first treaty of Lausanne in 1912. The secret treaty of London of 1915, which secured Italy's entrance into the World War gave Italy sovereignty over the islands.

Sovereignty was repeatedly disputed until, in 1920, the treaty of Sevres gave Italy full control.

Durban, South Africa.—General Jan Smuts declared that big developments in the exploitation of South Africa's mineral resources may be expected in the near future and the government, in which he is Premier Hertzog's chief lieutenant, is at present considering how best this can be effected.

West Uses Siamese Rice

Sales In Western Canada Increased As Result Of World's Grain Show

Montreal.—In Montreal on a business trip which will take him to England and Europe and possibly to Siam, Capt. A. J. M. Wilson-Armstrong, consul-general for Siam in Canada with headquarters in Vancouver, said trade between Canada and Siam is showing an encouraging increase.

More Siamese rice is used in western Canada than from all other countries combined, he said. This trade has been largely created within the past two years and is mainly the result of Siam's success at the World Grain Conference and Show held in Regina in 1933. At the exhibition Siamese rice swept the boards against entries of all other countries, taking three first prizes and 11 of a total of 20 prizes in the rice classes.

PERSONNEL OF WHEAT BOARD IS ANNOUNCED

Ottawa.—Premier R. B. Bennett has announced the personnel of the new wheat board. The three members will be John J. McFarland, chairman; D. A. Smith, vice-chairman, and H. C. Grant. All come from Winnipeg.

Personnel of the advisory committee which will act with the Canadian wheat board, was announced as follows:

Short, Montreal, secretary of the Millers' Association and representing the milling interests; Paul Bredt, Waterloo, Lew Hutchinson, Dunham, Alberta; Louis C. Brouillette, Winnipeg, and Brooks Catton, Hanley, Sask., farmers and representing the producers.

Mr. McFarland, 62 years old, was born in Halton county, Ont., and has been identified with the grain trade in Western Canada ever since coming to Saskatoon, Sask., in 1907. He started as a bookkeeper for a grain company in Edmonton.

Mr. McFarland later became directorial head of the Alberta Pacific Grain Company. A supporter of the wheat pool, he offered to sell his property to the Alberta wheat pool when it was organized in 1923, but his price was not met.

After a few years in retirement Mr. McFarland accepted the post of general manager of the central selling agency of the wheat pools in November, 1930, but resigned effective June 30 last.

Islands Under Martial Law

Blockade In Force On Italian Possessions In Aegean Sea

London.—A Reuter's News Agency despatch from Athens says the Italian-occupied Dodecanese Islands in the Aegean sea have been placed under martial law with a severe blockade in force. The island of Leros has been converted into a fortress.

Visitors are not allowed to disembark at Leros, the only exception to the Rhodes where all are subjected to a close scrutiny. Private houses on the islands have been requisitioned to make room for the sick and wounded. All motor vessels also have been requisitioned.

The small islands of the Dodecanese are in the Aegean sea off the coast of Asia Minor. The islands are Rhodes, Kalymnos, Leros, Patmos, Lisyros, Telos, Syme, Khalke, Astypalaia, Karpathos, Kasos, Patmos and Kos.

Formerly the possession of Turkey, the islands were occupied by Italy during its war with Turkey in 1939. It evacuated them by terms of the first treaty of Lausanne in 1912. The secret treaty of London of 1915, which secured Italy's entrance into the World War gave Italy sovereignty over the islands.

Sovereignty was repeatedly disputed until, in 1920, the treaty of Sevres gave Italy full control.

May Restrict Credits

Italy's Debt To British Exporters Reaches Large Sum

London.—British exporters hinted at a move to refuse further credits to Italy because of delayed payments and increased by the expense of military preparations.

It was reported in financial circles that Italy's debt to British exporters now is £2,000,000 sterling (about $10 000.000), and the creditors may send manufacturers in the curb of further credit.

Many exporters, especially coal shippers, have already shut down on sales to Italy until past payments are made, and the s has shunted the Italian demand to Germany

A proposal that British liberalize control of colonies, advanced by the News Chron cle in an editorial, is regarded as the most daring suggestion yet made in the Empire crisis.

The Italian press "puts the question fairly," the paper says, in asking whether Britain is willing to join in a redistribut on of colonial empires.

"The dominions are independent nations and can speak for themselves," says the editorial, "but what is British going to do about the empty spaces in her colonial empire? If we are going to put a fence around them to keep them for our own exploitation, we shall be faced sooner or later with war a war in which we shall not have the right on our s.d."

B.C. Tourist Trade

Number Of Visitors To Coast Province Greater Than Last Year

Victoria.—An increased influx of tourist motorists from other Canadian provinces and from the United States has brought 2433 more tourist cars to the end of June than were registered at the same time last year, it was announced by Provincial Secretary Wells. The total number of tourist cars registered since January 1 was 19,000 as compared with 16,567 for the corresponding period last year.

Simultaneously, the latter date was marked by the announcement that the number of foreign-registered tourist cars entering the province for the month of August, the day of announcement, a purpose holiday for many of the tourists here, was 1,000 more than the total number that reached the office Mr Bennett said of the increasing a large number of visitors from the United States.

Since the statute requires that persons entering must be held on their arrival at the border, Mr Wells said, it was impossible to estimate the number of visitors who had been entering the province without being registered. He said he would ask the government that between September 15 and 20 large additional police would be busily engaged in harvest operations.

Further ministerial changes awaiting announcement, the premier said, if matters of time and finance it was understood that J. C. H. Dunwoodie, prominent Montreal attorney, would become minister of marine.

Hon Maurice Dupre solicitor-general is expected to become postmaster-general, and his successor will probably be a Montreal lawyer who's name has not been divulged. The portfolio of finance may not be filled before the election. Hon. E. M. Fabdeu who has been minister of finance since 1932 and who was recently appointed to the senate will remain in office for some time to complete important refunding operations he has in hand Mr Bennett said.

Would Stabilize Rouble

Soviet Trying To Give It Fixed Purchasing Value

Moscow.—The Soviet government has set its shoulders to the task of giving its frank rouble a fixed purchasing value. To accomplish this it must make alterations that pierce to the roots of its economic structure, a process which cannot be completed in weeks, or even months.

First of all there must be a workable balance between wages and prices on the general market, at present far out of proportion. The government is attacking the problem on one hand and lowering prices on the other.

The average factory worker has a salary of 150 roubles a month. The proportion, if he were obliged to buy in the open market, would be the same as if a man making $150 a month in North America had to pay $12 a pound for butter and $3 a loaf for bread.

The Earl of Bessborough governor-general of Canada, made a special trip to the capital from Quebec where he is in summer residence, signed the dissolution order and numerous other orders-in-council, and left again for Quebec

William Ernst, Lunenburg, N.S., was appointed minister of fisheries, a post which has been vacant for some time

Samuel Gobeil, Compton, Quebec, was made a minister without portfolio.

With the appointments announced, party standing in the House of Commons is not disturbed, with vacancies, was as follows: Conservatives, 113. Liberal, 88; Liberal-Progressives, 3; three Progressives; Two United Farmers of Alberta, nine; Labor, one. Independents, two and vacancies 25

It was necessary for the government to pass an order-in-council recommending that passed some months ago fixing October 14 as Thanksgiving day and changing the nation-al holiday for Orangemen's Day, which had been planned to hold the election in September 26 Mr Bennett said he had not "changed my mind" about the necessity for the election, but he believed the wheat producers will thus not be force, to make immediate sales of their entire stocks.

FAMOUS RADIO REGULATION 90 NOW AMENDED

Ottawa. — The Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission's famous regulation 90 appeared in new form, redrafted to the satisfaction of Liberals and Conservatives and bearing the endorsation of the government. It has been a contentious issue between the two parties for a year or more.

As drafted originally by the commission, the regulation aroused a storm of protest by Liberal members. Its purpose was to prevent abus ve, defamatory statements being broadcast, but it was worded so it was possible to interpret it as preventing anyone criticizing existing legislation

The protests reached a peak in the house last June when Hon Ernest Lapointe, former minister of justice, proposed redrafting of the regulation

Former Minister of Marine Alfred Duranleau promised to redraft the regulation and in a few days submitted it to the house in its new form It was approved and is now sanctioned by the government

The new regulation reads

"No broadcasting station may broadcast any speech printed matter or program containing defamatory libellous or obscene statements with respect to personal matters or statements of a type unable character or attended to promote change by unlawful means and which might lead to a breach of the peace or any advertising matter containing false or deceptive statements"

Advance For French Farmers

Will Permit Holding Of Grain For Better Prices

Paris—A measure to ease the financial situation of French wheat farmers and permit them to hold their wheat stocks for advantageous prices has been announced by the ministry of agriculture

It was stated the Bank of France henceforth will extend credits to the agricultural credit institutions which will provide advances to farmers of 50 francs per quintal (about 2.7 bushels) at the time of harvest. The government believes the wheat producers will thus not be force, to make immediate sales of their entire stocks.

The Object Of An Election

By the time this article appears in print the very interesting Provincial election campaign which has been in progress in Alberta will be concluded and the electors of that province will have rendered their judgment as between the several parties and their respective policies. This Alberta campaign has been unusually interesting, not only on account of the number and variety of political groups which have placed candidates in the field but because a plan or system of finance and economics entirely new to Canada, namely Social Credit, has been urged for adoption and a trial. As a result the attention of all Canada, and even in other countries, was focused on Alberta.

By this time, too, Canadians will be in the throes of a Dominion general election which also presents a situation that is new in the political history of Canada. The present contest will not be confined to the two traditional parties, Liberal and Conservative, because since the election of five years ago another two political parties have come into being and are contending for the favor of the voters in support of policies and programmes which they believe are necessary to solve the problems which have arisen in this rapidly changing world.

So, in scores of constituencies, instead of making a clear-cut decision as between two aspiring candidates for Parliamentary honors and between two distinct lines of policy as represented by Conservatism and Liberalism, the voters will have to make up their minds as between three, four, and possibly even a larger number of candidates presenting differing programmes.

The situation is one that undoubtedly throws a greater responsibility upon the individual voter for at least one reason, if not for others. The object of Parliamentary elections under the British system of democratic responsible government is two-fold, and it is vitally important that both be kept in mind, and due weight and consideration given to them by the voter as he or she proceeds to mark a ballot

In the first place, the voter is making choice of a personal representative in the House of Commons to whom he or she considers best qualified to present his or her views, best qualified to represent that particular constituency best qualified to represent the views and interests of the Province of which such constituency forms a part, and best qualified to deal with those larger questions of national, even world, policy in the statesmanlike handling of which the welfare of all Provinces, constituencies and individuals is involved.

But the selection of such individual representative is not all that is decided by a voter when marking a ballot. There is another, possibly an even greater issue at stake. The basic object of an election is to set up the governing body of the nation, to create a Government to the executive members of which is entrusted the heavy responsibility of formulating policies and administering the laws and the national business of the Dominion. It is not merely a debating or consulting body that is being chosen, but the Government of the country.

The biggest business enterprise in Canada is Canada itself If that business is mismanaged, if it is conducted along wrong lines of policy, then each and every other business in Canada, and every individual in Canada, stands to suffer loss. Stated another way, individual voters are the shareholders in the largest and most important of all business enterprises—Canada itself. In a general election they are meeting as shareholders to choose a board of directors—the House of Commons. From the 245 members thus chosen, an executive or board of management is selected, namely, the cabinet of ministers chosen by the president of the whole corporation, the Prime Minister and responsible to him and to the House of Commons.

If in the due exercise of their democratic rights the voters choose various groups of members having opposing views as to how the business of the country should be conducted, and the nature of the policies that should be followed, and as a result no one group commands a majority over all other groups, and consequently no group is in a position to undertake the responsibility of attempting to govern the country, then government becomes practically impossible, a deadlock ensues, the business of the country is neglected or advertised because no definite course of action can be decided upon and a straight course steered. The proper conduct of government and national business is impossible and the whole country and every interest suffers.

Consequently, it is necessary for the individual voter in exercising the best judgment possible in making selection of a personal representative in the House of Commons to give due consideration also to the qualifications of such possible representative, but also to the personnel, leadership and policies of the group to which he belongs and supports. He must decide, too, whether such group has what itself the necessary numbers, power and ability to establish a strong Government and give to Canada that sound and efficient administration which the welfare of all citizens demands shall be given.

Admittedly, Canada is a hard country to govern. With a comparatively small population, scattered thinly across half a continent, constituted of people of many racial origins, many religious beliefs, and various habits, several Provinces mainly rural in occupation, but the two central and by far the most populous Provinces highly industrialized, the problem of popular democratic government is no easy one to solve. Yet it must be solved if all are not to suffer

Such is the situation and some of the more vital considerations which the voters of Canada must seriously weigh during the next few weeks, and finally must register their judgment upon at the ballot boxes

A Fast Growing Business

Stork Catching In Money Maker According To Captain

Up from the Philippines to New York came Capt. Jean M. Ehrich with a message for housewives in search of a new table delicacy and for ambitious young men seeking a job with a future.

"Shar'; meat," said the captain, "is a dish from heaven." The shark catching business," he added, "is a fast growing enterprise and one young man might well consider for their life's work."

The captain, who has sharked all around the globe, apparently never heard of sharks from Texas saltwater snakes, but he would have you understand shark meat has become a very popular dish. Why they're serving filet de sole from sharks to the most discriminating diners, although sometimes under another name.

By virtue of the increasing popularity, the business itself has grown by leaps and bounds, he said, and shark catching is now the job of his own along with the rod-ink manufacturers and the pea wee golf courses. Also, he added, there is no danger of no end to the sharks. Although a million are taken every year, there are just as many to-day; in fact 200 varieties

Capt. Ehrlich is here to learn the different varieties from aquarium fish and survey marine possibilities.

In the Phil pines he lived inarmed and thought nothing of it. He natived by throwing away all of the shark, except the fins, which they used for soup.

To-day the skins are used for leather, while the meat in addition to being a palatable food for human consumption may be used for stock feed and fertilizer.

Several additional products are obtained from the glands, and in distant parts of the world the teeth are used for money. In the far interior of Asia and Africa a string of highly polished shark tooth will win a bride where $10,000 would fail.

Tiny Miniature Of Presidey Hepburn Is Exhibited

Said to be one of the world's smallest miniatures, a portrait in oils of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, painted on a tiny mica surface, can be exhibited at the Canadian National Exhibition by Joseph Hilpert, Hungarian-born Toronto artist.

The tiny portrait took three and a half years to complete, and may be painted with single hairs in place of a brush. The greatest dimension of the picture is one inch and a half, and the head itself, with its wealth of details, measures only one-eighth of an inch.

The naked eye alone was used in this remarkable piece of work.

A Matter Of Choice

Should we say Abyssinia or Ethiopia?

The American National Geographic Society says it should be the latter because it has the official sanction of the Ethiopian government and the indigenous object to the word Abyssinia because it is derived from an Arab word meaning "a mixed race." Smallest Adult In World

Margaret Ann Robinson gave a birthday party the other day. At nineteen she stands only twenty-one inches, or one foot, nine, in her slippers, and weighs only eighteen pounds. At the office of George Hamid Enterprises, 1560 Broadway, New York, where pictures were taken, it was declared that she was the smallest adult in the world.

Her mother makes her clothes. She quit growing when five months old, and she never has weighed more than twenty-two pounds.

Miss Robinson learned that she is nine and one-half inches shorter than the renowned Tom Thumb, whose smallness led to make Barnum bigger as a circus magnate, and that to step into the carriage which Queen Victoria gave Tom Thumb she needs to climb on a ten-inch box. This carriage is now a museum piece at the University of New Hampshire.

Must Learn Over Again

Operation On Throat Forces Famous Singer To Become Student

Amelita Galli-Curci, internationally famous prima donna, must learn to sing all over again.

For 15 years through the zenith of her brilliant opera career—the years that took her from the music room from a thrush half blocked by gotire. By sheer will power she forced her beautiful notes on a devious detour through her windpipe.

Now, the tumor—"potato," she called it is gone. Her throat has been cleared of its old problems, and filled with a new.

The successful operation that removed the 6½ ounce growth has doubled the amount of air her trachea can hold. She must now accustom herself to using the increased volume so she can produce the same clear tones.

The "re-learning" lessons begin in Hollywood, Cal., where the singer was resting comfortably.

Single notes and simple scales will adapt her throat over and over again before more difficult exercises begin. That will be after all danger of lesions has been passed.

Use Camouflage Methods

Speeding Motorists In London Trapped By Disguised Police

Disguised police in London have been using camouflage methods to trap speeding motorists. To-day one cannot tell, driving along London's streets, whether a dingy grocery truck loading along in front is really a grocery truck. It looks like a grocery truck and even has letters on the sides to prove it, but that's no sign the driver isn't one of Scotland Yard's finest, out enjoying the fine summer weather and exceeding London's new 30-mile speed limit. The "groceries" or they are called there "provisions" is going when they're used as unwary motorists may be found in almost anything. In 1918 Australia used a motor bus to set thing in sports models. They're disguised, too, with dunners over their uniforms. Considerable ingenuity is shown in the tactics as an affront to Britain's sense of fair play, motorists are attaching signs on the back of their vehicles reading: "This is not a police car."

No Train Running On Line Into Vatican City

Pope Pius now has a railroad, a station, a tunnel, a bridge, a siding, switches, signals and a dispatcher's room, but no train and no apparent prospect of operating the line for many a month or year.

Built at a total cost of $2,385,000 and paid for by the Italian Government under the provisions of the Lateran treaty of 1929, the railroad was completed a year ago. Since then the 2,615-foot road has remained idle.

There is a gorgeous station that would do honor to a modern city of 50,000 souls, but it is empty. There are tracks that have not felt the hum of wheels since a locomotive made a trial trip into Vatican city last year. The tunnel, dug into Vatican hill and built to facilitate switching without taking up too much valuable space, has the gaping mouth wide open, but never swallows any thing.

The railroad, in proportion to its length, is the most costly in the world. Including the station, tunnel and bridge, the cost was $913 a foot. A railroad linking New York to San Francisco at the same price would run to about $16,000,000,000, not including the rolling stock.

Yet the Pope is not giving any indication of ever using it. He has not yet placed the order for the construction of the papal train. Many plans and designs for such a train, including a special chapel coach, have been drawn, but nothing has been done toward putting them into execution.

The Italian Government naturally would be glad to lend the Pope a train for special trips if he wished. The King undoubtedly would offer the royal train.

Has Unusual Powers

Dance Open For Girl Of Their Own

"I'll open your eyes you, Marie," said the mistress of a villa at Passi, Prague, to her servant girl who was carrying a heavily laden tray.

But just as the servant got to the door it opened of its own accord.

The girl's employer thought she must be dreaming. Other members of the family, however, noticed that doors always opened for Marie when she approached them.

The cook confessed that she always sent Marie into the cellar for potatoes, because they rolled toward her of their own accord.

The girl herself has no feeling of any unusual powers. A psychical research society is now investigating the phenomena.

INCREASE IN PRICE OF WHEAT IS PREDICTION

Montreal.—An increase in world wheat prices due to poor grain conditions in the Argentine was predicted here by Hon. R. L. Butler, premier of South Australia, on his arrival in Montreal on the Empress of British boat train from Quebec.

On his way back to Australia from London, where he attended meetings of the Empire Parliamentary Association, Premier Butler expressed interest in Canada's wheat crop, stating this country would probably get a bit more grain business over as it would undoubtedly be needed in the world.

"I can see," he said, "a general rise in price throughout the world owing to the Argentine situation. Conditions there have been very bad."

Discussing South Australian wheat, the prime minister said his country is now raising one-third of her crop to Japan and the market there was expected to increase shortly.

Premier Butler mildly criticized the Ottawa empire agreements. "They are written agreements," he declared, "and pacts put down in black and white don't work out satisfactorily in these days of everchanging economic conditions."

He said he preferred "gentlemen's agreements," adding England had no written constitution and "she can change things as conditions warrant."

Italy's Demand

Settlement Of Dispute Is Occupation Of Ethiopia By Italian Army

Paris.—Baron Pompeo Aloisi, head of the Italian delegation to the Italy-Abyssinia conference before the British representative, Anthony Eden, that Italy's minimum demand for peaceful settlement of her dispute with Ethiopia was occupation of Ethiopia by the Italian army.

Aloisi said Premier Mussolini would require this condition in order to provide for the enforcement of economic privileges.

Italy, he said, would not be able to accept the British plan for economic concessions in Ethiopia unless Italy controlled Ethiopia to protect them This, he said, would mean Italy must keep armed forces in the east African country.

Aloisi was induced to call on Eden, it was learned, by Premier Laval after the Italian had refused to visit the British diplomat separately on the eve of the scheduled conference between delegates of the French, Italian and British governments.

After the meeting between the two, it was said in informed quarters their positions were as "irreconcilable" as before the meeting.

Says Government Should Not Precipitate Canada In War

Saskatoon.—Canada's people should precipitate Canada into a foreign war "unless it was clear that the people of the Dominion understood the situation and approved the action." Hon. H H Stevens, Reconstruction party leader, said here.

At his meeting Mr Stevens was asked his view of Canada's participation in a foreign war. "It is my thinking that Canada should be drawn into another war," he replied. He added that it was hoped British citizens in the Dominion successful in the past would succeed in averting any such catastrophe.

Water Development

Farmers Of South Areas Show Great Interest In Plan

Ottawa.—Farmers and ranchers throughout the drouth area of the prairie provinces are showing keen interest in the water development committee which has been organized as part of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act," according to Hon. Robert Weir, minister of agriculture, here. The minister has returned from a trip to Western Canada.

"The problem of supplying a more adequate and dependable water supply to farmers is a vital one on many farms and ranches," said Mr. Weir. "The demand for the assistance is evident by the fact that close to 300 applications have been received in Canada's wheat crop, stating this country would probably get at least its grain bulk over as it would undoubtedly be needed in the world.

"I can say," he said, "a general rise in price throughout the world owing to the Argentine situation. Conditions there have been very bad."

Discussing South Australian wheat, the prime minister said his country is now raising one-third of her crop to Japan and the market there was expected to increase shortly.

Premier Butler mildly criticized the Ottawa empire agreements. "They are written agreements," he declared, "and pacts put down in black and white don't work out satisfactorily in these days of everchanging economic conditions."

He said he preferred "gentlemen's agreements," adding England had no written constitution and "she can change things as conditions warrant."

Islands Under Martial Law

Blockade In Force On Italian Possessions In Aegean Sea.

London. A Reuter's News Agency despatch from Athens says the Italian-owned Dodecanese Islands in the Aegean sea have been placed under martial law with a severe blockade in force. The island of Rhodes has been converted into a fortress

Visitors are not allowed to disembark and residents are forbidden to go to Rhodes where all are subjected to a close scrutiny. Private houses on the islands have been requisitioned for the sick and wounded soldiers. All motor vessels also have been requisitioned.

The premier Mussolini would require this condition in order to provide for the enforcement of economic privileges.

Italy, he said, would not be able to accept the British plan for economic concessions in Ethiopia unless Italy controlled Ethiopia to protect them This, he said, would mean Italy must keep armed forces in the east African country.

Aloisi was induced to call on Eden, it was learned, by Premier Laval after the Italian had refused to visit the British diplomat separately on the eve of the scheduled conference between delegates of the French, Italian and British governments.

After the meeting between the two, it was said in informed quarters their positions were as "irreconcilable" as before the meeting.

Winter Feed Policy

Federal Government Will Continue It For Another Winter

Ottawa. — To encourage winter feeding of young cattle and lambs, the Dominion will continue for another winter its winter feeder policy which was started last year, it was announced by Minister of Agriculture Robert Weir

To be effective until Dec. 31, the Dominion will provide one-way transportation and travelling expenses for Canadian farmers purchasing one or more carloads of young feeder cattle or lambs according to conditions laid down by the agricultural department.

Bank Buys Federal Notes

Ottawa.—On behalf of the minister of finance, it was announced from the Bank of Canada that tenders had been accepted for the full amount of $20,000,000 Dominion of Canada treasury bills due Nov. 15. The average discount price of the accepted bids was $99 69269, and the average yield was 1.233 per cent.

To Inspect Soils

Victoria. — Gordon Sloan, British Columbia minister of mines, is leaving on an inspection tour of soils in the interior of the province, where the back-yam are reported overflowing due to acres of transients being arrested by Royal Canadian Mounted Police for alleged rod-riding to prairie harvest fields.

Will Develop Resources

Dundee, South Africa — General Jan Smuts declared that big developments in the exploitation of South Africa's mineral resources may be expected in the near future and the government, in which he is Premier Hertzog's chief lieutenant, is at present considering how best this can be effected.

West Urges Siamese Rice

Sales In Western Canada Increased As Result Of World's Grain Show

Montreal.—In Montreal on a business trip which will take him to England and Europe and possibly to Siam, Capt. A. J. M. Watson-Armstrong, consul-general for Siam in Canada with headquarters in Vancouver, said trade between Canada and Siam is showing an encouraging increase.

More Siamese rice is used in western Canada than from all other countries combined, he said. This trade has been largely created within the past two years and is mainly the result of Siam's success at the World Grain Conference and Show held in Regina in 1933. At the exhibition Siamese rice swept the boards against entries of all other countries, taking three first prizes and 11 of a total of 20 prizes in the rice classes.

PERSONNEL OF WHEAT BOARD IS ANNOUNCED

Ottawa.—Premier R. B. Bennett has announced the personnel of the new wheat board. The three members will be John L. McFarland, chairman; D. L. Smith, vice-chairman, and H. C. Grant. All come from Winnipeg.

Personnel of the advisory committee which will act with the Canadian wheat board, was announced as follows:

Robert McKee, Vancouver, representing the grain shippers, Sydney T. Smith, Winnipeg, representing the grain trade; Charles C. Fowler, Montreal, secretary of the Millers' Association and representing the milling interests; Paul Bredt, Winnipeg; Lew Hutchinson, Duhamel, Alberta; Louis C. Brouillette, Winnipeg, and Brooks Catton, Hanley, Sask., all farmers and representing the producers.

Mr. McFarland, 62 years old, was born in Halton county, Ont., and has been identified with the grain trade in Western Canada ever since coming to Deer wood in 1887. He started as a bookkeeper for a grain company in Edmonton.

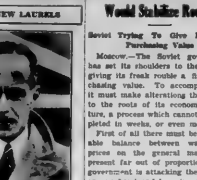
Mr. Grant later became directing head of the Alberta Pacific Grain Company. A supporter of the wheat pools, he offered to sell his company to the Alberta wheat pool when it was organized in 1923, but his price was not met.

After a few years in retirement Mr McFarland accepted the post of general manager of the central selling agencies of the wheat pools in November, 1930, but rejected all remuneration except expenses. First international wheat marketing difficulties were developing at that time.

When the Dominion government started its grain acquisition plan Mr McFarland took charge and operated through the pools' selling agencies. He continued up to 225,000,000 bushels of wheat. He remained in this post until his selection for the Dominion wheat board.

A Fall Session

Toronto — As soon as possible after the Dominion election Premier Hepburn announced



Captain T. Campbell Black, co-winner with Scott, of the England-Australia Air Derby, has hopped off from Hatfield Aerodrome, England, on an attempted record flight to Cape Town and back. If successful, he will seek other records.

Italy's Debt To British Exporters Reaches Large Sum

London.—British exporters hinted at a move to refuse further credits to Italy because of delayed payments and even caused by the expense of military preparations.

It was reported in financial circles that Italy's debt to British exporters is now £2,000,000 sterling (about $10,000,000), and the creditors may send manufacturers in the curb of further credit.

Many exporters, especially coal shippers, have already shut down on sales to Italy until payment terms are made, and this has shunted the Italian demand to Germany

A prospect that British liberalize control of colonies, advanced by the News Chron cle in an editorial, is regarded as having little daring suggestion yet made in the Ethiopian crisis.

The Italian press "puts the question fairly," the paper says, in asking whether Britain is willing to join in a redistribut on of colonial empires.

"The dominions are independent nations and can speak for themselves," says the editorial, "but what is Britain going to do about the empty spaces in her colonial empire"

If we are going to put a fence around them to keep them for our own exploitation, we shall be faced sooner or later with war a war in which we shall not have the right on our side."

Victoria.—An increased influx of tourist automobile traffic to British Columbia over the Canadian National system brought 2,533 automobile cars to the end of July the total was in excess of 150 over the total for the 12 months of 1933. The total number of persons in automobiles was 6,0 Motorists in the Province Nova Scotia during the month and Quebec 14

Soviet Trying To Give It Fixed Purchasing Value

Moscow.—The Soviet government has set its shoulders to the task of giving its frank rouble a fixed purchasing value. To accomplish this it must make alterations that pierce to the roots of its economic structure, a process which cannot be completed in weeks, or even months.

First of all there must be a workable balance between wages and prices on the general market, at present far out of proportion. The government is attacking the problem on one hand and lowering prices on the other

The average factory worker has a salary of 150 roubles a month The proportion, if he were obliged to buy in the open market, would be the same as if a man making $150 a month in North America had to pay $12 a pound for butter and $3 a loaf for bread

FEDERAL ELECTION DATE HAS BEEN SET FOR OCT. 14

Ottawa After effecting a partial reconstruction of his cabinet on Monday the evening in of four ministers, Prime Minister R. B Bennett secured dissolution of the 17th parliament after confederation by announced a general election will be held October 14. Writs will be returnable on Saturday, November 9

The Earl of Bessborough, governor-general of Canada, made a special trip to the capital from Quebec where he is in summer residence signed the dissolution order and numerous other orders-in-council, and left again for Quebec

Chosen to fill gaps in the cabinet ranks created by appointments and retirements the new ministers are

R G Geary Toronto became minister of justice, succeeding Hon. Hugh Guthrie, who was appointed chairman of the board of railway commissioners

J. E. Lawson, Toronto, became minister of national revenue, succeeding Hon R. C. Matthews, who is leaving public life.

William Ernst, Lunenburg, N.S., was appointed minister of fisheries, a post which has been vacant for some time

Samuel Gobeil, Compton, Quebec was made a minister without portfolio

With the appointments announced party standings in the House of Commons at dissolution, with vacancies was as follows: Conservatives, 113. Liberal, 88; Liberal-Progressives, three; Progressives, two; United Farmers of Alberta nine; Labor, one Independents, two and vacancies 24

It was necessary for the government to pass an order-in-council prior to dissolving that passed on August 6 ing giving day and changing the nation- al holiday for Sept. 24. Had this not been done it would have been necessary to proclaim Sept. 24 a holiday on September 30. Mr Bennett did not wish to make the change, but necessary preliminaries it was then too late to declare Sept. 24 a holiday polling until October 14.

Immediately the latter date was announced it was brought to the attention of the government that the thanksgiving was the day of harvesting a religious holiday for many of the French faith. To overcome this difficulty the date for the first Mo Monday in October was changed to a large number of electors.

Under the statute requires that general elections must be held on Monday unless such proclamation is made all with respect to earlier dates which had been contemplated by the government. It was announced by the government that between September 1 and 20 large numbers of electors would be temporarily out of their normal areas

Further minor changes would be made to shorten the period of time between writs and election It was understood that J. C. H Dupuis, government Montreal attorney would become minister of marine

Hon Maurice Dupre, solicitor-general is expected to become postmaster-general, and his successor will probably be a Montreal lawyer whose name has not been divulged. The portfolio of finance may not be filled before the election. Hon E. N Rhodes who has been minister of finance since 1932, and who was recently appointed to the senate, will remain in office for some time to complete important refunding operations he has in hand. Mr Bennett said.

FAMOUS RADIO REGULATION 90 NOW AMENDED

Ottawa. — The Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission's famous regulation 90 appeared in new form, redrafted to the satisfaction of Liberals and Conservatives and bearing the endorsation of the government. It has been a contentious issue between the two parties for a year or more

As drafted originally by the commission, the regulation aroused a storm of protest by Liberal members. Its purpose was to prevent abusive, defamatory statements being broadcast but it was worded so it was possible to interpret it as preventing anyone criticizing existing legislation

The protests reached a peak in the house last June when Hon. Ernest Lapointe former minister of justice, pro posed redrafting of the regulation

Former Minister of Marine Alfred Duclos Lemieux moved to redraft the regulation and in a few days submitted it to the house in its new form It was approved and is now sanctioned by the government

The new regulation reads "No broadcasting station may broadcast any speech printed matter or program containing defamatory, libelous or abusive statements with regard to persons or institutions, or statements of a treasonable character or intended to provide change by unlawful means any which might lead to a breach of the peace or any advertising matter containing or deceptive statements"

Advance For French Farmers

Will Permit Holding Of Grain For Better Prices

Paris A measure to ease the financial situation of French wheat farmers and permit them to hold their stocks for advantageous prices was announced by the ministry of agriculture

It was stated the Bank of France hereforth will extend credits to the agricultural credit institutions, which will provide advances to farmers of 50 francs per quintal (about 2.7 bushels) at the time of harvest. The government believes the farmers' troubles will thus not be forced to make immediate sales of their crops.

OFFERS OF SEATS REACH ABERHART

Several Rural Members Ready to Stand Aside for Leader

((Edmonton Journal)

Several rural Social Credit members from this part of the province have offered seats to William Aberhart, party leader and likely premier, who did not stand as a candidate in the general election last Thursday, when his forces secured a sweeping victory, it was learned here today.

While the names of those who have made the offers were not disclosed, it was stated that Mr. Aberhart is taking all suggestions under consideration. In all probability a decision will be made at the caucus meeting Wednesday.

Premier Reid when asked if Mr. Aberhart would be opposed in a by-election, pointed out that the seat was a matter with which the electors must had to deal, the selection of candidates being in the hands of the C. F. A. constituency organizations.

Make Your Own Job

Conditions throughout the world during the past five years have admittedly been most discouraging to all people, but especially so to youth. As boys and girls have come out of school and college ready to take their place in the business world, even at the bottom of the ladder, they have discovered there was no place for them. They have been denied even the opportunity of making a start because the financial and economic world has been out of joint with business marking time, and no development work being undertaken.

As a result thousands have become discouraged, embittered because of denied and frustrated hopes and ambitions, have become drifters because they have lost hope for the future and accepted the easy but mistaken view that present conditions must be accepted as permanent and credit one. Lacking any background of years in which work was plentiful, and having no experience in profitable employment they can see no light ahead

Such an attitude of mind is a terrible mistake. Future years will be just as bright, in fact brighter, just as busy, in fact busier, just as rich in opportunity and in enterprising development in fact more so. The world will not stand still; neither it will move backward. Since the beginning of time and the dawn of civilization the movement, despite temporary setbacks has always been both onward and upward. It will continue so.

Consider the most familiar names of people and products on the lips of practically everybody to-day. Henry Ford, Firestone, H. J. Heinz, Coca-Cola, Borden's Milk, Hires' Root Beer, Welch's Grape Juice, Maxwell House Coffee, Jell-O and similar names. Do these names mean anything to the youth of to-day? They should.

It was in 1890 that Henry Ford began working on a double-cylinder engine in a little shop on his farm. When he went to work in Detroit at $45 a month he took his drive shaft with him. In 1893 his gasoline buggy was running and for a long time was the only automobile in Detroit. Forty years later he was rated a billionaire.

Firestone was a buggy salesman who became convinced there was a great future in the rubber business. He bought strips of rubber, cut out crude solid tires and fitted them to buggy wheels. Thus began the great tire industry of to-day.

H. J. Heinz used to grow horse-radish in his garden and peddle it from door to door. This backyard venture put him on the road to becoming Heinz 57.

In 1886 a doctor in Atlanta stood working over a kettle in an old house On the next corner was a drugstore, and periodically the doctor rushed over squirted carbonated water into a glass containing a sample of syrup, and tasted the mixture. After about 300 attempts he had the first Coca-Cola.

While holidaying in New Jersey Charles F. Hires was served a drink by a farmer's wife. Its ingredients were sassafras, tomberries, and sweet fern, all gathered locally. Hires smacked his lips. Returning home he experimented with herbs roots and barks. Thus was Hires' Root Beer born.

John Wanamaker the great merchant prince of the United States, delivered his first bull of goods from a wheelbarrow. Adam Gimbel, founder of the stores which bear his name started with a pack on his back. Timothy Eaton started in a little corner lot store. The story of Woolworth's five-and-ten cent stores is too well known to call for repetition. The great Crane Company manufacturers of piping, valves, bath-room fixtures, etc., had its inception in a little brass foundry.

These great enterprises of to-day had very humble beginnings, many of them within the life of the present generation. Opportunities are just as great to-day. "What's going to alter our lives probably happening this minute in a backyard workshop where some crank is thinking by himself," Henry Ford declared recently. Another man states it this way: "Many of the million-dollar corporations of to-day started in the smallest way. Little capital but an idea. They are beginning in attics, cellars, kitchens, and in the minds of clerks behind store counters."

Recently the head of a large corporation in the United States selling many different products told about four new products, all launched since January, 1930, and now selling widely. David was not afraid of Goliath, and observant youth with an idea or capable of manufacturing one, with vision, enterprise and daring can just be successful with and against the Goliaths of big corporations.

To quote Henry Ford again, who recently said that unemployed people "should create their own business, no matter how small, instead of waiting for some one to give them a job." And as a writer in Forbes' Magazine, from which much of the above is taken, says "Ten years from now we will be reading more success stories gathered from the kitchens and cellars of 1935." No one who has a work-bench or a stove and a dollar—and an idea—he says, need be discouraged.

One of the strangest and most touching services ever held under the mighty dome of St. Paul's cathedral on a recent Sunday saw 700 deaf and dumb persons from 14 nations pray and sing without a sound being heard They were all mission attending the fourth international games for the deaf and mute held in London. The service was conducted in the international sign language Chaplains and ministers mounted the lofty pulpit and voicelessly acted out the prayers, hymns and songs with eloquent looks and gestures.

Then the congregation joined in prayers and hymns.

Shipment Of Eggs From England Made An Experiment

A few dozen English eggs are making history. Thirty of them arrived in Sydney, Australia, after an air journey from London to Brisbane, and a railway journey of 900 miles from Brisbane to Sydney. The rest reached Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil after travelling more than 6,000 miles from London by airplane and Graf Zeppelin. How Lord Oresham, the promoter of the experiment, is anxiously awaiting special letters from Australia and Brazil reporting on their condition on arrival. If the eggs are successfully hatched out, one of the greatest problems of poultry farmers throughout the world will be solved. Under present conditions it is impossible for poultry farmers in distant parts to renew their stocks by introducing young chicks from England.

For So-Called Luxuries

Bureau Of Statistics Has Issued Some Interesting Figures

What are luxuries? The Dominion Bureau of Statistics started in sumptile figures on the luxuries produced and consumed in Canada in a year, and was confronted with the difficulty that one man's luxury is another man's ordinary, every-day comfort. This is true of food, furniture, clothes and so on. Even tobacco is claimed by some to be a necessity. So the bureau finally decided to list everything as a luxury which is actually above the line of necessities. It included, therefore, such things as carpets, silverware, jams and cooked meats, and so, naturally, it did not present its conclusions as a hard-and-fast statement of luxury consumption in Canada, but rather "an attempt to throw some light on the production and consumption in Canada of goods which are more or less in the nature of luxuries." It found that the factory value of these in 1933 was $363,606,185, or 12.8 per cent. of the total value of production in Canadian manufacturing industries. The retail values would, of course, be much higher.

The bureau also obtained Canadian customs figures and compared them with exports from the figures for imports and production. It found that to 1932 the so-called luxuries were consumed to a factory value of $388,342,910.

Some of the individual items are rather interesting. Canada eats candy to the extent of nearly $17,000,000 per year; ice cream to the extent of $2,000,000; and $20,000,000 other confectionery, including chewing gum, over $6,000,000. Pies, cakes and pastry account for more than $10,500,000; beverages (not including tea, coffee, cocoa, etc.), nearly $50,000,000; jewellery (which the bulletin says is not often considered a luxury nowadays), nearly $8,000,000, toilet preparations, over $5,000,000; sporting goods, over $3,000,000; and so on.

The surprising item in the list is that for tobacco, as follows:

	1931	1933
Cigars	$ 6,016,136	$ 6,788,393
Cigarettes	36,132,977	34,912,141
Other	32,643,302	21,356,671
	$74,991,347	$71,274,913

These again are factory values. For passenger automobiles, bicycles and boats, the people of the Dominion paid the manufacturers less than half what they did for tobacco in both these years: $25,354,984 in 1932, and $34,513,970 in 1933.—Toronto Daily Star.

Severity For Prisoners Demanded By German Minister Of Justice

"Severity" for prisoners as a "first tonet was demanded by Franz Gurtner, minister of justice, at the opening of the 11th quinquennial penal penitentiary Congress in Berlin.

"If criminal law is to represent atonement for wrong done the community," he told the 600 delegates from 50 nations, "and hence defend and protect the national community from evil-doers, the logical result is severity in the treatment of prisoners so the punishment may be appreciable to the evil."

Gurtner also announced that the Nazi reich has definitely rejected the ancient legal principle: "Nulla poena sine lege" (no punishment unless a law is infringed). Instead, he said, it has substituted the maxim "Nulla crimen sine poena," under which, punishment is meted out regardless of the incomposition of a law.

Celebrating Anniversary

Violin Industry Started In German Town 250 Years Ago

Mittenwald, Germany, a village in the mountains of Bavaria is now celebrating the 250th anniversary of its violin industry, begun in the 17th century by Mathias Klotz.

Throughout the summer the town folk presented a play, "The Song of the Stars," telling the story of Klotz and his wanderings over Italy, where he learned instrument making. The play will be staged again this winter at a nearby town as part of the entertainment for the winter Olympics.

The story of Mathias Klotz is a romantic one. When he was a boy of 16 his peasant family sent him to Italy to study under famous violin makers there. Twenty years later he returned to Mittenwald, opening his own workshop. Apprentices flocked to him and soon he established the fame of the town for fine instruments, a reputation Mittenwald retains to-day.

After making a number of instruments, Klotz's craftsmen had to go out into the world themselves to sell them. Strapping their violins on their backs they wandered through nearby countries, giving demonstrations and making sales in castles and great monasteries.

Hunting The Ballot

Strange As It May Seem, Many Voters Mark The Job

Placing an X beside a candidate's name is a simple task but at the approaching Dominion general election it is likely 25,000 or more electors will muff the job.

In the 1930 contest 84,119 lost their votes through improperly marking ballots and there are more parties and cand'dates this time to confuse the voter.

Parliament places the ballots in the hands of voters and supplies pencils to mark them. That is as much as it can do. Electors have only to make the crosses themselves. Yet in 1930 ballots were rejected in every constituency in Canada.

Markings in addition to the cross, use of a pen or colored pencil instead of the black pencil provided and signing of the ballot by the voter are the most frequent causes of spoiled ballots.

Through habit many men use their fountain pens and deputy returning officers throw out their ballots. On occasions, however, judges frequently have ruled such ballots valid. The Election Act says the cross must be made with a black pencil.

Many persons start to mark their X opposite the wrong name, score it out and then mark it opposite the candidate they wish to support. That spoils the ballot. They should ask the deputy returning officer for a new one.

Voters sometimes ask why all this fuss about markings when the voter's choice is plainly indicated? The answer is that precautions are necessary to discourage bribery. They are the result of years of experience with elections, the frailties of human nature and the cunning of some politicians.

In the '90's and earlier when the population was small, party workers knew which voters were Conservative, which Liberal and those "on the fence." Of the undecided variety some would sell their votes and the temptation of workers in a close race was strong.

But unless the vote buyer could be sure those he bought went to his candidate there was no use buying them. Many ingenious devices were used to allow party scrutineers to identify ballots while they were being counted. The result has been the regulations to prevent distinguishing marks.

Election workers claim there is very little direct bribery now. Ridings are so populous and party affiliations of voters so indefinite it would cost too much. In addition there is the almost certain risk of the election being voided.

With Harold Gatty, Post flew around the world in eight days, 15 hours, and 51 minutes, in 1931.

The following year, Post announced he would concentrate on the practical side of aviation. He made two sensational high altitude trips over his home town of Bartlesville, Okla., wearing a "super-charged suit" of his own design.

Post made four unsuccessful attempts to make a transcontinental flight through the stratosphere. Each time he was forced down on the way from Burbank, Cal., to New York, the last failure June 1, this year.

CONGRATULATIONS TO VERMILION'S MAYOR

Outstanding among the victories of Social Credit candidates in last Thursday's elections is that won by Mayor W. A. Fallow. Remarkably so in view of the fact that among his opponents was Premier R. G. Reid who had been the sitting member for Vermilion constituency since the U. F. A. government swept into office in 1921, and who up to the elections was felt in still have quite a strong following here. There is no question but that most of the former U. F. A. vote as well as a substantial conservative vote which went to the U. F. A. in 1930, when there were only the former and liberal candidate in the field, went to the S. C. candidate. Some 300 odd votes also were cast for the Liberal candidate than in the previous election, practically accounted for in the increased number of electors entered on the franchise. The strong opposition in the campaign came from the Liberal organization which worked hard and earnestly in an endeavor to win over the constituency to the cause of Liberalism. While small, the communistic vote was also evidence of the introduction of another factor into the Alberta field. In view of his victory and outstanding ability as a municipal executive Mr. Fallow undoubtedly will be called upon by his leader to assume a portfolio in the new government. In all likelihood it will be that of Minister of Municipal Affairs.

First choice votes for the various candidates stood: Fallow, 2142; Hunter, 1962; Redd, 976; Hollins, 838; Williams, 344.

The number of votes cast in Vermilion constituency in the recent election totalled 5472. In 1930 election the vote was 3353.

Alberta witnessed a debacle in so far as party alignment is concerned on August 22nd. The former U. F. A. government will have no representation in the new house, being wiped off the slate, labor, communist and independents enjoyed the same fate, conservatives polled two seats out of the five, liberals were more fortunate taking five. S. C.'s are credited with 53 seats. Four ridings have not yet completed counts, but in the first count social credit-ers led.

TILL AFTER THE HONEYMOON.

A MONUMENT IS NEEDED

Someone should start a no cement to build a monument to the average taxpayer. He is the man who heaps the home fires burning and makes it nice when governments go around. He has gotten himself into the position of a taxpayer by thrift, by spending less than he makes, by investing in the home town, by building a home first and owning a roof over his own head. To do it he has denied himself pleasures and luxuries that the spendthrift had in plenty. In every community he may be abused and referred to slightingly on occasions, but in good years and bad years he is the backbone of the country, and without him there would be no government and no relief. He carries the burden that others shirk, many times without complaint, which he would often be justified in voicing. He is deserving a monument— a tall enduring monument, for he, like Atlas of old, bears the world upon his shoulders.

Production of petroleum in the province during July totalled 167,111 barrels, which brings the total production of the various fields for the first seven months of the year up to 729,286 barrels, compared with 721,218 barrels for the same period of 1934. The bulk of the production is of Turner Valley napcha.

Aberhart Premier

CALGARY Aug 28.—Caucus of the Social Credit candidates and members Wednesday endorsed William Aberhart leader of the party and made it possible for him to step into the premier's office next week. The party swept the provincial elections last week but Mr Aberhart was not a candidate.

Coupled with the endorsation motion was a blanket order to Mr Aberhart giving him a free hand in the selection of his cabinet and offering him any seat he selected.

Sponsored by J W. Hazlit K C Calgary and Rev William Morrison High River riding, the caucus passed the following resolutions

1 This meeting of members-elect to the provincial legislature, being a substantial majority of the elected members reaffirm their absolute confidence in William Aberhart as their leader

2 It is the unanimous wish of the members elect that William Aberhart forthwith respond to the invitation of the Lieutenant-governor of this province to call upon him and intimate his readiness and willingness to form a government to carry on the administration of provincial affairs with himself as premier and the duties of such other portfolios as he may see fit to assume

3 William Aberhart as leader and premier-elect shall have an absolute free hand in the selection of such persons as he deems necessary for the duties involved in the efficient administration of provincial affairs.

4 The members-elect further pledge themselves to facilitate, in any way that the premier may deem necessary and practicable the operation of the measures needed upon the announcement by the premier of his appointments.

When the motion to name the new government leader was proposed the members arose to their feet and cheered the new premier to the echo.

"There's no doubt about it being unanimous" Mr. Hazlit remarked and the members cheered again. Mr. Aberhart then acknowledged the plaudits and announced that he was ready to assume the reins of government within the next few days.

Upon motion of Mr Aberhart as leader it was resolved less than 15 minutes after the caucus got under way As members-elect and delegated candidates entered the convention hall they were carefully checked in by The Victor Wright acting secretary.

The caucus opened with the singing of "O God Our Help in Ages Past" and this was followed by silent prayer

His caucus adjourned at noon with no decision about federal candidates as to run as Social Credit candidates or the Reconstruction party.

Mr Aberhart was instructed by the caucus to invite Major C. H. Douglas to Alberta. It was contemplated by the new government but no date was set.

It will be three or four days before announces his cabinet Mr. Aberhart said when the caucus adjourned at noon

DIVIDEND IDEA FEASIBLE, SAYS MAJOR DOUGLAS

Albertans Must Forego Frills Awhile — Co-operation of Banks May Have to be Forced Says Scotch Economist

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The promise of $25 per month to every bonafide adult citizen of Alberta is "quite practicable," declared Major C. H. Douglas, noted economist, in an interview published this morning in the News Chronicle His added his opinion that the scheme projected by William Aberhart and his Social Credit League followers who triumphed in last week's provincial elections, would have to be developed in stages.

DOUGLAS IMPRESSED

Major Douglas was quoted as saying that when he met Aberhart while in Alberta some months ago at the invitation of the then United Farmers' government to study Social Credit possibilities, he was "much impressed with his ability."

He had criticized Aberhart's proposals as a paid official of the Alberta government when asked for an opinion, but the criticism, he said, was on points of detail.

GO BY STAGES

"It must be remembered, Major Douglas was quoted, "that Aberhart had the electists to consider and I have no doubt he now realizes the necessity of proceeding in stages."

NO FRILLS YET

The economist added that Albertans must "do without frills for a time at any rate. But there is no reason why every man should not have £5 per month, which would be a good deal better than the grinding poverty from which many suffer today

BANKS ARE BOGEYS

Asked if he were afraid of the banks, Major Douglas replied "Banks are made into bogeys. If there is any difficulty their co-operation may have to be enforced."

TRY THESE RECIPES!

PEANUT BRITTLE

2 cups sugar
2 cups raw, shelled peanuts
1 teaspoon Mazola
½ cup water — 1 teaspoons vanilla
2 generous teaspoons baking soda
1 cup Crown Brand Corn Syrup.

Cook sugar, syrup and water until it bubbles and then add raw peanuts and Mazola. Cook until the nuts begin to pop, then remove from fire and stir in vanilla and soda. Pour in mass on a large oiled platter and when it begins to cool, stretch out thin and break into pieces. Never spread while hot with a knife, but wait until partially cooled and pull out with the hands.

BRAN MUFFINS

2 cups bran
2 teaspoons baking powder
1½ cups milk 1 tablespoon Mazola
¼ cup Crown Brand Corn Syrup
1 cup flour — 1 teaspoon salt
2 well beaten eggs
½ cup seeded raisins (not necessary)

Beat syrup and Mazola until light and foamy, then add eggs and continue beating until like whipped cream Sift flour with baking powder and salt, adding three times. Combine bran with syrup and rest mixture, then alternate the flour and milk into the batter. Bake at once in a moderate oven and unmould on cake rack as soon as baked Have pans, oven and flour all ready before beating eggs otherwise the muffins will lose the lightness

SWEETS

1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons Crown Brand Corn Syrup
1 egg 1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ cups flour 2 tablespoons sugar
Beat ingredients into a batter and let stand until light (20 mins) Fry by tablespoonfuls in a waffle iron or frying pan, oil the pan lightly before using

"LEST WE FORGET" AT THEATRE HERE SEPT. 12-14

The most astounding drama to ever blaze across the screen—"Lest We Forget"—from the official archives of the Great Nations and Canada's own film records—will appear at the Columbia Theatre, Vermilion, Sept. 12, 13 & 14. LIBERTY says "The gallant Canadian Corps has mobilized once more in another war to end war."—Lest We Forget is Canada's most monumental compiled and produced through the joint sponsoring of the Canadian Government and the Canadian Legion It is an epic of heroism, self sacrifice and almost incredible endurance. "It is war minus its brass buttons and false glamour."

A picture every Canadian should see, and the people of Vermilion and district would do well to take advantage of the opportunity afforded them to do so by Manager Pilkie of the Columbia Theatre

CLEAN SWEEP FOR SOCIAL CREDIT PARTY IN ALBERTA

Calgary. — Alberta will have a Social Credit government, headed by William Aberhart, the 57-year-old Calgary founder of the Alberta Social Credit League.

In its initial bid for power, and the first time the electors of a Canadian province have ever been offered a Social Credit administration, the league candidates made a sweep of the rural ridings.

Surrounded by members of the Social Credit league in Calgary, Mr. Aberhart, who was not a candidate, received the election returns at the Prophetic Bible institute, which he founded here some years ago. It was here he organized the Social Credit league.

In an address to his followers, Leader Aberhart declared:

"I feel our opponents failed because they were fighting against the greatest economic movement that had ever been seen. He who fights against 'truth and progress' fights a losing battle," he added.

He described the election as a "revolution of ballots instead of bullets," and appealed to all those who had opposed his movement to make the organization unanimous.

"Come on now, fellows, join us," he invited.

"You can find no better place for security than in Alberta. We have no intention of confiscation or repudiation by any way, shape, or form," he declared.

Experts will aid in the establishing of Social Credit in Alberta, and, Mr. Aberhart has announced he will bring Major C. H. Douglas, British economist and founder of the well-known "Douglas System of Social Credit," to Edmonton to assist in the initial administration work.

Thousands of Albertans are promised benefits under a Social Credit government.

The major benefit will be the payment of a $25 a month dividend to all bona fide citizens. How many citizens will come under this classification in the province's population of 750,000 could not be estimated immediately. The government will, as one of its first duties, name the qualifications for "bona fide" citizenship. Length of residence in the province will, it is understood, be the major qualification.

Ready to lead his party as premier, Mr. Aberhart will have to seek office in a by-election. It is planned to make a seat for him at an early date.

Medal for Eskimo

To Receive Recognition For Services Rendered

Montreal — Within the next few days "John L", Southampton Island Eskimo, will receive the King's jubilee medal, the only member of his race selected for the award. This bit of news was brought back here by Dr. C. C. Birchard, Montreal physician, who spent five weeks aboard the Nascopie cruising around northern waters.

Famous as the skipper of a 60-foot Hudson Bay schooner for the last 10 years, "John L." is known to practically every exploring party that has entered the Arctic. Dr. Birchard said. As a reward for his services in aiding white men of the frozen north, "John L." will be presented with the medal by Major D. L. McKeand, director of the Northwest Territories branch of the department of the interior. Major McKeand is in charge of the government party aboard the Nascopie.

Highway Improvements

Work To Commence On Road Between Winnipeg And Brandon

Winnipeg, Man. — Extensive improvements on the Trans-Canada highway between Winnipeg and Brandon will be undertaken shortly by the provincial department of public works.

This work is to be paid for on a 50-50 basis by Dominion and province.

Tenders have been called for by Hon W. R. Clubb minister of public works and labor, for asphalting 22 miles of the highway west of Portage la Prairie, for grading and gravelling eight miles of highway west of Headingly, and for constructing five treated timber bridges at different points along the highway.

The American public pays undertakers, florists and monument makers $10,000,000 a week for its funerals.

March Of Troops

Preparations For War Seen In Italy

Rome.—Italy's military consciousness grew steadily as the extent to which the energies of the nation are bound up in preparations for an East African war became increasingly clear.

The streets of Rome continually resounded to the measured trend of troops moving through the capital on their way to embarkation points. Uniformed men were everywhere—streets, sidewalk cafes, restaurants, parks and shops. Military news dominated space in newspapers.

The Giornale d'Italia extended the editorial olive branch to Great Britain, but the offer was on the promise that Britain should come to appreciate the validity of Italy's East African policy. It argued Italian occupation of Ethiopia would be to Britain's advantage because it would be a "stable presence."

To Guard British Legation

Bomb Proof Shelter Being Built At Addis Ababa

Addis Ababa.—The British legation has taken steps to construct bomb proof shelters for the small British force that will protect the legation in the event Italy attacks Ethiopia.

The British purchased 6,000 square yards of heavy, corrugated, galvanized iron sheets for the shelters. These also will provide quarters for British civilians.

Simla, India.—An official announced that Indian troops were being despatched from Bombay to reinforce the guard at the British legation in Addis Ababa.

The small force selected consists of a detachment of the fifth battalion of the 14th Punjab regiment, stationed at Poona.

Says Consent Needed

Closing Of Suez Canal Must Have Approval Of France

London. — United States Senator James F. Pope of Idaho, stated here that Great Britain is powerless to close the Suez canal to Italy, in the event of war, without the approval of France.

"The British government cannot act because of the peculiar ownership set-up of the canal," he said. "I have learned that the British government owns only 44 per cent. of canal shares, the remaining 56 per cent. being public traded, with most of them held by the French.

"The board of flues directors is composed of one Dutchman, 10 Englishmen, and 20 French, with important executive offices held by Frenchmen."

Free Of Rust

Alberta Crops Escape Damage And Some Good Yields Expected

Calgary.—Alberta crops are free of rust this year and "bumper" yields are expected in some areas, Dr. C. B. Sanford, head of the Dominion laboratory of plant pathology, University of Alberta, reported here on his return from an inspection tour.

Dr. Sanford, who visited fields from Edmonton to Lethbridge, east to Medicine Hat and through the irrigation areas, estimated crops on irrigated lands south of High Rever would average 25 bushels to the acre. In Calgary district and north, he said, the return will be much higher, while around Olds and Lacombe some real "bumpers" were expected.

To Pay For Road

Soviet Government Accepts Flour From Japan

Tokyo. — The Soviet government has contracted to take 400,000 sacks of Japanese flour in part payment for the former Chinese Eastern railway and further similar orders are anticipated, according to the newspaper Yomiuri.

The transaction is believed largely responsible for a considerable rise in the prices of Japanese wheat and flour.

The agreement by which Manchukuo bought the railway provides that after the first payment in cash, further payments might be in products of Manchukuo or Japanese origin.

Prairie Crop Estimate

Winnipeg.—A prairie wheat crop of 280,000,000 bushels was estimated by the Searle Grain Company in its crop survey based on reports from 1,169 correspondents. The prairie crop last year was 263,000,000 bushels.

Cabinet Transacts Business

Future Orders To Be Approved By Governor-General

Ottawa.—Cabinet council sitting Aug 20 for the first time in a week, passed some orders-in-council respecting the Public Works Construction Act, it was learned, but no details will be made known until they have been approved by the governor-general or his deputy.

It was assumed the contracts referred to the railway equipment orders for which, under the Supplementary Public Works Construction Act of last session, $15,000,000 was voted. Under that act the government was empowered to advance money to finance rail equipment orders for both the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways, repayable by arrangements as an unemployment relief measure.

No appointments were made, Prime Minister Bennett said at conclusion of the council session. It is expected a minister of marine will be appointed shortly, this being the only outstanding vacancy now remaining.

A THRIFT DRIVE INAUGURATED BY PREMIER HEPBURN

Toronto.—Economy screws, tightened by the Ontario cabinet in a special session, squeezed out the Ontario agricultural development board and started a thrift drive which Premier Hepburn said would affect three major departments, health, northern development and relief.

The agricultural development board, thrown entirely into the discard, was organized by the former Drury government. Provision was made to collect the $49,000,000 invested in farm loans.

Final wind up of the farm loan business will be made under the direction of James Fraser.

The premier said the government was not barring farmers from loans by this action because the federal government had stepped into the field. He added the government of late had to borrow money to re-loan under the agricultural development scheme.

Orders were given to 49 inspectors working for the board that their services would be required no longer. Work of the inspectors, one to each $1,000,000 invested in farm loans had been to inspect farms as loan risks and to work in the collection routine. They cost the government on an average of $10,000 a month, Mr. Hepburn estimated.

Latest figures showed there were 16,500 farm loans made and more than 500 farms were on the government's hands.

Mr. Hepburn said it was costing the government more than 3½% per cent. to collect on either the interest or the capital.

Thanksgiving Day

Changed From Monday To Thursday This Year

Ottawa.—Opposition to any further change in the date of Thanksgiving Day for this year was expressed by Hon. C. H. Cahan, secretary of state. Churches favored Thursday instead of Monday for the holiday.

The secretary of state has responsibility for deciding the date. Originally it was fixed for Monday, Oct. 14, but when that was selected as election day, Thanksgiving was moved to Oct. 21, a Thursday.

"For over 40 years," Mr. Cahan said in a statement, "Thanksgiving Day was always fixed for a Thursday in October. The day as the king's proclamation always states is fixed as 'a day of general thanksgiving to Almight God' for the blessings with which Canada has been favored during the year.

"In later years the churches of Canada have complained that as a weekend holiday the religious character of Thanksgiving Day has been almost completely lost sight of, and that the day has become one for holiday excursions and frivolous entertainments, which are not consistent with the objects for which the day was originally set aside."

Alaskan Airman May Be Awarded Distinguished Flying Cross

Washington. — The Distinguished Flying Cross was asked for Joseph E. Crosson, Alaskan airman who flew the bodies of Will Rogers and Wiley Post from Point Barrow to their homeland, by the Alaska delegate in congress, Delegate A. J. Dimond said to other outstanding flights by Crosson including the discovery of the body of Carl Ben Eielson lost on the Siberian coast. He said to Wiley Post when the latter was setting a globe-circling record, and other humanitarian flights in the northland.

PRINCE'S SON SHOES A HORSE

Lord MacDuff, son of Prince Arthur of Connaught and grandson of the Duke of Connaught, came of age Aug 9, the occasion being marked with gay festivities at Mar Lodge in the Highlands. Atlas led to the forge, St. Greys, the young Prince is seen here shoeing a horse, part of the regular training course.

Keep Tab On Speed

Automatic Movie Camera For Campbell's Bluebird

London — A small automatic movie camera will be installed in the cockpit of Sir Malcolm Campbell's Bluebird when the British speed king attempts to drive his racer 300 miles per hour on the plains of Utah next month.

The camera will make a continuous record of the instruments' reading while the great car thunders over the course, and not only will afford an authentic record of the revolutions attained, but will permit Sir Malcolm to keep his eyes off the instruments and concentrate on driving.

Arrest Suspected Spies

Two Nazis Taken Into Custody By French Police

Metz, France.—Police announced they had uncovered ultra-modern methods used by alleged German spies with the arrest of two Nazis.

Louis Altmeyer 25 and Jean Hussinger, 30, who police called "go-betweens" for another alleged spy were nabbed as they crossed the border.

Authorities said Altmeyer had a pocket lamp capable of throwing red and green beams, enabling him to signal in code over long distances. Police claimed both men confessed to espionage. They are being held in jail.

Position Of Dominions

If Great Britain Goes To War New Zealand Would Be Involved

Wellington — Premier George W. Forbes has reiterated that any war in which Great Britain became involved was automatically the concern of New Zealand.

While the prime minister was addressing a public meeting he was heckled regarding his statement during his recent visit to Canada, that if Britain went to war New Zealand would automatically participate. Mr Forbes replied that was merely a repetition of a previous statement in parliament, that if Britain became involved in war this country also would be involved.

Too Much Publicity

Dr. Dafoe Says Quintuplets Need More Sleep

Callander, Ont. — The five little Dionne girls are not yet sufficiently grown-up to do without sleep and as a result Dr Allan Roy Dafoe, their physician, has decreed their public appearance must be reduced from four daily to a couple of showings.

"It is just a precautionary measure," said Dr Dafoe, who explained so many people had been visiting the hospital daily for each of the four appearances that the sleep of the babies was being interrupted.

FEDERAL FUND WILL ELIMINATE LEVEL CROSSINGS

Ottawa.—With $1,000,000 at its disposal for the elimination of level crossings the board of railway commissioners is awaiting applications from local authorities for expenditures from the fund. Hon. Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice and acting minister of railways, has stated he will not interfere with the board in the [illegible] of the fund, but will leave the matter entirely in the hands of the commissioners.

The board will consider applications for grants from the fund only when the municipality in which the crossing is situated has agreed to pay its share of the cost. In determining the amount to be paid by municipalities the board will take into consideration the amount of traffic over the crossing, the cost of the proposed work and the ability of the municipality to pay. Particular crossings for the elimination of which applications will be approved have not been announced.

Drouth Plan

Interest Shown In Water Development Scheme

Ottawa.—More than 4,500 farmers and ranchers throughout the drouth area of the prairie provinces had applied for assistance under the water development scheme organized as part of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act, Agriculture Minister Robert Weir stated.

The problem of supplying a more adequate and dependable water supply for domestic use and livestock, and for irrigation where feasible, for the growing of feed and garden stuff is a vital one on many farms and ranches," he said.

"Of the total applications received to date nearly 200 are from Manitoba, over 2,800 from Saskatchewan, and somewhere around 1,400 from Alberta."

Repair Costs Heavy

Edmonton. — The crushing blow which flood waters dealt to the lines of the Northern Alberta railways last month will necessitate immediate repair conservatively, estimated at $250,000, it was believed in railway circles here. It was estimated that ten miles of track along the shores of Slave Lake would have to be rebuilt.

BRITAIN IS FIRM IN RESOLVE TO PREVENT WAR

London.—Great Britain, an advised informant told the Associated Press, will go to any length under the league covenant to try to prevent war in Africa.

If other powers join her, he said, she will subscribe not only to financial and economic pressure upon the aggressor but to the use of military, naval and air sanctions. (In other words, display of force.) She will even consider joint closure of the Suez canal.

The informant said the cabinet, in emergency session, decided to seek a peaceful settlement by every possible device but, if that fails, to advocate the use of the strongest league instrumentalities provided — and this was definite — she does not stand alone. Britain does not intend to police the world single-handedly, he said.

The cabinet emphasized, the informant said, its determination to support the covenant of the league and all treaties.

He added the League of Nations must decide the type of sanctions to be employed in event of hostilities and how forcefully they are likely to be employed.

The decisions were reached toward the close of a four and three-quarters hour meeting during which the ministers solemnly reviewed the whole problem.

The keynote of the cabinet's decision was embodied in the statement made July 31 by Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, in the house of commons when he said: "I do not think there need be any doubt * * * we are fully conscious of our obligations under our treaties and under the covenant and that we certainly intend to uphold them."

The government will continue to keep the Dominions and the United States closely advised and its progress in new peace efforts. However, the cabinet remained firmly opposed to single-handed action as far as sanctions against nations are concerned, in order assiduously to avoid assuming the role of sole policeman of European peace. Great Britain will continue to work with France in the peace efforts.

Contrary to expectations, no official statement of the cabinet proceedings was issued, the decisions arrived in it being announced unofficially and informally.

The 22 ministers assembled heard a full report from Anthony Eden, minister for League of Nations affairs, of the abortive conference in Paris with representatives of France and Italy.

The question of Dominion participation in any measures that might be taken was not raised by the foreign secretary. In any event this is a question solely for the governments concerned, and no one here has deemed it necessary to make any pronouncement.

The Dominions have the opportunity to state their views on the problem when the league assembly meets September 9. Australia is at present the only Dominion on the council.

THE RAIDING COCKROACH

Cockroaches are adventurous fellows and are the conquerors of each new territory they invade anywhere they choose or advance in single amazing strides into apartment houses, hotels, private dwelling houses, barns or stores. The kind of building makes no difference provided the conditions are right and warm and there is a plentiful supply of food. Cockroaches have been a nuisance all over Canada this summer and evidently tired of the comparative freedom of mountain cabin camps are taking a hand in trucks and travelers in the wake of nearby dwelling houses. They hide during the day and emerge at night in search of food. They eat practically anything, but are particularly fond of the foodstuffs favoured by man. On this account they are a menace wherever about kitchens, pantries and other places where food is accessible. Two species are the most commonly found around human habitations, which can be brought under control by a thorough job of cleaning and disinfecting. They are poisoned. An odium powder is recommended for use in cracks, but reasonable precautions should be taken, says the pamphlet on cockroaches issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture to prevent children or domestic pets from coming in contact with it.

Standard Interviews N. Greig On Trip

The Standard inquired of Mr. Norman Greig of his experiences travelling via car and do-lux house trailer. Mr. Greig just returned from an extended tour thru the States to California. He made the trip with eight people very comfortably, travelling through Banff, Radium Springs and crossing the boundary at Kingsgate. In Canada he experienced the worst piece of road on the whole trip between Edmonton and Wetaskiwin, with another bad stretch from Radium to the boundary. At Sand Point he crossed the famous wooden bridge, said to be the longest in the world. Throughout the States of Washington what crops seen were very good; the Wenatchee fruit valley was a real eye-opener. They went via Portland and then to the Coast highway. Along this route they crossed bays on ferries on one occasion, the distances across vary from ½ to 2 miles and bridges are now being constructed over the bays; this appears to be a real engineering triumph. San Francisco, Oakland and Salt Lake were visited and in the latter city they visited the great Mormon temple. On the way back they experienced real heat when crossing the desert and Norman received a sunstroke from the burning sun while changing a flat on the road. They also travelled thru the city of Grover fame "Reno". On the return they crossed the line south of Gladeton. Both he and Mrs. Greig, as well as the children enjoyed the trip immensely but they still think Alberta is about as good a place as there is on the map for the workingman to live.

The regular monthly meeting of the Frog Lake chapter I. O. D. E. will be held on Tuesday Sept. 3rd at the Memorial Hall at 8 p. m.

HEAVY AND LIGHT SOIL DRIFT

Observations made in Saskatchewan during the summer of 1934 indicate that soil drifting or wind erosion is generally most severe on the very heavy and on the very light soils. Similar observations were made several years ago during the course of the soil drifting of 1928-29. There is, however, a definite tendency during the present period of drought, says Soil Specific Agriculture, for serious drifting to develop on medium-textured soils formerly classed as relatively non-drifting types. The presence of a high content of humus or decomposed organic matter does not prevent a soil from drifting, as shown by the occurrence of drifting in the black peat zone around Indian Head and Melfort for instance. While the investigations indicate that the peat problem is most serious on the lighter soil types, the heavier soils also demand attention since they are in many more valuable agriculturally. There is no indication that the present trend of these soils to drift is due to any serious loss in their productive power. The analyses show that the clay soils and the corresponding drift and chemical composition than the original soil. Drift from medium textured soils exhibited a similar tendency but differences between soil and drift are not great. The whole matter of soil drifting, of course is now under the consideration of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Committees, directed by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

ELECTRIC SHOCK HAZARD

In this age of electricity, the latest hazard added to life on the farm is electrical shock. The passage of an electrical current of considerable voltage through a man causes paralysis of the higher brain centres, resulting in the stoppage of breathing. The failure of the normal tests for life should not be taken as evidence of death. Persons have been resuscitated after hours of effort although ordinary methods of life saving failed. In cases where the contact was of short duration and where artificial respiration has been applied without delay there is a better chance of recovery. Although, in reality resuscitation from electrical shock is a case for the medical man, or at a push for those users of the power and telephone companies well trained in the art of artificial respiration there are certain things that everybody can do. In shock accidents the victim is usually thrown clear of the line wire or apparatus, but if such is not the case the obvious thing to do is to clear him at once from contact, the groups can be being taken that the helper himself is insulated from contact. Notwithstanding the fact that some

BAD WEATHER POSTPONES GAMES

The scheduled tennis matches for possession of the Tip Top Tennis Cup had to be postponed on account of the weather prevailing, conditions reigning it absolutely unplayable, a high cold wind with an occasional rain squall being the order of the day. The Paradise Valley players will no doubt make it a point to visit Vermilion in the very near future as the season is rapidly drawing to a close.

This was the second disappointment suffered by local tennis players during the past week as a social match with Lloydminster scheduled to be held here on Monday of last week had to be called off on account of rain.

The importation of cattle, sheep, swine, beef, pork and bacon into Britain during the time of Charles I was declared by law to be a common nuisance and was forbidden under pain of forfeiture; one-half to be given to the poor of the parish in which the seizure was made, and the other half to the informer.

ISLAND HILL

A straight line never runs crooked the Social Credit League placed a straight issue devoid of political chicanery before the people of Alberta and they gave no uncertain voice in straight answer.

Our friend Taff two weeks ago peered he was not only a poet but also a prophet, and we await a song of victory from his facile pen.

A leading merchant of Vermilion told us although he voted against Social Credit he was now prepared to assist the new government every way he could. He has shown the right spirit and if all his fellow merchants follow his example there is no doubt about it the future looks bright for the people of the province.

Mr. W. A. Fallow deserves a special word of congratulation for, in our opinion he had the stiffest hurdle in all Alberta to get over. He was supposed by the Premier of a government that had been in power for thirteen years and moreover a famous U. F. A. seat all the ways from Vermilion, whence his bye Fallow descended from to his ex-last stand Socialist called all the way and won easily.

The polling stations here presented in an overwhelming majority for Social Credit in the urban districts of Campbell Lake, Forestdale and Island Hill. At Fairview Heights where the writer acted agent for Mr. Fallow, the voting was for Social Credit, 18 for U. F. A. 5 for Liberal and 1 for Conservative.

WILDMERE WINKS

Last week the election was the whole topic, this week it's past history, and the farmers can now get their minds settled on the main job now—getting grain. And some job it is, with short, thin, lank and all lengths of straw.

Old man frost cannot stay away this fall it seems, two nights now is how he called

Tom Best was returning officer at the poll here, and Eric Madill poll clerk. Mrs. Scuffert was to have been but sickness prevented her. Albert Holte and Alex Smith were scrutineers. Of the sixty-two on the voters list, fifty-two voted; 38 for Fallow, 11 for Reid, 2 for Williams, 1 for Haines and 1 for Hunter.

Mrs. G. Scuffert went in last Monday to get some teeth out and after getting three pulled one commenced to bleed so badly she had to go to the hospital where she was a patient till Friday. She is still quite weak yet friend Jack Beryl, is our wish to you.

Last week Mrs. Gibson and Alex spent Monday afternoon at the Gardner home and then on Wednesday they visited with Mrs. Wallington.

Gordon Hall is at present working for J. Wallington, also L. Graham.

Cliff Crothers was hauling oats by truck for G. Haines last week. Mr. Haines is the first one to thresh on our part when he threshed oats last Wednesday.

Miss Marjorie Crothers of Claremore spent last Sunday with her parents Mr. and Mrs G. Crothers, of Wildmere.

Miss Mary Love, Triangle is boarding at work at the home of Dr. Wallace in Wainwright for a couple of months.

Mrs H. Mieelmuton of Battleview is a patient in the Vermilion hospital suffering from a cold and pleurisy, best wishes for a speedy recovery Mrs Mieelmuton.

Fred Doyle, Union district, was a caller in our parts this week. Fred also called on his brother Tom and wife of Dunsmuir.

Mr. Allan, Mr. Goddard and two McLellan boys of Gilt Edge were calls—at the latter's home Monday and after looking over the new estate barn plan cut and remarking what a pretty show we had, journeyed on to Vermilion.

Eric Madill with his truck took Mrs Gibson, Alice Dog Howard and Miss Howe down to Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Sharpe's in Dartmouth on Sunday, a treed skunk attacked them as they doesn't that sound good

A. Rendall Triangle broke his leader on Monday, and A. and J. Wallington made a trip to town for repairs to-day.

Mrs Nash and Mr and Mrs Elliott to spend a few weeks with Mrs. Nash's son here.

Last week while he and a friend were getting a load of sheaves out of a stack, Mr. Gordon Hall got a nest in it. A Carlson st had the misfortune to have one get in his waist and sting.

One week left of holidays then the teachers and pupils will be getting back to their duties again.

Funniest thing heard was Mr. Clarnett or Dansmond to-mainte Mr. Hallingby, Dennett Bunny. It's the Social Credit wagon now

Announcement is made that a storage rate of 1-45 of a cent a bushel per day will apply on grain stored in all Alberta Pool elevators, effective from August 31, 1935 for the ensuing license year. The present rate, which has prevailed for many years, is 1-30 of a cent a bushel a day.

The Alberta Pool elevators is making this voluntary reduction as a temporary measure in reducing cost to grain growers during the present recognized emergency in the marketing of grain.

The proposed reduction will affect 435 Pool elevators in this province as well as four terminals operated by the Alberta Pool on the Pacific coast.

Gifts For Aviators

Winnipeg Pilots Going To South Pole Wear City's Crest

When Pilots R. Hedrick Kenyon and J. H. Lymburner fly with the Lincoln Ellsworth expedition down in the South Polar regions during the coming summer months of the southern hemisphere, they will wear pinned to their breasts, two small silver replicas of the coat-of-arms of Winnipeg.

The gifts were presented to the men by Mayor John Queen at a dinner given by the Aviation League of Manitoba. "These mementoes," said the mayor, "will carry to you wishes and the high hopes and expectations of the people of Winnipeg for your success.

"But they are like a Scotch gift," his worship added "There is a string attached to the giving. When you come back next May, I presume the Aviation League will have a celebration in honor of your return and we want you to hand them back to the mayor of Winnipeg then so that they can be framed and kept in the city hall as mementoes of the interest the city of Winnipeg has in the expedition, which we hope will be historic."

J. B. Coyne president of the league, said Manitoba has a special interest in polar expeditions by reason of the fact Franklin tried to find a northwest passage to the Orient North of Canada and no game a land to Arctic exploration.

Claims Cure For Glaucoma

Dread Eye Disease Yields To Drug Says Specialist

A dreaded word among doctors is glaucoma, hardening of the eye-ball. Salt and water in the blood seep out of the blood vessels of the eye and into the eye's cavity. Because this salty liquid cannot escape, it passes the retina against the wall of the eye, slowly destroys the tasseled end of the optic nerve. Vision dims, blindness comes. Drugs have proved of little help; surgery gives only temporary relief.

Dr. Emanuel M (for euphony) Josephson, Manhattan eye and ear specialist, announced in Science that he had at last ascertained the true cause of glaucoma and could cure it with a drug.

The cause he declared was decreased activity of the adrenal glands. These glands situated one above each kidney, secrete two hormones—adrenalin in the core, cortin in the rind. One of adrenalin's effects is to draw sugar into the blood.

The effects of cortin, a scarcer hormone, are less well known. Among such effects is control of the amount of salt and water in the blood. Scarcity of cortin in the system increases the permeability of the walls of blood vessels and capillaries, permits a leakage of salty fluid from the blood

Such leakage occurs in glaucoma-tous eyes, Dr. Josephson reasoned. Injections of cortin sustains the patient's adrenals supply too little cortin He bought some cortin at a drug store, injected it into the muscles of glaucomatous patients. Results within half an hour were pressure dropped from painful high to normal, pain in the eyeballs ceased and many partially blind patients could see clearly for the first time.

Pursuing a hyp-thesis, Dr Josephson got cortin to near-sighted children. In most cases their vision almost promptly improved. That must mean, he decided, that myopia and glaucoma are due to the same thing

Canada's Trade With Italy

Imports Last Year Valued At $6,789,000 And Exports Over $3,500,000

With Prime Minister Signor Benito Mussolini so much in the newspaper headlines, people are apt to forget that Italy is still a kingdom and that the king is Victor Emmanuel III. Italian unity was accomplished under the House of Savoy after a heroic struggle continuing from 1848 to 1870. Cavour, the statesman, Mazzini, the philosopher, and Garibaldi, the soldier, being the principal figures. From a constitutional monarchy the kingdom's government has become, since 1922, a Fascist state, the basic idea being that the corporative or guild state is superior to capitalism in supremacy over the economic and social groups within the nation.

The Canada and the seventy islands belonging to Italy have an area of less than one-fifth the size of Quebec, but the population of Italy-plus Italians is four times that of all Canada. There is a large settled and flowing population of Italians in Montreal, Toronto, the capital, is about the size of Montreal

Canada does a considerable trade with Italy, the imports last year being valued at about $3,750,000 and the exports over $3,500,000 We get grapes, fruits and cheese in bottled olive oil wines felt hats, silk fabrics, creams of tartar, tobacco pipes and many textile products We send to Italy a good deal of wheat, rubber tires, dried cod-fish wood pulp copper, nickel, sausage casings, upper leather and fox skins. Canada pays run direct between Canada and Italy both from and to the St Lawrence and Vancouver ports

Fruit Of Enormous Size

Strawberries In Alaska Go Big One Pike Tenspp

Strawberries luscious and so big that one would fill a teacup and ripe-both with stalks as thick as the wrist and three to four feet high, yet as tender and juicy as the early shoots grown in the United States, were picked this week by Harry J Lucas, Jr. of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Science expedition that went to Cape Prince of Wales, the blue head. Offsetting the advantages of the fruits and vegetables of enormous size and fine flavor are the insects which also grow to enormous size The mosquitoes he reports are twice as large and ten times as vicious as the Jersey variety The party had to wear net masks—New York Herald Tribune.

Acrobatic Roller Skaters

Three High-Speed Russian Artists Performing In London

The most "revolutionary" Russians in the world have arrived in London. They are the Three Cossacks, high-speed acrobatic roller skaters, (two men and a girl), who whirl round at 130 m.p.h. on a table only eight feet square.

This is the smallest table anyone has ever skated on and lived," John Gajkowsky, the leader, said at the Savoy, where the trio are appearing in cabaret.

"There is a block line running round the table several inches from the rim. If we touch it we lose. One wrong we heep our eyes out that line and never go outside it.

"Our greatest speed," he said, "is 60 m.p.h., and when working up to a climax we sometimes touch 180 m.p.h.

The Three Cossacks' chief fear is "centrifugalitis"—breaking of blood vessels in the eyes or legs due to their becoming overloaded in the high-speed whirling.—London Daily Mirror.

Insect Killing Machine

Engineer Uses Artificial Fever To Annihilate White Ants

A most little gadget that applies the "artificial fever" method of treating certain human diseases to the problem of ridding the civilized world of unpleasant insects is on exhibition at San Francisco.

Electrical Engineer E. L. Brown, inventor of the apparatus, demonstrated its use before a score or so of California's most noted scientists who watched with great interest the test of the machine on a colony of termites flourishing in a piece of wood he had with him.

These insect creatures that live in and on wood, are fast becoming a major menace in American cities, Brown announced. In fact, they are estimated to cost American property owners about $200,000,000 each year, and the possibility of their eradication excited great interest among the assembled scientists.

Brown's insect killing machine operates with "cold heat." Short radio waves passing between two electrodes have the effect of generating sufficient heat to kill the bugs without setting the wood in which the little nuisances are living, afire.

Instruction Wins Fame

When Walter Hines Page was a magazine editor, a writer addressed him with: "Now I'm positive you don't read them all. I submitted a story last week and, as a test, I pasted four pages together. When the story was returned, those pages still were pasted together."

"Madam," Page replied, "when I open an egg at breakfast, I don't eat it all to discover it's bad."

The cornerstone of the original U.S. capitol was laid by President Washington on Sept. 18, 1793.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SEPTEMBER 1

PAUL
(Worker With Hand And Heads)

Golden text: In all things I gave you an example, that so labouring ye ought to help the weak. Acts 20:35.

Lesson: Acts 20:33-35; Philippians 4:4-13.

Devotional Reading: Acts 22:3-10.

Explanations And Comments

Paul's Example, Acts 20:33-35. Paul urged his hearers to follow the example he had set. He had coveted wealth, but had labored for his own support and that of others: see Acts 18:3; 1. Cor. 4:12; 1. Thess. 2:18. In all things his life had been an example to them, and they in their turn should labor and help the weak. He "held" Paul probably means those lacking in means. Recall Carey's words, "My business is preaching the gospel; I cobble shoes to pay expenses."

It is a great thing to be able to say as did Theodore Roosevelt: "I am glad beyond measure that I am one of the many who have stood ready to speed and be spent; pledged to fight while life lasts, the great fight for righteousness and for brotherhood, and for the welfare of mankind."

There was one way in which they could help the weak, Paul reminds them by example.

LOCAL TENNIS PLAYERS MAKE GOOD SHOWING AT RED DEER TOURNAMENT

The local club was well represented at Red Deer's annual tennis tourney, Sunday and Monday of this week. Three members of the Vermilion tennis club made the trip south, Douglas Cooper, Sid Millward and Percy Cooper. The two former took part in the men's doubles and singles both open events

In the doubles the local players advanced to the quarter finals, being eliminated by the eventual winners Fenhan and Jones. Fenhan is a former doubles and junior champion of B. C. In the singles Sid Millward worked out to a quarter final board, losing at that stage to Fenhan who met Douglas Cooper in the final of that event Monday evening. He took the first set 10-8, but dropped the next two, 1-6, 3-6; he played 132 games that day.

Motorists---Take It Easy

The highways of North America are dotted with thousands of motor cars as people travel from city to town and town to city, and as they proceed on business journeys. Each and every one of these cars is a high-powered vehicle, capable of doing almost inconceivable damage when driven with judgment and discretion. Whether you and your friends enjoy the motor trip you may be making depends not on the speed you travel, but whether you arrive safely at your destination.

In the United States last year there were almost one million motor accidents, with 36,000 deaths. The accident and death rate in Canada is almost as high. Ontario last year recording 513 deaths and 8,000 accidents which were not fatal but many of which meant people scarred and maimed and intense suffering for hundreds.

In the driving of a car, a man reveals himself. It is the thoughtless, selfish, reckless driver that is largely responsible for the toll on the highways. What is gained if a man arrives at his destination a few seconds ahead of schedule? Why do so many men, when seated behind the wheel of a car, act like boors and leave behind them every vestige of courtesy and consideration?

The motor car is a wonderful invention, but in the hands of a man without judgment or balance, is a terrible instrument of destruction, leaving death and maimed lives in its wake.

In the August issue of that popular little magazine "Reader's Digest" there appeared an article entitled "—And Sudden Death" which has attracted continent-wide notice and hundreds of reprints of which are being distributed throughout Canada and the United States. The only regret is that a copy cannot be placed in the hands of every person who drives an automobile. It is a gruesome recital of what automobile accidents really are — a realistic portrayal of moments witnessed every day on the highways of this supposedly civilized continent.

The automobile, says the writer of this article, is treacherous, just as a cat is, but tragically different in one way that it becomes the deadliest mimic. As enthusiasts tell you, it makes 65 an hour feel like nothing at all. But 65 an hour is 109 feet a second, a speed which puts a viciously unjustified responsibility on brakes and human reflexes, and can instantly turn this docile luxury into a mad beast stampede.

Collision, turnover or sideswipe, each type of accident produces either a shattering dead stop or a crushing change of direction — and, since the occupant — no meaning you — continues in the old direction at the original speed, every surface and angle of the car's interior immediately becomes a battering, tearing projectile aimed squarely at you — inescapable. There is no bracing yourself against these imperative laws of mass, time, and motion.

It's like going over Niagara Falls in a steel barrel full of railroad spikes. The best thing that can happen to you — and one of the rarer things — is to be thrown out at the door, if you have only the ground to reckon with. True, you strike with as much force as if you had been thrown from the Twentieth Century at top speed. But at least you are spared the lethal array of gleaming metal knobs and edges inside the car.

Anything can happen in that split second of a crash, even those lucky escapes you hear about. People have lived through windshields and come out with only superficial scratches. Others have been catapulted clear, thus reducing both to twisted junk, and been found unhurt and arguing bitterly two minutes afterward. But death was there just the same — he was only exercising the privilege of having passed.

And every time you pass on a blind curve, every time you hit it up on a slippery road, every time you step on it harder than your reflexes will safely take, every time you drive your automobile stewed down by 4 drink or two, every time you follow the man ahead too closely, you're gambling a few seconds against agony and sudden death.

There is an old legal phrase that "time is of the essence of the contract." This is not true on the highway, the reverse is true. Your duty as a driver is to bring safely home not only yourself, but your family and friends who may be travelling with you in your car. It is your duty to no driver your car as to in no way endanger others but to allow them to likewise reach their homes in safety

Worked Under Difficulties

French Engineer Had Hard Job Building Hotels in Algeria

As the French penetrate further and further southward into the Sahara, pacifying the roving Arab tribes as they go, hotels are being erected for the accommodation of Government officials, visiting Army officers, business men and the occasional venturesome tourist. The hotels had to be taken south, through the desert, in parcels. Each parcel weighed about 200 lbs., and was one camel-load. Caravan after caravan, travelling forty-five days through sands, brought to Timimoun, in the far south of Algeria, the many tons of windows, doors, glass, chins, linen, cutlery, furniture, electrical installation and other equipment needed for the local hotel. Neither foremen nor European laborers would agree to go there, so the place was built by French army engineers, who themselves had to trace in the sand the first outline of the building because the superstitious wild Arabs of the region feared The Evil Eye, and would not have anything to do with the work. They did consent to make the mud bricks, however, which form the walls, and to drag up to the site many camel-loads of the huge beams and "girder-work." The rest had to come in parcels. Even the ships of the desert were hard put to transport the material. They would not travel on even such good roads as were to be found south of Algiers, and had to be steered over soft sandy courses. Camels suffer from bad spells of foot soreness unless allowed soft tracks.

Madame Maistet Won Overnight Fame in Indo-China

Mme. Maistet, heroine of marine tradition, died recently at Lorient, France.

It was in 1910 Mme. Maistet (the translation of whose name is "Battle") leaped in one unexciting night to world fame, won the admiration of mariners the world over, and subsequently the Carnegie Medal for heroism and the Legion of Honor.

Times Have Changed

Back in the good old days a boy could go to a picnic and have a dandy good time on two bits. He would ride the merry-go-round a couple of times, drink a glass of red lemonade and spend the other dime for a ticket to the moving picture show. Times have changed. A boy of the same age in these fast-stepping times will spend at least $7.83, and honestly we believe he has as good a time as the boy who took a quarter with him for his day's expenditures at a picnic.

Ministry Of Transport Working To-ward Economy Basis

Within five years, it is predicted, the London dray horse will be re rare in London as to be regarded as a curiosity, the steeds of 25,000 being practically entirely free of horses. The Ministry of Transport is hastening this condition by plans to substitute horse-drawn traffic by a completely mechanized system, and some of these plans will be carried into effect shortly.

The busiest streets in London will be closed to horse-drawn traffic in the near future by regulations soon to be issued by the department. Already there is a device operating in Oxford street between certain hours. Later an edict will be issued that horse-drawn vehicles will not be allowed in London at all after a period of from three to five years.

Under existing traffic legislation, the Minister of Transport, Leslie Hore-Belisha, has power to put an end to traffic by horse in London's streets. His department, however, has no intention of driving horses from the streets until their owners have had fair warning.

Richardson Denounces False 40c Wheat Production Cost Figures Attributed To Him

Deliberate Attempt Made to Mislead Public Concerning James Richardson's Evidence Before Wheat Board Committee

ADVOCATES PROFITABLE PRICE TO FARMER

Certain farm agitators and propagandists have been attempting for some years to inflame the public mind against the Grain Trade and those associated with it. The methods have been to issue unfair propaganda and to place a false and unfounded interpretation upon the words and actions of those whose views differ from their own. A glaring example of the sort of misrepresentation referred to is cited below, and must meet with the strong disapproval of fair minded farmers in Western Canada.

Mr. James A. Richardson, President of James Richardson and Sons Limited, on June 21st and June 24th, 1935, appeared at Ottawa before a Special Committee of the House of Commons hearing representations in connection with the Canadian Wheat Board Bill.

Following presentation to the Committee of his statement covering various phases of the Canadian Grain Trade, Mr. Richardson was examined by the Prime Minister, the Right Honourable R. B. Bennett. In the course of this questioning a discussion took place concerning the cost of producing wheat in Western Canada. The evidence and examination of Mr. Richardson required some hours and occupied 45 printed pages of evidence containing more than 45,000 words. The price is from the viewpoint of the producer—the grain dealing with the distributor or cost of producing wheat reads as follows

Right Honourable R. B. Bennett—"Now, Mr. Richardson, how much do you think the farmer should be paid for his wheat to enable him to live? You have had a large experience in all branches of the business, how much should he get, and how to make a profit, but just to break even?

James A. Richardson — "Well, I have heard farmers say they had a fair crop of wheat and got 70 cents on the farm; they could get by, they would not be making any money, but they could get by all right."

Mr. Bennett—"Forty cents on the farm?"

Mr Richardson—"Yes"

Mr. Bennett—"In Alberta that would mean what price on the seaboard (in No. 1 Northern—you mean No. 1 or No. 2 at forty cents?"

Mr. Richardson—"Well, I would say the No. 1."

Mr. Bennett—"No. 1 at forty cents or the farm."

Mr. Richardson—"I suppose forty cents would apply in connection with all that he had."

Mr. Bennett—"I see what you mean Now, Mr. Richardson, that is the as what would the cost be to get the market for that sort of wheat, how much would you have to allow for freight?"

Mr. Richardson—"Well, 15 cents a bushel would be high, it would be a top freight."

Mr. Bennett—"That is the top freight isn't it?"

Mr. Richardson—"Yes, sir, 15 cents average freight."

Mr. Bennett—"Now that to the people in the country it should be 7 cents; you think that would be a satisfactory figure for the farmer?"

Mr. Richardson—"Yes, sir, I do not; I want to see the farmer get just as high a price as we could get for his wheat in the world's markets. I am not satisfied to indicate any price other than the best price we can possibly get for him."

Mr. Bennett—"I'm now what has been suggested by one of the witnesses is that the government should; a board should establish a minimum price and if wheat went below that price it should be subject to subsidy or assistance The Chairman of the board would have to arrive at a minimum price, and if the price established by supply and demand in the markets of the world went below that figure there should be some provision made by which the farmer would receive the difference. That is why I wanted to get from you some idea as to minimum price."

Mr. Richardson—"If you appoint the board, Mr. Chairman, in the fall of the year once the crop of the northern hemisphere is assured and we have the information on which to form a little more intelligent idea I would be glad to give my views, and I am sure everyone else in the grain trade will, as to what we would think that price ought to be. I certainly would not attempt to do it now before knowing what the crop of the northern hemisphere is going to be."

Mr. Bennett—"I thought probably that was in your mind and that was the reason I asked you what you regarded as a reasonable price to the farmer for his crop, that is produce it, leaving out for the moment the question of profit, and that you say is 40 cents?"

Mr. Richardson—"I do not say anything except that I have been told by good farm people who know the business."

Mr. Bennett — "You have had some dealings to do with them, haven't you?"

Mr. Richardson—"Yes."

Mr. Bennett—"My information is that you have received from them even, You have had a large experience in all branches of the business, how much should be paid, and how to make a profit, but just to break even?

Mr. Richardson—"Well, I would say the No. 1."

Mr. Bennett—"No. 1 at forty cents or the farm."

Mr. Richardson—"I suppose forty cents would apply in connection with all that he had."

Mr. Bennett—"I see what you mean Now, Mr. Richardson, that is the as what would the cost be to get the market for that sort of wheat, how much would you have to allow for freight?"

PREMIER TURNS CAMERAMAN

When after the first council meeting of the new cabinet, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett posed with four newly appointed ministers for a news reel taking picture, he displayed keen interest in the sound camera mechanism. "How does that gadget work" he asked and was promptly invited to try it for himself. Here is Mr. Bennett, his right glued to the view finder, trained on the Tower of Parliament buildings while the headpiece enable him to hear through the sound apparatus the chimes announcing the hour. Professional cameraman Roy Yeh is demonstrating. Note Mr. Bennett's hat on the grass beneath the tripod in other words, his hat is in the ring!

ISLAND HILL

Premier Aberhart is now in command of the militant little ship Alberta

Folks should not think that all will be plain sailing, heavy seas are ahead and perhaps some submerged rocks, so it behooves every supporter of the government to join a branch of the Social Credit League and keep the organization intact.

Here is a funny election story:- One voter here said he would not vote for Fallow because if a Social Credit Government got into power the only editor he would probably get a position at Parliament Buildings!

This gentleman paid us a distinct compliment without intending it

Well a Social Credit government is in power Fallow is a member of the Cabinet—and if dear old Editor Cousins does not look out he will lose a very competent reporter!

Everyone here is busy in the fields news is scarce, so we have to run it short (just like the wheat) this week

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

(This paper does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.)

Editor,
The Standard
Sir,

There was a public meeting held in the Legion Hall on Friday evening last when the address given at the United Church on Friday evening was against war and fascism was to be held under the auspices of the Canadian Legion. This was a gross misrepresentation as the Legion was not connected directly or indirectly with the holding of the meeting and it is the desire of Post 11 of the Legion that the people should be correctly informed.

Yours truly
C. S. Kirby

OBITUARY

A sadness was cast over the community at large on learning of the death of Miss Theo Sinne on August 21st. She had been in poor health for some time and life ebbed gradually away. God has taken to Himself a life which was of great value to many of us, but we, who are sorrowing her loss, may yet rejoice that she is at rest. Miss Sinne was born at Oshawa, Ontario and moved with her family to Islay twenty-two years ago. She will be greatly missed here where she took an active part in church work.

A private service was held in the home before the remains were taken to the church and there Anglican hymns of deceased, "I am Thine O Lord" and "Nearer my God to Thee" were sung. The services in home and church were conducted by Rev. R. H. MacPherson on Saturday, August 24th. Three hymns in the church service were "Tell me the Old, Old, Story" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

Left to mourn her loss are two sisters, Muriel and Gladys, and two brothers, Roy living south of Islay and Frank in Vancouver.

The pallbearers were A. Beecroft, W. McEachern, J. Miller, J. Fyfe, J. Carey and R. Gee.

Many beautiful floral offerings bespoke of the great esteem held for the deceased.

The sympathy of the community goes out to the sorrowing members of the family.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend sincere thanks to the many friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy extended in our recent bereavement of our beloved sister and housekeeper, and for the many floral offerings.

The Sinne Family, Islay

INCOME TAX PROBE EXPECTED TO YIELD RESULTS

London, Ont.—The Dominion government is conducting an income tax investigation which may bring the federal treasury several millions of dollars to tax arrears, it was disclosed here. The income tax department is probing unregistered shares of large Canadian industries, it was learned.

In its investigation the department expects to collect large sums of unpaid income taxes from many of Canada's wealthy men. The probe will go back for a period of from 15 to 20 years.

The investigation in this district is being conducted from the office of George Tambling, London district inspector of income tax. Disclosure of the investigation came shortly after the commissioner investigating the seven Spencer estates met here to officially wind up its work.

Commissioner John Cousins was appointed to investigate the estates of the family that pioneered in the oil industry. After a series of public sittings the care was settled.

Until recently there has been no check on the ownership of bearer share warrants or unregistered stock. It was said. Now, however, when coupons from such stocks are cashed at banks a certificate of ownership must be filed with them.

It was said the income tax department was using those certificates of ownership to carry on a Dominion-wide investigation.

When a certificate of ownership is filed with a dividend coupon the department will check back to see if the person filing the certificate reported income from the stock in the previous year. If not, he will be asked to explain why he didn't.

If he replies he did not own the stock in the previous year the income tax department asks from whom he obtained it. Then the previous owner will be checked to see if he declared his dividends on the stock in his income tax returns.

Each unregistered stock certificate is being checked back from year to year, and owners are being made to account for their income from the stock.

Officials said there will be no public inquiry into unregistered shares. The investigation is being carried on in district offices.

Express Rate Reductions

Lower Costs On Long Haul Shipments Now Effective

Montreal.—Rate reductions on long-haul heavy express shipments became effective over the lines of all railway express companies in Canada, Sept. 2, it was announced by the Canadian Traffic Association of Canada. The new rates are said to represent more than 20 per cent. reduction.

Some time ago express rates on packages 15 pounds and under were considerably reduced, but in order to take advantage of these rates shippers frequently found it necessary to split large shipments into small packages. This entailed an increase in packaging costs which are said to be removed now. The present reduced rates on packages 15 pounds and under will remain in effect.

Ontario Relief Payments

Toronto.—Relief sum payments to Ontario municipalities after September 1 when they will have to look after their own relief administration will be lump sum payments scaled according to the ability of the municipality to pay its own way and based on the number of persons on relief, Hon. High Price For Book

Half Million Asked For Copy of Laurence's Last Book

New York.—The highest price ever quoted on a book at publication will be found those who inquire next winter about "The Mint," by Aircraftsman Ross.

The price is $600,000 the copy.

Aircraftsman Ross is T. E. Shaw and T. E. Lawrence and "Lawrence of Arabia." He used the name Ross for a time in an effort to avoid publicity when he was with the air forces.

His critic-an of living men, of British institutions and of the profession of soldier and several other things are described by one who has seen the manuscript as so stringent that publication may not be had in England for many years, if ever. Lawrence wished it to be protected, but kept out of circulation.

So the book is to be set up and printed by Doubleday, Doran and Co. Two copies will be sent to Washington to secure copyright; 10 copies will be kept for sale. But it is not believed that there will be any takers at $600,000.

Commissioner John Cousins was appointed to investigate the estates of the family that pioneered in the oil industry. After a series of public sittings the care was settled.

Plan Brought Results

New York Relief Takers Prefer Work To Jail

New York.—New York's "work or go to jail" policy for relief recipients produced what an official called "amazing" results in its first test.

Applications were reported by observers to be taking works progress administration jobs at the rate of one a minute in some offices.

It appeared about 3,000 laborers had been removed from the relief rolls by the job the one day.

When relief offices opened a line of men and women awaited to take the $55-a-month relief jobs. Over the weekend they had read an edict that those who refused work would find no aid from relief and that, if they proved stubborn, be prosecuted for failure to support their families.

S. R. P. COOPER — EDITOR

Vermilion, Alta., Sept. 5, 1935.

Today, week's issue this paper has carried on Mayor Fallow, the new Social Credit member-elect to the Alberta legislature would be given a position in the Aberhart cabinet. Though away since Mr. Fallow has been greeted by his friends as Minister of Public Works. Rail Minister, Minister of Health, Minister of Agriculture, Minister of Lands and Mines, Minister of Education, Minister of Municipal Affairs, Minister of Trade and Commerce, Minister of Labour, Minister of Public Works, Railways and Telephones, and Minister of Health.

Well, some people still seem to forget that the only place it can get money is from the people.

Alberta's New Cabinet

The following constitutes the new cabinet for Alberta as sworn into office on Tuesday:

William Aberhart, B. A., Calgary—Premier, President of the Council and Minister of Education.

John W. Hugill, K. C., Calgary—Attorney-General.

E. C. Manning, Calgary—Provincial Secretary.

C. C. Ross, Calgary—Minister of Lands and Mines.

Charles Cockroft, Gladsby—Provincial Treasurer and Minister of Municipal Affairs.

Dr. W. W. Cross, Hanna—Minister of Health.

William N. Chant, Camrose—Minister of Agriculture, Trade and Commerce.

W. A. Fallow Vermilion—Minister of Public Works, Railways and Telephones.

A vote containing 87 individual signatures, addressed to the Hon. W. A. Fallow Edmonton, was despatched from here reading as follows: "Congratulations and no sincere wish for your success."

Win 56 Seats

With the returns all known, the Social Credit party takes office with a total of 56 out of 63 seats. Liberals have five and the Conservatives two.

Premier Hepburn of Ontario says [illegible] terrible today is that [illegible] is that they [illegible] sound simple human adding in the air ready baldly 'Unpaid Tax' column and getting nowhere. If the tax arrears appearing on the roll of the town of Vermilion were paid, we would go on easy street. Increased collections of revenue undoubtedly will be made under social credit, but these will be levied under an entirely different system which does not rank a farthing up to the individual and at the same time makes purchasing power or commodities at lower prices than it would today.

Premier Duplessis of Quebec says there will be another election in Alberta [illegible] Quebec. Why?

Eastern papers which have been freely commenting on the outcome of the recent provincial elections recently that flushed with their new found victory in practically sweeping Alberta, social credit-ers can carry practically every federal seat in the dominion elections. Canada's Canning Industry

Three Provinces Supply People With Fruits And Vegetables

The canning of fruits and vegetables is carried on most extensively in the provinces of Ontario, British Columbia and Quebec, where climatic conditions are favorable for the growing The principal fruits canned in Ontario are Apples pears, grapes, peaches, cherries, currants, gooseberries, blueberries, raspberri-s and strawberries In addition British Columbia has the apricot and loganberry The vegetables canned include Tomatoes, peas corn, beans beets, carrots pumpkin, squash, spinach and asparagus. The canning season begins in June and continues through the summer and autumn to end about October being at its height in July August and September

The pack in 1923 consisted of 3 301 275 cases of fruits and 4 331 542 cases of vegetables valued at $7 914 951 and $3 297 286, respectively. Of the canned vegetables packed, tomatoes rank first in the number of cases sold, 1 307 597 cases being with 1 048 796 cases coming next, followed in order by peas with 922 680 and corn with 401 504. Of the fruits canned, pears came first with 394 274 cases, followed by apples with 230 764 cases, peaches 161 615 and plums 136 716. His King's Medal

Indian Chief Proud of Present Given Him 150 Years Ago

Proudly displaying a medal given to the chief of his tribe 150 years ago by King George III, in recognition of their services to the British forces during the American Revolutionary war, Chief Sitting Eagle of the Pipestone Sioux, passed in Winnipeg for his picture recently.

"Chief," he was asked, "would your people reconsider taking the country back if it was offered to you." The chief became indignant. People, apparently, are always asking him to take the country back, and it's getting on his nerves.

"Ugh!" he grunted. "We had this country once, when it was in a lot better shape than it is now. Palefaces won it, and Indian slavery plays for keeps. You got it, you keep it; no exchanges can be made on this goods, thank you." he declared.

The chief wore a medal which he will hand on to his nephew when he goes to the happy hunting grounds; is no ordinary medal as it is rare. It is one of seven which were struck following the war, and given to the seven Nations of the Seven Nations. On one side is facsimile of the King and on the reverse side a picture of a lion and a wolf allied against an unseen foe

The Sioux at Pipestone are not natives of western Canada, but came to the prairie provinces from the United States. They do not come in for treaty money which the government pays every year to Canadian Indians.

Birthday Of Panama Canal

Waterway Was Opened To Traffic 21 Years Ago

The Panama Canal, which shortens the water course from New York to the Pacific coast by more than 8 000 miles, is 21 years of age on August 15. Since it was opened to traffic 21 years ago—Aug. 15, 1914—fulfilling the dream which led the Spanish to make engineering surveys as early as 1521, $394,566,620 in tolls has been paid for 42 873 passages of ships between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. The canal now has a capacity estimated at about 340 ships a day, although in the fiscal year ended June 30 the average number of daily transits was only about fifteen. The largest number of ships was less than eighteen in the peak year of 1923.

Dominion Tradewind

Of the late Bishop Anson, the following anecdote is told Whilst presiding over a certain conference in the West, a member began a tirade against universities and education, thanking God that he had never been corrupted by contact with a college After a few minutes, the bishop interrupted with the question "Do I understand that the brother thanks God for his ignorance?"

"Yes," was the answer. "you can put it that way if you want to"

"Well," said the bishop "all I have to say is that the brother has a good deal to thank God for"

ASSISTING NATURE

By Jack Miner.

During the past year I have read a number of articles both in magazines and in newspapers, as well as many letters that come to me, on the subject of "Nature's Balance," decrying actions or systems on the part of man which the writer described as 'Interfering with Nature," "Upsetting Nature's Balance," and so on. To all who adopt that attitude I should like to put myself on record to the effect that, personally, I believe the so-called "Balancing of Nature" was left entirely with man, and that I believe in assisting nature for the benefit of humanity. God created everything and then He created man "in His own likeness and gave him dominion over all," that is, as I understand it, the power and authority to manage everything here on earth.

Look, for instance, at the animal world, with the live-stock in the farmer's barnyard as example. God created the Jersey Cow, and Holstein, and the Hereford. No, the gave man the original stock and then God, through man's instrumentality, developed many breeds, some for the high cream content of milk, some to produce the greatest quantity of milk, and some as the best beef cattle All have been on earth a long time, of course; but their differences are the result of man's management and, remember, man has to interfere with Nature's every time.

Much the same thing is true of the Horse, different strains being cultivated for particular purposes, such as Clydesdales and Percherons for heavy draught work, and the blue-blooded descendants of original Arab stock for racing.

Recently I was in some of the southern States, where the character of the farm work to be done is necessary for the common ass, yet where the climate is too warm to permit of the horse doing its best. In that part of the continent, therefore, man has crossed the ass with our common horse and produced a beast that withstands the heat and is also strong enough to do the work of filling the silo. If, so, he has accomplished the mule. But the mule kicked and, for as I know, has gone on forever.

In poultry, if you trace back varieties, you will very soon see that man has been the work of man that has developed the different breeds, Leghorns, Plymouth Rocks, Wyandotte Rocks, and so on, some of which are especially valuable as layers, and others as food. Our much prized turkey is nothing more or less than the wild turkey, domesticated and improved.

Seventy-five years ago our Canadian north-west was grassed by millions of the wild buffalo. Then came the white man who, realizing the value of the fertile soil, established a park where a herd was placed to preserve the species from extinction, slaughtered the great remaining herds and turned the land upside-down, made it into one of the largest and most valuable of earth's great wheat fields, built towns and cities and stately governmental buildings dotted here and there across the vast expanse. Remember, though, that in order to bring about this state of things, man had to "Interfere with Nature", as some would call it.

And speaking of wheat-fields, wheat has been the favorite food for centuries. Yet wheat, even as it grows, is subject to diseases, to comparatively recent years, had certain weaknesses. It had to be planted in the fall and did not always survive the severity of the western winter, it was not productive, its maturation so seemed desirable and it did not mature rapidly enough always to escape the early autumn frosts. Then man, by crossing and selection Professor Charles Saunders, cerealist of Ottawa, and by study, experimentation and the rigid selection of choice grains, developed a wheat that could be planted in the spring, that would yield several bushels more per acre than had been the rule previously, that would mature within a certain period of time, and that yet retained all its former qualities. We have today Marquis wheat and the Garnet and other species of wheat, developed by man, God created the original, the germ; but man was given, and has used, the power to develop, manage and control it.

Or if you will look at the Irish potato, look at the Ira. God gave to us in America a little, insignificant tuber, possessing a rank flavor as of sirvasna, which we called, commonly, the "Spu". From it man has developed the fine tuber that grows three or four feet high, vaded in color, and possessing a an exquisite fragrance. But man had to interfere with Nature, and improve than. Or God created the Annual Bench Show? No. He gave man brains, and a little old wild Rose which served as the parent, so to speak. Today, through the efforts of outstanding botanists, man has been given the Crenlate Rose and fragrance, as the Crenlate intended should be.

But let us look at another side of the picture. Not only has God created the little wild rose, He created also the weed, typical of which is the Canada Thistle. Still he gave to man the brains and the means of controlling these thistles. They may be may be restrained from predominating by good plant work.

In your orchard are many varieties of fruit. Did God create the Starr Delicious, the Jonathan, the Northern Spy and other varieties? No. He gave man the little wild Crab Apple, and the Hawthorne, which is a miniature Crab Apple, and from these man has developed what we have today. Yet, according to some people's static ideas, if you fell the Apple trees and graft these fruit trees when they are small, you are "interfering with" or "upsetting Nature's balance".

If you are raising poultry, or other kind life, and have to begin to destroy and live on the birds, and you fail to do the climate is too warm to permit of the horse doing its best. In that part of the continent, therefore, man has crossed the ass with our common horse and produced a beast that withstands the heat and is also strong enough to do the work of filling the silo. Little Journeys In Science

ALUMINUM

(By Gordon H. Grant, M.A.)

Aluminum is a comparatively new industrial metal. Iron, copper, lead, tin, and the precious metals have been used by man for his betterment as a recent gift of science to industry. The industrial metals are all heavy substances, while aluminum is only about one third as heavy as iron. Iron, the chief structural metal of the [illegible] is about three times as heavy as aluminum is little affected by air or moisture.

The story of the discovery of an economical method for extracting aluminum from its ores is a most interesting one. A young American scientist, Charles Hall, decided that the decomposition of the ore by means of electricity was the best method to use. The [illegible] process of to-day is practically the same as the one devised by Hall in his woodshed in 1886.

Aluminum resembles tin in appearance and can be easily hammered into thin sheets. It is fairly hard and strong, being superior to most metals in these respects, although not so strong as iron. It is a good conductor of heat and electricity and many alloys are made from this metal.

The properties of aluminum, especially when it is made into alloys with certain metals, enable man to put it to a great variety of uses. Its lightness, strength, and resistance to corrosion make it a good metal for kinds of construction purposes that ranges from the manufacture of small implements of all kinds to an engine [illegible] pounds. In the construction of modern office buildings as much as 100,000 pounds of the metal has been used for such purposes as roofing, cornices, window frames, ornamental fittings, and even furniture. Gas tanks, street lamps, and the bodies and fittings of aluminum, and the automobile and aircraft industries absorb approximately one fifth of the total production of this new industrial metal. In a single year 21,000,000 pounds of this industry required over 21,000,000 pounds.

In a finely divided state, suspended in a liquid, aluminum is a fine protective paint for metal objects, such as steam pipes and radiators. It has also been used as a finish for cookers.

Aluminum finds an important use in the manufacture of thermite which has enormous heating power. Thermite consists of a mixture of iron oxide and aluminum powder and when ignited with a hot very good heat-producing mixture, which is certainly a great advantage

England Builds New Houses

Nearly Half Million Have Been Erected Since Armistice

Sir Kingsley Wood, minister of health, opening St. Dunstan's Gardens at Liverpool, England, said that more than 300 flats had been erected on the site of a former abattoir near the centre of the city. The first nine balconies had been provided on the front elevation to a number of living rooms and the building department afforded greater window area.

Since the armistice no fewer than 2,676,000 new houses had been built in England, said Sir Kingsley, and the capital cost involved and derived from the state, the local authorities and the private capitalists during that period amounted to $9,000 000,000.

Sir Kingsley declared that the policy of the ministry of health had not led to a lowering of housing standards, and that in future there was a crane for cheapness and an indifference to the quality of the houses provided.

Superstitious But Polite

Englishman Lack Sign Rather Than Appear Rude

The story was told at Saratoga a Arrowhead Inn of a Frenchman who was most superstitious, had taken over the bank at Monte Carlo King Edward entered the room, placed his foot on the rung of Zeigfeld's chair, and asked. "Do you mind if I watch?"

"Not at all, your Majesty," the producer replied. He then proceeded to drop $400,000. Not once during this session did the superstitious but polite Ziegfeld ask the ruler to remove his foot from the player's chair—considered a bad-luck sign by all gamblers.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gay, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costume for the coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all he had, and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Columbine, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions.

After much consideration Connie Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge.

Nancy sent out cute afternoon to look up at [illegible] so as to obtain a view of the surrounding landscape. Almost the path that Tubbs had told her to follow. A trunk comes down the road, driven by Matthew Adams, and she asks him which way to go. They [illegible] the hill, look around, and then go on to Cousin Columbine's. There [illegible] Adam tells Nancy that his brother Luke has broken his leg, and that Jack Hastings has been hired to help out while Luke's leg gets better. While Jack away, Nancy finds she is not lonesome, and having no books to speak of starting a circulating library at Pine Ridge seems a good idea, and Nance writes home to get her parents to send all the books they could spare and all they could induce others to do the same.

Nance and Matthew Adam go Christmas shopping in a neighboring town. On their return to Pine Ridge, Nance is amazed to see the Columbine house all lit up, and asks Matthew if he knows why. He said: Let's go and find out." Nance is alarms that she is having her debut, but in a different setting than had been planned for her in Boston.

Nancy's father Jack's driving has given their liberal support to his request for books, and a sizeable box arrived in due course. Nancy, after helping to get the library, and the Adam boys' wonderful gift, arranged the books and decorations to make the room look as attractive as

New Go On With The Story

To the natives of Pine Ridge the Aladdin Library seemed wonderful enough as it was, but the arrival of one of those blessed Adams had worked!" thought Nance with gratitude. Matthew Adam, who overheard it had thrown her a smile of appreciative understanding; while Adam's next indication of his delight with the appellation that he'd addressed her as Miss Aladdin ever since.

Nancy was pleased over with brown paper. They had had fun over it, too. Some of the work was done on winter evenings when Jack and the Adam boys had joined them, as well as a good-looking forest ranger who appeared at church one Sunday, and who seemed to appear at the National museum at frequent intervals ever since!

Mother Adam made and donated cretonne hangings for the windows. Matthew and Mark built the bookcases; and Nancy, who could do the whole room, made from lumber they "just found lying around the place," and stained and varnished them, and see their needs. But so many sick folks come and go that we take them to our hearts, and they are the shamed of myself. My wonder they call you Miss Aladdin!"

Steps sounded without, and Nance [illegible] was met yet two o'clock, but someone was coming. Then the door swung back to admit Mother Adam and Matthew Adam Luke who stood again now; and Jack was job hunting.

"Why, Jack!" asked Nancy, as the boys drew up two gay red chairs Matthew nodded

"Jack's another member seems to peeve by the misfortunes of others. Luke's broke a leg, and Jack gets his job! And now we have Uncle Tom Mather's lawyer, who has a ranch out on the plains), is down with flu along with two of his men, and Jack has gone to them out Mark's drawn the [illegible] number, and Jack's going back to the ranch! Isn't that a fine deal?"

"Well!" said Nance. "I'm sure to have Mark go, of course, but it's a splendid opportunity for Jack, and everybody else!"

"A lot of sympathy you have for Uncle Tom!" [illegible] Matthew

Laughed

"I was merely wondering how long the job would last. Time goes on rapidly; and some day we've got to turn our faces to the East, you know"

Jack said nothing, and suddenly Matt's color rose

"Why—you're not leaving us this spring, are you? I—I mean Miss Columbine said you'd stay a year."

"I know, but such a thought never entered our heads Matt. And now Dad's made another start I'm pretty sure they'll want us to come home! Not that I don't dread leaving Columbine. I'm awfully afraid she's going to miss us."

Jack, still silent, arose and went over to a window, Matthew sat looking into space. "Some—some of the rest of us will miss you too, Nance," he said surprisingly. "There's Mother to think of!"

Nance laughed outright, and asked, eyes lighted with merriment: "Why spoil a pretty speech like that, Matt'"

"Spoil it?"

Jack came back, grinning, and slumped into the cushioned chair.

"She means, old man, that this was no time to mention Mother! Honest, Nance, have we got to go home this spring?"

"You don't want to?" questioned his sister.

"Do you?" he countered.

The girl was silent, looking down at the toe of Matthew's boot. "I don't know, exactly," she said at last. "I'm strange to see every one of us, of course: though I'd rather stay here than go home this summer. But I wonder if Cousin Columbine won't miss us even more if we leave her in the fall, and [illegible] of year, you know; and she's getting old."

It was Matthew's turn to stand at the window, and look out. Jack stared at his sister in astonishment. Why he said over his shoulder: "You're going to leave a big hole in Pine Ridge if you go!"

"Well," observed Jack, "we haven't gone yet, fuller; and don't they tell us that it's better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all?"

He laughed, but Matt, still gazing [illegible] Pine Ridge, answered gravely. "Whoever wrote that bunk was feeble-minded," and added, moving forward the curtain and letters to break the hostile barriers of nature in a new land.—Hamilton Spectator.

The Anthony Eden Touch

London Bonmas Made German Passenger Feel At Home

Whether London Transport is aware of it or not, at least one of its staff possesses the Anthony Eden touch.

On a west-bound 19 bus a young German seated in front of me tendered his money with the word "Piccadilly." The conductor asked which end of Piccadilly he meant, but the passenger's English was limited to the one word "Piccadilly."

Thereupon the conductor broke into fluent German, and the man's face was illumined. The delighted passenger moved to a seat beside the conductor, and a long conversation, ranging with international amity, followed.

They parted with effusive and [illegible] farewells.—London Daily Sketch.

Egyptian Shorthand

Papers Recently Discovered Show System Many Centuries Old

Three pieces of ancient Egyptian "paper" were discovered not long ago. On them were marks which proved very interesting, for they were clearly a system of shorthand many centuries old. Actually these treasures dated from the third century B.C. and therefore could be looked about them, for there was a perfectly good longhand "translation" given on the shorthand sign. It was the last fact which made the documents most interesting, for it gave the key to the other manuscripts which until then had been mysteries that nobody was able to read.

Little Helps For This Week

The Lord shall give thee rest from thy sorrow and from thy fear, and from the hard bondage wherein thou wast made to serve . . . Isaiah 14:3.

Today beneath thy chastening eye, I strive alone for peace and rest; Submissive in Thy hand to lie, And feel that it is best.

O Lord, who art as a shadow of a great rock in a weary land, who beholdest Thy weak creatures weary of labor, weary of pleasure, weary of hope deferred, weary of self: in Thine abundant compassion and unutterable tenderness, bring us unto Thy rest.

Thou hast made us for Thyself and our heart is restless until it rests in Thee. Grant to us above all things that can be desired, to rest in Thee. Let us have our portion in Christ. Pour out the true peace of the heart. Then only its rest. In this very peace that is in Thee. In the one perfect Eternal Good, we will sleep and rest.

Demand For Maps

Search For New Mineral Deposits Calls For Detailed Information

A marked increase in the demand for maps, showing the inspectors, surveymen, foresters, engineers, and other classes, is reported by the Topographical Survey and Air Survey Branch of the Department of the Interior. During the last fiscal year 90,000 copies were distributed by the bureau, in comparison with approximately 70,000 during the preceding year.

The intensive search for new mineral deposits during the year was an important factor in the increase, while the desire of sportsmen to secure detailed maps of an area, when planning fishing, hunting or canoe trips, had a marked tendency to further increase the demand. The fact that a great many of the maps of the bureau are made from photographs taken from the air, thus ensuring a completeness of detail that does not prevail in the case of the older maps, also contributed to the increase.

A total of seventy-two maps of different districts throughout Canada in the course of preparation by the bureau and many of the areas being covered give promise of early mineral or oil development.

A catalogue of the 1000 or more maps at present available has been published and copies may be obtained, without charge, upon application to the Surveyor General, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

Paint Prices Sharply Reduced

A sharp reduction in the price of first quality house paint to $2.95 per gallon is announced by the manufacturers of some of Canada's best-known brands of paint the reduction to take effect immediately.

In making the announcement, the companies concerned state that the reduction is not justified by any change in market conditions or manufacturing costs. They point out how ever, that during the past few years many householders have been assisted by bargain prices into using interior paint with results that reacted unfavourably on the whole industry. Instead action was felt to be necessary to check a situation that seriously threatened property values all over the country.

The new low price is designed to make it easier for property owners to use first quality paint only, with resulting benefit to the property and to the community in general.

The companies announcing the reduction are Canada Paint, International Varnish, Martin-Senour and Sherwin-Williams.

The grain growers of Western Canada who have closely followed the wheat situation in Canada over the past few months will realize the advantage of having strong co-operative marketing organizations in the grain business.

OTTAWA Sept. 7—Wheat growers west of the Great Lakes today know they can get at least 87½ cents per bushel for their No. 1 Northern at Fort William or Port Arthur. Minister Bennett told them this in his campaign-opening national radio broadcast from the capital on Saturday.

The Prime Ministers added that the Wheat Board would be fully competent and pay not what at the minimum price in about ten days in the meantime, farmers wishing to deliver wheat to the Board should protect themselves by taking storage tickets from elevator companies which can later be exchanged for tickets on the basis of the prices and certificates entitling them participate in any surplus arising out of the operations of the Board at the end of the crop year.

Under Canada's new wheat marketing system, set up by the formation of the Canadian Wheat Board, farmers will be free to sell their grain or to accept this minimum price. May Re-open Schools On Monday Next

Provided No Further Cases of Poliomyelitis Develop

With the recent outbreak of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) confined to two cases in the town and three in the immediate district of Vermilion, the public and high schools of the town will probably re-open on Monday, Sept. 16th, Dr. W. W. Bell, medical health officer, stated to The Standard on Monday this week. This is, of course, providing no further cases of the disease develop in the meantime. The ban imposed on children eighteen years of age and under from attending public gatherings, churches, theatres, etc. will in all likelihood be lifted the end of the week. The cases of poliomyelitis reported are now in the convalescent stage, and the two in town are not expected to result in any permanent paralysis.

The urgency of reporting any suspected cases of paralysis is evident, for while about 70% of these may not develop beyond the head cold and sore neck stage, the remaining 30% will progress to the paralytic stage unless treated in time. Of these but few, the great majority can be spared the terrible results of paralysis if treated in time with the serum provided by the provincial government, which, even in the severest cases will check the paralytic results by 95 per cent to 98%.

School of Agriculture To Open October 22nd

Public Organizations Asked To Co-operate in Having Students Register

October 22nd is the day set for the opening of the V. S. A. It is hard to say just now what the registration will be. Of the 127 first year boys and girls, some 93 signed applications in the spring signifying their intention to return. There may be a shrinkage to this number due to some adverse crop conditions, but we have hopes that our second year will be just as large as usual.

Of the first year it is early to say, but already some 54 applications are on hand and we would anticipate that practically all these being received will be fairly sure of coming so that there are nearly 100 students in early at present.

No wonder if the good people of Vermilion would undertake to board for the school as was done last year.

A year ago we believe every one assisting in town was doing his bit. The Vermilion Standard, and Board of Trade assisted materially, as did Mr. Price, who took ads on the screen for weeks ahead. This is a much harder year to register students and practically the reason it will require a little extra effort if we are to register up to last year and of course nothing short of that should be accepted.

We are sure that all citizens will the best of the opening of the school a year ago both in a social and a material way and some of you may see the attendance slackens.

We will be asking you each to help in this way. Send some parents and young people as well write one letter to some friend or relative telling them all the fine things Vermilion offers. Tell them of the school. We are attaching to this notice points that may help to answer a good many questions that may be in mind. These points should be typed from one copy to the other and enclosed with the letter. You can see together the better and a united effort on the part of all Vermilion citizens would have this way.

I am sure if you would [illegible] to take their planning such [illegible] the V. S. A. echo on that line we may be sure [illegible]

Democracy And Liberty

Liberty, says Mr. Stanley Baldwin, is rooted in the English character and fostered and maintained by institutions which also have grown out of that character. That liberty is embodied in the parliamentary system which to the result of the obstinate determination of the English people to manage their own affairs individually, their own affairs, Mr. Baldwin says that system has grown out of the common sense and good nature of the people, who prefer elections to street fighting, and talking shop to revolutionary brimstone. The English, above all other peoples, have made a success of democracy and that success has been planted in the Overseas Dominions. The reason for this is adduced by The London Times as being a refusal to "swear our fetters in our souls." That freedom is the breath of democracy which protects the people from domination by one side or the other through the expression of opinion in the ballot box it is, as The Times says, "the translation into action of our instinctive determination to resist any form of tyranny that has from time to time preserved us."

Mr. Baldwin reiterates that the prize of liberty is eternal vigilance, and the more so in a democracy which is the most difficult form of government, and, therefore, the most worthy of giving our lives to make it a success. Thus Great Britain is has the mention that it is not enough to sit with folded arms and believe that she has solved the problem of government for all time. Tyranny takes many forms. It is constantly raising its head. One way of propaganda it has devised is to constantly bemoan that democracy has failed. According to Mr Baldwin, it is the form of government which has won more triumphs than any other, and, therefore, should be cherished and cultivated as the finest past. Self-government, which is democracy, has maintained in developing forms in England for eight centuries. No one is going to be able to tear it from its roots, which are laid in the English character.

When we review the history of this North American continent, we find that the struggle for liberty has not ceased from the world since the Pilgrim Fathers left the old world in order that they might enjoy that religious liberty denied to them at home. The original American colonies revolted because self-government was denied them, and taxation imposed on them without their consent. The American Civil War was a life and death struggle for liberty. One long fight followed another in pre-Confederation days to win liberty and the rights of responsible government in Canada.

In the earlier days of the world's history, liberty could only be gradually won through bloodshed and death on the battlefield. Today it can only be retained and expanded through democratic forms of government, and by stern resistance to all movements, however subtle and apparently innocent, which tend to restrict the liberties of the people, and of individuals who in the aggregate are the people and the State

Why have the people of Great Britain, United States and Canada laid such stress on individual liberty, and been willing to sacrifice all else in order to achieve it? The answer is, of course, that liberty is the greatest thing in life, and without it life is not worth the living. A slave may enjoy health and security, but lacking his God-given right of liberty he is denied that which is supremely greater, contentment and happiness

It is not to be forgotten, too, that it is only in those countries where full and free democratic forms of government exist that liberty remains the priceless possession of the people. Yet we find in certain countries, where the people became lax in defence of their liberties, those very democratic forms were first utilized by would-be dictators to later deprive them of their liberties And all over North America today there are organized groups employing the very liberty which democracy has conferred upon them, to overthrow and destroy democracy.

It is necessary, therefore, for all people who prize liberty to be on their guard and resist every attempt, however veiled it may be, which is designed to restrict the liberty of Dominions or others in the smallest degree. Liberty once lost may be extremely hard to win back again

New Method Of Training For Youth In Penitentiaries

A system of training youthful delinquents similar to the Borstal system in the United Kingdom will be established in one of the penal institutions of Canada, Sept. 1, it was learned at Ottawa. Within four years it is hoped to develop plans whereby the whole Dominion so far as Borstal training is concerned.

It was given out this week that for every 10 years of experimentation in Borstal training carried on by the United Kingdom, we shall be able to evolve a satisfactory system," declared one high government official "The Borstal system has been in vogue in Great Britain for 60 years, the new methods are continuing to emerge."

In Canada's penitentiaries there were 221 young men between the ages of 16 and 21 It is with a proportion of these that the training system will start.

Wife: "I'm afraid you're right. Even you are a little cracked."

Paying Their Way

Dionne Babies Contribute Indirectly To Revenue For Ontario

If the five little Dionne girls have anything about such things as tourist traffic, gasoline taxes and the revenues of trade, they might prove themselves on their combined birthday business and to the treasury of Ontario out of all proportion to what is expected of them.

It has been estimated that the thousands of visitors to Callander are paying approximately $12,000 a month in gasoline taxes to the province. The crowds who are the Dionne quintuplets' average one thousand a day. Tourist traffic into the North Bay district has increased nearly forty per cent. creating an evident prosperity that reaches out to hotels, other purveyors and tradesmen of all kinds

The five little girls are more than paying their way, and are returning to the province substantial dividends on the sympathy and public sentiment that was so generously and sympathy rendered in the first thrilling months of their young lives

They are also supporting twenty nurses, according to a report from Callander: their parents, three nurses, two servants and another, the local nurse for their father, a coal, two orderlies, two special constables, three men to direct traffic, two hostesses and Dr. Dafoe.

To their famous physician they doubtless owe more than they can ever repay, but the province and Sheyy occupy a charming and cheerful position of independence in the sponsored by the Ontario Government in the world and financial asset to Ontario. Thousands of men and families are united in their praise of the Government from the straitened provincial treasury to which five year-old babies are indirectly contributing substantially, such appreciable sums as $12,000 in gasoline taxes alone.

Only Way To Interest China In Canadian Products

China, and particularly southern China, offers a huge though comparatively untapped field of opportunity to Canadian industry, Mrs. Beatrice Thompson, director of the advertising and publicity bureau of Hong Kong, China, and Malaya, declared at Montreal. She is visiting Canada's largest centres in connection with the proposed British Empire and China trade fair, scheduled for December, 1936, at Hong Kong.

She said foodstuffs in particular are in demand and estimated the potential consumption of imported butter at 13,000 tons annually, with condensed milk second in order. The sale of tinned milk and other foods.

"There is only one way to interest China's consumer in your goods," Mrs. Thompson continued. "Let them see your products for themselves Merely to have goods travel overseas and send out a commission on a brief visit is to court the same failure and lack of results that have been experienced in the past by other parts of the empire"

Lady Haig's Book

Interim Interdict Is Granted Against Publication

An interim interdict was granted against the publication of Lady Haig's book: "The Man I Knew."

The interdict was decided to withhold the book in consequence of an action on the grounds that parts of the book infringed the copyright of the trustees in the diaries of the late Field Marshal Earl Haig. Publication of the diaries, it was contended, was likely to be detrimentally affected and cause loss to the Haig estate.

The action records the purchase of diary-writing propensities of Haig. It was stated his personal record aggregated 1,750,000 words, often in duplicate. A carbon copy was always sent to his wife.

Lady Haig's object in writing the book was largely to vindicate her husband against an attack in the recently-published memoirs of Lloyd George.

Exhibit From Britain

Port Of London Authority Had Space At Toronto Exhibition

The Port of London Authority took space at the 57th Canadian National exhibition which opened at Toronto on August 28 and staged an exhibit representing the facilities provided in the Port of London to serve the great London market. The international character of London's commerce was emphasized by large-scale diorama and mechanical devices illustrated the continuous flow of shipping in and out of the port.

The port authority has provided special facilities for dealing with Canadian trade, particularly at the Surrey commercial docks, and the trade has shown a marked increase during the last year or two. In a brochure specially prepared for the exhibition it is stated that "Canada wants to send more of her products and manufactures to Great Britain; yet many Canadians do not at present realize that London is Great Britain's premier port and serves Great Britain's greatest market. London provides the wealthiest and largest market for Canadian trade; the Port of London is the natural and obvious gateway to that market."

MORE SUPPORT FOR RAILWAYS SAID VITAL NECESSITY

Toronto—The Canadian public was asked to support its railways or entertain the eventuality of a skeleton-head service from Halifax to Vancouver.

D. C. Coleman, senior vice-president of the Canadian Pacific railways, told an audience of transportation officials and commercial executives, at the Canadian National exhibition, the railroads of Canada were approaching a crisis and forestall an impending announcement of policy before the close of the present year.

"We have failed to realize the importance of railways in our national life," said Mr. Coleman. "We have endeavored by every means at our disposal to divert traffic from the railways. We have subsidized trunk lines, air traffic and built magnificent highways, all of which decreased the revenue of the railways."

The speaker declared many persons criticized the railways for not replacing their equipment, pointing up of service and following the streamline trend popular in the United States.

"Is it reasonable to expect the Canadian railways with an outlay of more than $600,000,000 to risk much to replace this at added expense in a time of shrinking revenues?" Mr. Coleman asked.

The railway official declared the trans-Canada highway, or a trans-Canada air service would not replace the railways.

"Canadian railways freight rates are the lowest in the world, except timber and general freight are transported long distances at rates below those of the United States."

Mr. Coleman declared passenger revenues of Canadian railways decreased 55 per cent. in the last five years and that the public support was afforded the railways, further curtailment of service would be necessary.

Postpone Inquiry

Gasoline And Motor Car Probe Continues After General Election

Ottawa.—The tariff board will postpone further hearings in the gasoline and motor car inquiries until after the general election, it was learned. The board is said to take the view politicians might use statements made in the hearings in a manner to bring that body into political controversy if the public inquiry proceeded during the campaign.

Another reason for postponement is the fact it would be impossible to complete the hearings before the election and this might react in the voting public to the interruption which had not had an opportunity to present their side of the argument.

BRITISH LABOR GIVES SUPPORT TO THE LEAGUE

Margate, England.—British labor showed itself overwhelmingly behind any move to block Italy's aggressive intentions toward Ethiopia.

The Trades Union Congress decided, on a card vote of 2,785,000 to 177,000, in favor of a resolution calling on the government to back the league covenant to the utmost, by armed force if necessary.

The vote followed an impassioned plea by Sir Walter Citrine, secretary general of the congress, to keep "the Italian bully" from crushing Ethiopia.

The word 'sanctions' means penalties and punishments," Sir Walter said. "The Italian government does not want conciliation; it wants conquest. We must do something to restrain the Italian bully. There's only one way to deal with a bully, and that's by the use of force."

Thunderous applause greeted the secretary's speech, made during preliminary discussion of the resolution.

The resolution demanded that the league council take "all necessary measures provided by the covenant to prevent Italy's unjust and unprovoked attack upon the territory of a fellow member of the league."

The congress, added, "pledges its firm support of any action consistent with the principles and statutes of the league to maintain the Italian government and to uphold the authority of the league in enforcing peace."

Bottom centre is a view of the Prophetic Bible Institute at Calgary, of which Mr Aberhart is the leader It was in the institute that the Social Credit system was born.

ANTHONY EDEN MAKES NOTABLE SPEECH AT LEAGUE

Geneva.—Anthony Eden, Britain's minister for league affairs, opened the session with a strong and earnest plea for maintenance of the league in both letter and spirit. The scene was dramatic in the extreme.

Eden emphasized Britain was ready to do everything in her power to secure a peaceful settlement.

"In these post-war years," said the British delegate, "the nations have striven laboriously and sincerely, with a measure of success, to create a new international order which shall henceforth spare mankind the scourge of war They make the attempt because they have learnt at long last the bitter lesson that war is a constant enemy of progress

"That is why they pledged themselves in the pact of Paris to renounce war as an instrument of national policy.

"It is because his majesty's government in accord with the views of the British nation as members of the league, because they are prepared to fulfil their share of such responsibilities as I think I can assure my colleagues of our most whole-hearted co-operation in the difficult task that confronts us all

"I am sure that all of us, as members of the council, must be fully aware of our responsibilities at this time. World opinion is watching us The league has not a few successes to its credit, even in the short years it has lived, such a brief span in human history. Yet we all know we cannot fail to know, and this is not the time to blind ourselves to the truth, that if in the judgment of world opinion the league fails in this dispute its authority for the future will be grievously shaken, its influence gravely impaired.

"The collapse of the league and the new international order for which it stands would be a world calamity

"I need hardly repeat on this occasion that there is in this dispute between Italy and Ethiopia no question of any political or economic conflict between the United Kingdom and Italy.

"The specific interests of Britain in Ethiopia have been explicitly recognized by Italy, and his majesty's government are under no apprehension that they will not continue to be respected as they have been in the past"

The role concern of his majesty's government in this dispute is as a member of the league and a country to the pact of Paris. In the position in which we find ourselves the success of the task which lies before us is plain

"It is our duty to use the machinery of the league that lies to our hand Let us set it to work forthwith, and if we obtain loyal collaboration in the efforts undertaken for administration be the league

"The Italian government holds to the conception that a state like Ethiopia cannot have either equality of rights or equality of duties with civilized states If such equality is granted to her and above all if in granting it credit is given to Ethiopia for the future these are not sufficient motives to permit the league to perpetuate and to propagate other members an error that was committed in good faith in 1923 when Ethiopia was admitted to the league with Italian support"

Hon. E. C. Manning acting premier at 26 and provincial secretary for Alberta is the youngest minister in Canada's history. He is described by those who know as "A young man on the way". His short political career has already been compared to that of William Pitt, who at the age of 24, assumed the mantle of prime minister of Great Britain. The new provincial secretary is described as "neither flippant nor insincere". He is a crusader—not the least bit fanatical who believes that Christianity should go hand in hand with politics in life and who, at the same time, is eager to institute the aggressive policies that his party supports".

This week has received a considerable fillip owing to the announcement that the Alberta Government is to distribute seed, which cannot be sold by druggists in the form of a white powder. As a precaution, however, somewhat poison is to be taken to prevent children or domestic pets from making away with it.

The most satisfactory material on hand for destroying smut, under the conditions, appears to be formalin, and it can be sold by druggists in the form of a white powder. As a precaution, however, somewhat poison is to be taken to prevent children or domestic pets from making away with it.

GIROUX MAJORITY 479 IN GROUARD

Delayed Official Return Received From Northern Riding

L. A. Giroux, Liberal, was declared officially elected for Grouard constituency on Tuesday by R. F. Field, returning officer, of Spirit Hill, Alta. The majority was 479 over all others on the first count. Grouard is the last constituency to report and delay was due to the fact that two ballot boxes had not been returned from Wabasca. Mr. Giroux was Liberal whip in the last house.

The Dual Economic System

(From Wheat Pool Budget)

Across the gap of the past dozen years there is a phase which has rendered endless repetition in Western Canada. That phrase is "The law of supply and demand."

It would appear that the cause and use of this phrase is calculated to burn into the minds and consciousness of Western Canadian farmers the idea that they must submit to an all-powerful decree. It is supposed to instil-late in the manner of the attitude of masters to slaves in medieval times; of the coy and gallant mobility of France to the gratify and starved French peasant of pre-revolution days; of the hard masters of industrial England in the "hungry forties."

Dr. Pan, the brilliant Oxford economist, who spent a term on the staff of the University of Toronto, exploded the theory involved in the law of supply and demand as impracticable in modern days, when, in 1930, he pointed out that big business enforcing habitually flouted this law, and said that modern industrial life could not and would not function under it. Chaos would result, he said, if any attempt was made to permit the law of supply and demand to operate freely.

Dr. Gardiner C. Means recently presented a report to the United States Senate, showing how great corporations can evade the law of supply and demand. The title of this report is "Industrial Prices and their Relative Inflexibility."

Big industries do not cut prices to encourage demand; they cut production, closing plants or operating them on part time. On the contrary, the farmers struggle to increase their acreage to grow more food to increase their income, and the more they grow the less they get.

The great corporations can defy the law of supply and demand by keeping up prices and cutting down supply. Farmers have not been follows ing such an example, and consequently their industry is bankrupted, is dependent on the bounty of the State.

In the sessions of the Federal Control Committee considering the Wheat Board Bill, every opponent of this bill talked incessantly of the need of wheat farmers to subject themselves to the law of supply and demand, in order that they might bring about their economic salvation.

The tone of all expert writers in Canadian financial business papers, sneers at and upbraids the Wheat Pools and farmer organizations in their struggles to improve the economic situation of the western farmers. They all say that all efforts are hopeless and that the law of supply and demand must prevail. No they want two economic systems, one for big business with restriction on production and maintenance of prices and one for farmers requiring unlimited production no matter what the price.

Can agriculture function under such a dual system of economy? These are questions that positively must be answered sooner or later

PITY THE POOR TAXPAYER! HE PAYS EVERY MOMENT

Governments Get Monthly When He Eats, Drinks, Sleeps

AND SMOKES, TOO

Groggy Now, He Might Receive More Taxes Still

(Edmonton Journal)

Broadening of the municipal tax base is one of the major problems affecting the civic administration.

So far discussion in the council chamber has been largely limited to new revenue possibilities to lighten the load on real estate and some of the proposals have been a renters' tax a parking tax and levying on a per cent. percentage on caretakers in rooming houses nothing jobs with in the city but escaping municipal taxes in living outside and other purposes.

The real genius in our government is seen by an examination of various taxes now in force and a little thought will convince any fair minded taxpayer that Mr. and Mrs. John Tax have more than enough with which to labour and that governments can't climb it once they can take it

A Taxpayers' Day

Take a day in the life of Mr. T. E. Citizen. The "T. E." stands for Typical Edmonton.

He awakens in the morning in a home for which he rents. If an owner he has a very stiff real estate bill to pay. If in a good chance he pays for same in instalments.

He takes a shower or bath on which water rates are paid. Suction for a public-owned public is another word for tax.

He dresses in a usual attire the clothing of which has included a sales tax.

He sits down to his morning coffee and rolls in a couple of lumps three taxes here: water rate, coffee duty and sugar tax. He observes the furniture in his home and thinks of all the sales taxes he must have paid on it.

He leaves the house to get into his motor car and walks into a perfect embodiment of taxes. If he lets the thing prey on his mind he can hear the very engine humming "taxes, taxes, taxes." Original taxes have made the rest of his car about as like what the same type would sell for in the United States.

He pays a tax for oil to the tubes and other accessories. He pays for a driver's license and a motor vehicle license tax. But not least, he pays a six cents tax for every gallon of gasoline he uses.

Taxation Nightmare

He arrives at his place of business and runs into more taxes—business tax, licenses, real estate tax, income taxes, etc. etc. He writes a few cheques and pays a tax on each one of them. He transacts a few deals and pays transfer tax, registration fees and every other form of levy he can think of.

He has a telephone and pays a tax on it. He has a wife and pays a tax on her. He has children and pays a tax on them.

He has a dog and pays a tax on it. He has a cat and pays a tax on it. He has a bicycle and pays a tax on it.

Miners' Strike Threatened

British Miners Are Dissatisfied With Wages And Working Conditions

A national miners' strike will be declared in Great Britain if demands for higher wages and better working conditions are not met, Ebenezer Edwards, secretary of the Miners' Federation, declared in a manifesto in London. The executive asked the public to help the miners to avoid a crisis.

"The hour has struck," it said. "After years of patient submission to conditions fit for slaves, the miners have decided to enforce their demands for the payment of reasonable wages. Their wages are a shame for a civilized community."

Fate Of The Stowaway

Not As Severe Now As In The Olden Days

The fate of a stowaway in the "good old days" was summary and severe. He could have little doubt as to what he would get—an introduction to the rope's end, and a voyage of slavery in working his passage.

To-day the stowaway meets with a far more pleasant reception. Repeatedly such people are discovered before the ship leaves port and handed over to the authorities on shore. Nevertheless, now there are who manage to elude observation until the vessel they have chosen is well at sea.

It is practically impossible to land undetected at the ports of any civilized country, even could stowaways remain concealed for a whole voyage.

Today the life of a stowaway is still fraught with danger. Examples have occurred of men trapped like rats by the shifting of cargo, or suffocated through lack of ventilation

The Great Eastern, that' wonder ship of the reign of Queen Victoria, carried a grim secret below the waterline all the days of her seafaring life From her very first voyage to her last she carried an inadvertent stowaway -the body of a dead man— but the fact was never discovered until she reached the shipbreaker's yard. Then the skeleton was found in her hold, and proved to be that of a workman who had been engaged in her construction.

A curious stowaway story is told by Captain John Attwood, her injust retired after nearly 47 years at sea. His last command was the Union-Castle liner Balmoral Castle.

When the second officer of the Goth in 1901 he found an escaped Boer prisoner who was six feet three inches tall hiding in the main space, as containing "curios," and measuring less than five feet in length.

This interesting young man consigned to an eminent officer of the Buffs (East Kent Regiment), and the best he could do was to send the museum on the island of St. Helena.

During the last war vigilance at all ports was so great that the museums on the island of St. Helena.

Money Cure In Germany

Per Capita Distribution Is One To Every 75 Persons

Although Germany in the early days of the industry was an important producer of automobiles, and still produces and exports far more than Canada, it has fewer motor vehicles in use by a couple of hundred thousand than this country. According to Paul Sykes, Canadian trade commissioner in Hamburg, a survey showed 800,000 passenger and commercial motor vehicles in use throughout Germany in 1934. The per capita distribution was on e baste of one to every 75 persons. In Canada it is about one to nine persons, and in the United States about one to five.

Germany would therefore appear to be a long way from the saturation point, and a wonderful market for cars is awaiting manufacturers at home or abroad. Evidently it will be for German manufacturers, and they ought to do pretty well out of it, under the trade regulations set up. In Canada we think the tariff pretty high, but Mr. Sykes summarizes the German situation as follows:

"The import duty amounts, in the case of a medium-weight car or whatever price, to from 1800 to 2000 (Canadian currency) per unit. Also, it has now become difficult, and at times impossible for motor car agents to obtain import permits or to complete payment for such purchases of foreign goods."

China Has Sea Monster

Creature Said To Resemble Man And Eats Human Meat

Inhabitants of the Amoy coast, China, have been terrified by reports of a sea monster with a "big appetite and a partiality for human flesh.

The world's latest marine terror bears little resemblance to the famous sea serpents of British Columbia and Scotland. The Amoy monster is said to closely resemble a man when seen from afar although no one has been known to obtain an accurate description of the creature

The monster is modestly clad in long black hair and is reported amphibious. Apparently it does not possess the long sinuous body and camel-like head attributed to the speculative fur the Dominion on the Executive Board.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SEPTEMBER 15

DEMOTIVE
(A Christian Worker In Training)

Golden text: Give diligence to present thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, handling aright the word of truth. II. Timothy 2:15.

Lesson: II. Timothy, Chapter 1. Devotional reading: I. Timothy 6:11-16.

Explanations And Comments

Exhortations, verses 6-14. At his ordination by the laying on of hands, Timothy received the gift of God; this, Paul recalls to Timothy's mind and bids him stir up the gift—as one would the embers of a fire which are in danger of dying out. He must exercise his gift — that spiritual equipment which has been given him for pastoral service—in order to increase it; it is a question of use or lose.

Paul urges Timothy to put away fear, timidity, and to assert the power and love and discipline which come from God.

So do not be ashamed to testify to our Lord, and do not be ashamed of a prisoner of the Lord like me; join me in bearing suffering for the gospel by the power of the God who has saved us and called us to a life of consecration—not for anything we have done but because he chose to do it himself, by the grace which he gave us ages ago in Christ Jesus and had now revealed in the appearance of our Saviour Christ Jesus, who has put down death and brought life and immortality to life (Moffatt's translation).

Model yourself on the sound instruction you have had from me in the faith and love of Christ Jesus. Keep the great securities of your faith and life, by the help of the Holy spirit that dwells within us (Moffatt's translation).

Health Probe

Appointment Of Commission Will Be Made This Fall

Action in regard to appointment of the royal commission on health approved some months ago at the Dominion-provincial health conference held in Ottawa will not be taken until the fall, Col. the Hon. D. M. Sutherland, minister of national health, said. The whole subject was one of such extreme importance that it could not be rushed, the minister added.

Much preliminary work had to be done in the way of consulting the various bodies concerned, doctors, nurses, dentists, druggists, labor, agricultural and financial. These, said the minister, will have to be co-related in order to get "preliminary action" before definite steps towards instituting the inquiry can be made.

Sharing The Worry

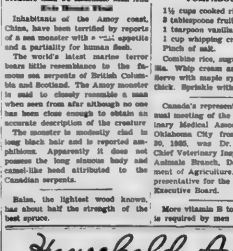
The bride of a few weeks noticed that her husband was depressed.

"Gerald, dearest," she said, "I know something is troubling you, and I want you to tell me what it is; your worries are not your worries now, they are our worries."

"Oh, very well," he said. "We've just had a letter from a girl in New York and she's suing us for breach of promise."

Keeps Eye On Speed

Although the royal chauffeur rarely steps on the gas when driving his monarch around, King George V, nevertheless has a duplicate speedometer built in the back of his car so he can keep a cautious eye on their speed



PATTERN 5156

Don't long for heirlooms— make them yourself! Just by repeating this simple crocheted medallion you can fashion a bedspread that will be a priceless joy to yourself, and the prized possession of your children. The popcorns in this design are worked on a mesh crochet, giving them added contrast as well as speeding up the work a bit. You can make a lovely cushion of it, too, the richness of the design making it especially suited for this.

In pattern 5156 you will find detailed instructions for the stitches required for crocheting the medallion and joining it to make a variety of articles.

To obtain this pattern send 20 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Dept., Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave. E., Winnipeg.

Soldier Settlers of Millet District Hold Annual Picnic

Millet Alta.—A very successful picnic of the soldier settlers of Millet, Brightview and Michigan districts was held recently under the auspices of the Soldier Settlers' Union, with the provincial secretary in charge. The picnic was held in the ideal surroundings of the Eaglevale tourist camp, three miles south of town. Sports were held and later the men folk were addressed by Mr E. T. Neil of Labor, executive member, and Mr. J. E. Ore of Millet, provincial secretary. The women and children enjoyed games, many family and their basket luncheon, and large quantities of coffee and tea were made on the grounds.

It was regretted that the provincial president, Col. W. A. Rogers of Chipman, could not be present as he was obliged to leave for Vancouver on business The committee took forward to repeating the picnic next year and hope to swell the number from 60 settlers to 140

Chinese Spent Last Coin For Purchase That Brought Wealth

A poor Chinese who made a little red satin pillow with his last coin—because he thought his wife would like it—found that his purchase had brought him a fortune. The lucky man, Chen Tzug-ngoh, had borrowed the money to pay the local broker-law when he met a destitute Russian who offered him the pillow. He knew his wife would be delighted with the marvellous embroidery and paid over his last dollar. But when he reached home he was told that to tell how he had "wasted" the borrowed dollar. So he lay down, with his head on the pillow, to sleep off his sorrow. But the pillow was so uncomfortable that Chen became irritated and began to rip out the embroidery. Shortly after even greater beauty was revealed and he went on tearing off successive layers of satin. Finally he came to cotton wool. It contained 49 pearls of great beauty and size. Now Chen is richer by £3,867 than he obtained for the pearls. The pillow is said to have been lost by the Emperor Dowager Tzu Hsi during the house rioter when she fled from Peiping She subsequently offered a huge reward for its return, but the whereabouts remained a mystery until Chen solved it.

OLD FASHIONED ROUND CELLS

MODERN LAYER CONSTRUCTION

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gay, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no more ingrained idea of how to earn her living than a choice of her costumes for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the midst of the gaiety, a disagreet father loses all he had, and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Chile, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions.

After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge.

Nancy rel ent ed at once at the climb to the top of a hill so as to obtain a view of the surrounding landscape and misses the path Aurora Tribbs had told her to take. A truck comes along the road, driven by Matthew Adams, and she asks him which way to go. They recognize that Cousin Columbine's father was a friend of Matthew Adam pointed out), viewed things that were part of the history of the town. Not only this romantic full old tree could tell! Why, it had stood here in silence and watched that Indian and his boy approach the lonely cabin where a small Columbine was rapturously enjoying her first Christmas tree! Did it tug at its sturdy roots in an effort to send forth a warning? mused Nancy whimsically; and then said aloud:

"But I'd never have had these thoughts if Matt hadn't put them into my head, perhaps. He's a queer boy—Matt Adam—an awfully shy most of the time, and such a rid when he forgets himself. I never saw any one just like him. Mark's bright as a dollar, and one can see he's perfectly grand times with him; but there are days when I like his brother even more. Somehow Matt makes you want to protect him, he's so sensitive. And is that Tuz the night of my—"

Nance started, blushing as red as over the approaching Matthew had. He smiled and apologized: "Sorry I scared you. Thought maybe you were the truck bumping along the road down there. I caught a glimpse of an orange tam and made a guess that you'd be under it. Mother wants you for supper; and Dad has promised to fry catfish if you'll come."

"Does the invitation include Cousin Columbine?" asked Nancy as the young man dropped to the ground beside her.

"Of course. You can ride back with Laba when he gets the milk cans this afternoon."

"That's grand," smiled Nance. "How did your mother know that I was crazy to go out to the ranch today?"

"She didn't. It's a farewell banquet for yours truly. I'm swapping jobs with Mark to-morrow. Uncle Tom needs some one a while longer, and Mark is fit to be at missing so much of your society. He called Mother up this morning with a pathetic story which she fell for instantly, and proceeded to point out the fact that it was my duty to relieve him. Jack's going to drive me to Prairie Ranch to-morrow, and come home with Mark. I hope to thunder I'll be back in another week."

"I hope so too," returned Nance sweetly; "but it's been wonderful for Jack, having the chance at stay with you people. I didn't dream your uncle would be laid up so long."

"Neither did Mark," laughed Matthew, "or it would have required even more persuasion to make him go! But it was Uncle Tom who fixed things for Dad and Mother could marry when they did, and they'd lend him anything from their sons to their last copper. Say, Nancy, have—have you decided when you're going East?"

"I wrote Dad yesterday that I though t'd ought to get back by June. There are such a lot of things we want to see, Matt; and goodness knows if we'll ever come again."

"Of course you will! What makes you say a thing like that? Why—why'd I thought . . ."

He didn't finish the sentence; and Nance said demurely: "It's nice of you to want us to return! And we're going to miss you Adams a whole lot. That's straight, Matt. Yet I can't help wondering if when we leave you'll settle down—well, the whole experience, won't seem almost like a dream. If you knew how I dreaded to come! I was scared out of my senses. You're no idea what an awful coward I am."

"Not perhaps," Matthew corrected gravely.

Nance threw him a little smile; then her face sobered.

"I'm not so sure. The past tense is correct, Matt. Sometimes I think my courage has never been tested, and wonder how I'll show up in a pinch. It was pride that made me consent to come out here—that is, moral pride. I wanted to help Dad, of course. We all did. But I'd never have come alone, Matt. I'm no heroine."

"I beg to dimgree with you, lady Jack says you never whimpered at all when you got that dreadful cut."

The girl raised her head in mem

He did"

Matthew nodded.

"Your kid brother thinks the world of you, Nancy. Didn't you know it?"

Nance pondered that.

"I know Jack was fond of me, of course; but when I hesitated about going to Colorado he—he called me a parlor ornament, and—"

Matt laughed, his eyes shining as his brother's had when Nance first saw her

"What's the disgrace in being ornamental as long as you're doing else besides? Look at our library, Miss Aladdin! Honestly, Nance Dad says he doesn't know any one who's accomplished so much in a short time as you have And you've practically transformed Aunt Tobbi Aren't you aware that she is, as everything about you, from your Dad down accord to the way you wear your clothes" She continued as Mother that she'd dyed that awful green dress dark blue"

Nance laughed as she rose

"That gown was an outrage, and if I'm accountable for its transformation Pine Ridge owes me a vote of thanks." Her eyes were shining now, and the dimple made its elusive appearance for a moment. "Come on home with me, Matt, and I'll smuggle you an apple turnover"

Ancient Villages Revealed

Three Distinct Sites Have Been Excavated In England

Some of the remains of Maiden Castle, near Dorchester, England's best preserved prehistoric mound, until recently were thought to be relations made by Dr. R. E. M. Wheeler Acre described to him before the Society of Antiquaries at Burlington House, London, the latter says. These distinct sites had been occupied, he said, in the first by "long heads" like this pilot filled with pottery of simple design, rectangular flint axes and other weapons. They had also cut into the site of a Neolithic village of about 2000 B.C. For the next three centuries the site was without human occupation, owing to water shortage experienced on nearly all highlands of Europe In the second excavation they cut across a bank reinforced with a palisade of nine foot timbers and a ditch 40 feet wide and thirty feet deep They discovered twelve or fifteen hearths at different levels in the ditch filling in the site We found seventy-six iron Age pits, used for dwelling, cooking and storage." Dr Wheeler said.

Board of Trade Favors Parking Areas in Town

Centre Parking May Be Tried Here

Mr. H. P. Long presided at the Board of Trade luncheon on Monday and in his opening remarks welcomed Mr. Steele, Principal of the High school, and Rev. Mr. Leversedge, who has recently succeeded Canon McComas as Rector of St. Saviour's Anglican church. Both new members spoke briefly in reply.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted on motion.

The Committee on traffic regulation appointed at the last luncheon, submitted its report through Mr Kaiser; the recommendations appeared by the Committee, after full consideration, were submitted to the Council at its meeting on September 9, and appropriate action requested. Acting Mayor Hill informed the meeting that the Public Works Committee had this matter under consideration, but owing to the appropriation this year being pretty well expended, it might not be possible to carry out the whole program at present. He stated, however, that the matter would receive further consideration in the near future.

Ashley Cooper was appointed Chairman for the luncheon on Monday next. Members were exhorted to bring a non-attending member or visitor with them to these business luncheons.

The meeting closed as usual with the singing of the National Anthem

The Automobile World

Over Thirty-five Million Cars Are In Use

The motorist who brags of 100,000 miles has still some distance to go to cover the world's highway mileage. A little booklet issued by the Automobile Manufacturers' association, packed with unusual and interesting information, it is stated that there are 9,231,000 miles of highway in the world.

The United States has 3,068,254, one-third of the total. Soviet Russia is second with 1,803,100 and Japan a rather surprising in view of its small area, is third, with 594,626. Australia with fourth place with 469,151 and Canada is fifth with 460,134. At the other end of the scale is Gibraltar with a total of one road, and Monaco, Roumillared with 28. But Gibraltar has 66 cars to each mile of road, while the United States has only 8.1 per mile, and Canada 2.7

According to the booklet, the average life of cars is 6½ years. It is also said that 90 per cent of all cars sell for less than $750 wholesale, that Germans use 36 per cent of all trucks, that there are 35,067,000 motor vehicles in the world, of which 71 per cent are in the United States, that motorists pay six times the taxes they paid 15 years ago, that in automobile deaths per 10,000 motor vehicles Canada has the second lowest standing in the world, with 9.1, second to New Zealand's 8.6, and Italy the highest at 84.5 - Edmonton Journal.

Sir Edward Beatty, G.B.E., chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is shown here beside the cairn which marks at Craigievlackie, B.C., the spot where Lord Strathcona, in the presence of Sir William Van Horne and others of Canada's railway giants, drove the last spike completing the Canadian Pacific Railway from ocean to ocean across more than 3,000 miles of formidable country, on November 7, 1885. In the golden jubilee of the Canadian Pacific's history, Sir Edward, during his current trans-Canada tour, dropped off his special train at Craigievlackie to pay his respects to the memory of the builders of his great transportation company and to receive the greetings of Craigievlackie's handful of citizens.

Pictures Without Camera

First Movie Film Of This Kind Is Made In London

The first motion picture film ever to be made without a camera was shown to the public in London, Eng., under the auspices of the post office.

It consisted of colored patterns which moved in tempo with a rumba played on the sound track of the film. The patterns were applied directly to the film by hand.

The invention was made by an Australian artist, Len Lye, who sought by use of a film to avoid the mechanical difficulties encountered in providing a color accompaniment to music by means of electric light.

The post office has ordered other films of the same nature, which will be used to advertise its services.

Tourists Attractions

What Is Worth Most To Canada, Live Or Dead Attractions?

(By Jack Bluer)

What is worth most to the people of Canada, live or dead attractions? The first to be considered is what is the best for the most people. Figures show that in North America, less than ten per cent. of the population use a gun while the other 90 per cent. want to see birds and animals alive and free, not shot with hookahs. The gunners take all from the 90 per cent. while the 90 per cent. take nothing from the shooters but are constantly building up their sport.

While I am not talking politics, yet Canada has wisely used the unemployed to build good roads through our north country or vast national parks and I say without hesitation that one family of our motor tailed deer bounding across the highway and possibly stopping into the range of the tourist's kodak and movie camera is worth more to more people of Canada than 25 dead deer hanging back in the woods or even hanging dead in sight of our tourists and remember, the white tailed deer are no comparison to our lordly moose which the majority of visitors want about first. Those living sights and pictures are as good as golden wheat fields dollars and cents among our rocky pictures of country. Yes, I say $100 brought into Canada by tourists is just as good as $100 worth of wheat going out of Canada. Moreover it is not to be distributed among people who do not even land to grow wheat. First of all, live attractions are self advertising. For illustration, one of thousands of people go to Yellowstone Park in the United States and see the acres of thermal springs, and dollars, and all they get out of it is the pictures of one of the smallest of the attractions. Yet these photos and descriptions are numerous when they go and spend their money; but the thousands of black bear in Canada has hardly ever had any consideration, yet he is one of the most valuable animals we have today, and if given a chance would be the most profitable animal we have for this land. Very true, he is misunderstood, but no comparison to a pack of our dogs. Why, bless your soul, the advertising from the hotels in a small city or town in the North, or even a lumber camp, not to mention the bait taken when the public can picture them nearly every day in the summer, in the big cities and towns quietly away while your truck dumps your load of them, and their pictures would go on the screens in the big cities at once, and from door to the United States.

Why, I did strike a man in Yellowstone National Park, but it was a Scotchman who gave me the pet of his life when he saw a bear and Sandy over the log and that is all there was to it, but there was fun eating the candy.

These common black bears in Ontario are practically harmless to other people and wild deer and moose. As proof of this moose were so scarce in Ontario that the government did not open the season on them in that province until the fall of 1934, and then only a limited season, with no open season in Ontario, the Ontario moose is only a waif west to Quebec to hunt them. Then the fact I want to point to is the bear have always been here and the moose came in and have multiplied and increased in the midst of the bear by hundreds of thousands, and the bear have not killed off the moose. Moose are not killed by bears kills a calf moose or a sickly weak cow moose at the time of birth, but these are so few and far fetched in the moose themselves and the whole truth by increasing to such numbers. As further proof of this look at Metagama, Canada, in 1900 there were no moose in that district, but now Mr M. U. Bates in his advertisement to get hunters to come to his camp and kill moose, found in three years 45 bears had been taken as well as 74 bull moose. These bull moose were calves at one time. If bear were destructive to moose they wouldn't have increased to such an extent in their midst.

Don't think that I am opposed to the hunting of bear, but I am opposed to it, but I do say that 90 per cent. of the nature lovers that love live attractions should be considered first. Moreover, when the fall comes, and a reasonable open season is permitted, the wealthiest of Yankee sportsmen will want to come back and will leave tens of thousands of dollars on the prairies, where the [illegible] and hundreds of dollars with guides, gas stations and many people during their fall hunt, but we must allow live attractions to multiply first, brought about by government legislation and co-operation and education of the settlers and trappers who live there.

For illustration, it was estimated that there were 20,000 American cars at or near the boat load point to see the geese I have no proof of the exact numbers, but we do know there were over 5,000 cars that day. Now many cars would come to see a pile of dead geese? Would it be worth most to Canada—live or dead attractions?

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

INTERCESSION

JAMES
(A Great Christian Leader)

Golden text: Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he hath been approved, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord promised to them that love him. James 1:12.

Lesson: Acts 10:1-31; James 1:1-17.

Devotional reading: Matthew 4:1-11.

Kagawa Jailed For Second Time

Rejoice in Suffering, verses 3-4. Great it was pure joy, my brothers, when you come across any sort of trial, sure that the sterling temper of your faith produces endurance; only, let your endurance be a finished product, so that you may be finished and complete, with never a detail [illegible]. Endurance is not upon his own authority that James counsels his readers to count it all joy when trials befall them, but as at once reminds them of their own experience, knowing as they do, that the testing of their faith [illegible] endurance. Trials are a joy in themselves, but when rightly borne they are a joy to the soul, as opportunities for practicing virtues. Rotherham, Mt. 5:12, 10:22.

"The doctrine of joy in suffering which at first sight seems to be alien to Christianity, is in reality the experience to be less hard than the apparently more human doctrine of resignation and fortitude. The effort to be resigned, and to suffer without complaining, is not a very inspiring effort. Its tendency is toward despondency. It does not lift us out of ourselves or above our tribulations. On the contrary, it leads rather to self-contemplation and a brooding over misfortune. Christian resignation and thankful joy there is all the difference that there is between mere obedience and affectionate trust. The one is commanding; the other is love. It is in the long run easier to rejoice in tribulation, and less thankful for it, than to say with bowed head and submit patiently. And there is a point where the effort to be thankful is merciful one, for it teaches us to endure trials in the spirit that God wants us feel them least."

Whence Temptation, verses 13-17. Blessed is he who endures under trial; for when he has been approved, he will get the crown of life which is promised to all who love him. The same temptations, trials, tribulations and afflictions will not win the promised crown, but when temptations are withstood, and afflictions endured in the right spirit. The proof self-reliance and self-confidence of the Hindu have proved marvelous about them" (Alfred Plummer).

The Manx Language

Only One Thai Does Not Contain Some Of It

Interest in the Manx language, which has been on the verge of extinction for the last hundred years, is being revived by the Isle of Man Manx Society, composed of ardent nationalists of the Isle of Man. When the last Manx man is recording, four years ago, 529 persons could speak the Manx, but 60 per cent. of these were over 60 years of age. A peculiarity of the Manx language is that it contains no swear words. How Manx golfers were able to relieve their feelings a few years ago, when the language was generally used on the island, is being asked by those against the new movement and they contend that perhaps that may be why Manx has gone out of use.

Success Through Failure

It is a mistake to suppose that success comes through luck. Not much oftener succeed through failure. By far the best experience of many a successful man is experience of failures in dealing with others in the affairs of life. Such failures in semble men learn better to adjust themselves, and greater tact and self-control, as a means of avoiding them in the future.

Astronomers can measure accurately distances up to 100 trillion miles, states Dr. F. C. Jordan, Pittsburg, treasurer of the American Astronomical Society in convention at Toronto. With a fair degree of accuracy, distances up to 500 trillion miles can be measured, he added.

Sunlight Is Trapped

Ingenious Device Ensures Full Benefit Of Sun's Rays In The House

In a block of flats now being built in London, sunlight is being "laid on."

Not just sun-ray lamps or artificial sun-ray apparatus, but real sunshine, so harnessed that it switches itself on as soon as the sun appears, and switches on the electric light as the sun d sappears.

This is the first installation in England of an ingenious device invented by a French engineer, Jacques Arthuys, which puts sunlight "on tap" for domestic lighting.

Over each window in every room in a house, including the darkest cellar, is to efficiently lighted by the rays of the sun, even with blinds drawn across the windows, or even if there are no windows.

This is achieved by an arrangement of mirrors and lenses. Up on the roof there is a big mirror mounted on a slowly rotating axis, operated by a tiny 1-6th horse-power motor.

It moves by the clockwork device, worked by the heat of the sun, controls the motor and then keeps the mirror moving just enough to make it follow the sun across the sky—so that it is always receiving the direct rays on its entire surface of 40 square feet.

These rays are reflected by another mirror fixed at an angle of 45 degrees, to a second mirror, in a very inspiring effort. Its tendency is toward depression. It does not lift us out of ourselves or above our tribulations. On the contrary, it leads rather to self-contemplation and a brooding over misfortune. Christian resignation and thankful joy there is all the difference that there is between mere obedience and affectionate trust. The one is commanding; the other is love. It is in the long run easier to rejoice in tribulation, and less thankful for it, than to say with bowed head and submit patiently. SYNOPSIS

Cousin Wealthy Adam, the old lady continued: "These buildings, and that wayside cemetery, are all that remain to tell the tale of a prosperous town which was planned and carried out successfully by old Marsh Pemperton. And Marsh Silva heard the story many times."

"Never from you," Eve Adam reminded her. "Tell it again, Miss Columbine. You are the place in his heyday, I suppose."

"I surely did; and to one of my age it's not even ancient history. Why, Marsh Pemperton died exactly 1894, soon after the boom at Cripple Creek. I dare say that as a child, Eve, you heard your people mention it, for the news must have spread much farther than Denver. You see, the general feeling in those days was that all these mountains were lined with gold, and that any one could take a pick and dig it out; but old man Pemperton had been working a tunnel with no success, and I dare say he got impatient."

"How much of the land 'round there did he own, Miss Columbine?" asked Lehe.

"That I can't tell you; but it was plenty anyway, and the hard tales at quickly gotten wealth at Cripple Creek had convinced him he fortune that his own acres were useless save as pasture land. So at last he deter-mined to sell out, and the peculiar excitement to feather his nest, an idea which he carried out with extraordinary shrewdness, as you shall hear.

"I sometimes wonder," went on Miss Columbine dreamily, "if old Marsh Pemperton started that town on a sudden impulse, or if he lay on his bed in the long, still hours of illness, and with peaceful visions, planned it out. At any rate, he made a trip to Cripple Creek to purchase some goods for a store, and a week or two later he emerged from his tunnel stuttering with excitement and both hands full of nuggets!"

"I'll bet the old friend Pemperton wasn't burdened with a New England conscience," observed Jack.

"Not in the slightest degree. Jack Nelson, nor of Father's either, I am glad to say. For that hillside cemetery with its pathetic graves is the direct result of the old man's selfish scheme of his. It was easy enough to start a gold excitement. The news spread rapidly, as such news always does; and it wasn't long before the stampede began. There was pandemonium it that lovely valley. People staking out claims—starting tunnels —buying 'town lots' which Pemperton had marked out—and all over the sky high prices. One fortunate woman who had paid twenty-five dollars for a piece of land in that locality a year before, sold it during that hectic time for ten thousand! That sounds incredible now, but it's true, for I've seen it happen.

"More than a thousand people, possibly three, had come to settle and stay in the town was incorporated; a man named Tyler was made mayor, and another whose name I can't recall was sheriff. When I saw the place there were no less than a dozen saloons—three general stores—a long street of frame houses or tents, and even two ore-crushing machines, though not one ounce of precious metal was ever discovered in the vicinity."

"What became of the people when the bubble burst?"

"Drifted away, poor souls, leaving their dead behind them—their high hopes crushed. I recall one family digging at our house for water, and Father bringing them in to be fed and warmed. They were a pitiful sight: the young mother frail and worn by hardship, the father in ragged shirt and trousers, and an ailing baby. They promised to let us know how things went with them, but we never heard."

"Things that seem in the wild," said Matthew softly, and Lehe broke in:

"But will you tell us how old Pemperton escaped being tarred and feathered when the hoax was discovered?"

"For the very good reason," replied Miss Columbine, "that the [illegible] nowhere to be found! When the boom was at its height he disappeared; and now all that is left of the 'ghost city' which bore his name, are those tumbledown buildings (one of which cost a woman five thousand dollars, I was told), and that small burying ground with its [illegible] graves. Some were too frail to survive the rigors of frontier life."

"I'd like to see that place," said Nancy, as Cousin Columbine ceased speaking.

"You shall, my dear; and we'll make an excursion out on the piano as well. They can be so beautiful, in their desolation, that I should think how cruel they sometimes are."

"Cruel!" Nance questioned, a little puzzled. "You mean those sudden storms that make the grazing cattle have no shelter? Well, this winter's over. Cousin Columbine, and if you've got to be cruel, I'd rather be cruel and acquainted with the plains to-morrow, I've got a marvellous idea. Let's all go, Miss Columbine, with Jack and Matthew? It would be a lark."

"You've a new woman, Nancy Nelson," remarked her brother; "but you regard as anything like a lark the necessity of piling out of bed [illegible] to-morrow morning, to get your tower at five a.m., young lady. Do you think you can make it?"

"Jack! He's not going to be cross, Eve," broke in the old lady, her voice shaking. "Surely they didn't leave your mother's in such a state!"

"Not there?" A pause, and then Eve said, trying to speak calmly: "Father Adam brought lunch for their family? . . . Tom telephoned at seven this morning for them not to expect him. Then he said he had had a bad throat. It was too late to stop the children anyway, so I didn't call you; and didn't you have a phoned again. He—he said Jack and Nancy started back immediately after the family lunch. And they looked as if a storm were coming, but he said the sun was glorious out there and that . . ."

"Then the Mark's not with them?" almost wailed Miss Columbine.

"No, but— Oh, don't worry yourself sick, dear Miss Columbine! There are ranches not so terribly far from Cripple Creek, and I'm sure the schoolhouse surely they would have reached the schoolhouse and waited there! But I'll run down to the ranch again by telephone and . . ."

It was then that the storm did something to the wires, and Columbine Nelson heard no more. But three hours later, just as the dreaded storm was shutting down, Jack Adam truck with John at the wheel, and Eve, covered with snow from head to foot beside him, came in to tell his parents for your safety. And I—I command you to take that coat."

Nancy laughed, realizing that there was no use in offering to argue with over seventy.

"All right," she said good-naturedly. "I'll run over there now and get my passenger. I'll run up for it now."

"What sort of stockings have you got on?"

The question caught her at the door, and the girl turned, a bit exasperated.

"Don't let that worry you! I'm wearing sport shoes and woollen hose I shan't freeze to death, Cousin Columbine! I've got one of your spring blizzards."

She was surprised to note that this observation was taken seriously.

"Look here, child, don't you start home in any sort of storm. Remember that, Nancy. I'm not responsible for your safety, but I'm responsible for your health, and I'll have no one's life endangered on my account. Do you understand?"

"Yes, Cousin Columbine. I'll remember that. I'll be back in an hour, and I'll be careful. Now, may I go?"

"Yes, you may go. Miss Columbine? I've tried to get you all the afternoon, but our line was in trouble. Jack Nelson left, I know, but I can't for the life of me remember which way he turned. Is he at Cripple Creek, or on the ranch?"

"Jack! He's not here, Eve," broke in the old lady, her voice shaking. "Surely they didn't leave your mother's in such a state!"

If Drivers Of Cars Made Courtesy A Habit

The number and character of automobile accidents occurring lately give point to the following comment in a weekly exchange:

"Science and industry have done their part in producing the automobile. Paul de Kruif, in a recent article in the Rotarian Magazine, declares that "hardly fifteen per cent. of all accidents can be laid to automobile defects." The culprit is the driver. Collectively, he has not yet mastered the new device, has not yet adjusted his nervous organism to its demands, has not yet mastered the technique of making that invention a part of his social routine with economy of human wastage. He is, in short, not civilized.

"The driver too often does not know the driving customs and regulations. Leading authorities agree that how to signal, he fails to give any intimation to the driver behind—such as turning a hand out—that he is about to do something other than proceed straight ahead. He will 'put this time' pass into or on to the curb near the crest of a hill. He will take the chance that 'the other fellow' will slow down at the intersection, and himself speed on through.

"But to sum all, he lacks courtesy. The vital core of safety is not consideration for other people. Courtesy is not the cloak to be exhibited on occasion for admiration of friends; it is a way-of-doing, so regularly practiced that it best may be described as a habit."

A Remarkable Record

Seven Generations Of One Family Have Instructed The Deaf

For seven generations the Dunn family have been active in working for deaf people, and to-day Miss Hagen finds the urge no less strong than it was in her great-great-uncle, who was Canada's first teacher for the deaf. She taught in the School for Deaf at Saskatoon.

The school has 140 pupils, ranging from 5 to 18 years. They are being taught to speak, after which the whole process of thought must be unravelled for them. Miss Hagen has taught and up-reading is taught and then regular academic and vocational curriculum follows: Manual training, household science, shoe repairing and bakery business are some of the vocations in which instruction is given.

Miss Hagen explained deaf children are taught to dance in perfect time to a piano, yet they have no cue to the rhythm other than vibrations felt through the floor

One deaf girl at the Saskatoon school learned to speak at 18, and so expressed her thoughts for the first time in her life. At Christmas, Miss Hagen said with pride and this fall is going to Gallaudet, Washington, the only college in the world for deaf people

Scientific research is carried on at the Saskatoon school, and the latest data on teaching the deaf are put into practice as they are developed. In addition normal school training classes for teachers for the deaf are held, and the five teachers at the schools are all home trained

Little Helps For This Week

Thou calledst in trouble and I delivered thee. Psalm 81:7.

Be strong and of good courage, dread not nor be dismayed, I. Chronicles. 22:13

Thou canst calm the troubled heart

Thou its dread canst still

Teach me to be all resigned

Thy holy Father's will.

Though this patient meek resignation is to be exercised with regard to all outward things and occurrences of life, it chiefly respects our own inward state, the troubles and weaknesses of our own souls. And to stand still in contemplation to God, when your own impatience and pride attack yourself, is a higher and more heroic performance of this duty than when you stand turned to meekness and patience when attached by the pride or wrath of other people.

Build Big Canal

Soviet Government Will Construct Two River Ports At Moscow

The Soviet government has ordered construction of two river ports on opposite ends of Moscow to accommodate the heavy river traffic anticipated with completion in 1937 of the Moscow-Volga canal.

Work was also ordered begun on construction of freight and passenger boats to total 65,000 tons.

The canal, started in 1932, will be the largest river canal in the world—79 miles long, 18 feet deep and 97 feet wide. It will have six dams, two flood gates and five pumping stations

The canal will complete the water route to Moscow from the Caspian sea.

Raisins Treated With Oil

Stickiness Is Removed And They Become More Attractive

Seeded muscat raisins are sticky, making it necessary for women to coat their hands with flour in order to handle them. The seeds that were removed were also sticky, and handling them was a messy job for hotel kitchen men in charge of the process. Chemists tackled the problem, and they succeeded in making the raisins lose the lack of stickiness, they present such an attractive appearance that the packers are now able to market them in transparent wrappers.

VERMILION ESTABLISHED 1909 ALBERTA

Published every Thursday Afternoon at the Office, Main St.

E. R. P. COOPER — EDITOR.

Vermilion, Alta., Sept. 19, 1935.

One hundred and fourteen candidates in the provincial election have lost their deposits to date. This netted the government just 114 x $100, or $11,400. Every little helps.

NOT GROUP WILDEYED RADICALS

Premier Aberhart has returned to the West. At Toronto he was tendered a luncheon by the Canadian Club at the Royal York hotel which was attended by a record number — over one thousand members being present — sale of tickets for the luncheon having to be stopped when all available accommodation was taken up. Most of those in the great gathering were responsible business men and probably "hard-boiled from the western standpoint."

At Winnipeg the premier said: There was no longer a suspicion in Eastern Canada that we are a group of wild-eyed radicals. He had discussed with bankers the question of handling Social Credit dividend payments, but nothing definite was decided. We found a friendly spirit prevailing and have been asked to submit our plans in detail, he said. "That's our friends isn't it."

EDITOR BROKE GROUND

In Toronto on Saturday, July 27th last, the editor of this paper was interviewed by reporters regarding the political situation in the West with particular reference to Alberta in regards to federal and provincial affairs. After a perusal of some of other editors across Canada, the interviews were published in two of the leading Toronto daily papers, The Star and The Mail and Empire. The combined circulation of these two papers is over 375,000 daily. The Star and Mail are stated in part. "As for the political situation in Alberta, the Social Credit movement practically dominated . . . At any rate, if the Social Credit-ers are elected, there is no danger of them upsetting the constitution, for Alberta, under its powers, is bound for confederation and unity of all Canada . . . . If Alberta elects a Social Credit government it may introduce some Social Credit candidates in the federal field."

HERE ARE THE COLD FACTS.

The time for pussyfooting on tax collections appears to be about at an end. The cold facts are as to how much money is needed between now and the end of the year by the town is running into the Mayor and Councillors to get hot under the collar. When you realize as they do, that $9,000.00 has to be collected and paid over to the School Board, another $1,500.00 must be paid to the Hospital Board, $5,000 is required now for the sinking fund and bank loan and another $5,000.00 at least to apply on current accounts covering the 1935 Appropriations, Debentures, Care of Neglected Children, Relief and Hospitalization accounts, maturing debentures to the end of the year, Sinking Fund, etc., together with carrying charges between now and December 31st.

On the other side of the picture there appears the following the current levy for 1935, approximately $12,000.00 for all purposes, add to this the levy over from last year's tax roll of $29,814.27, giving a grand total of collectable amounts of $41,814.27. Of this amount, the sum of $26,066.70 had been collected up to the end of August, thus leaving $15,822.57 still to be collected between now and December 31st!

Let every person get behind a real hard-working committee, clean up remaining TAXES with each doing his or her bit and put your town's financial position more than one jump ahead of the bailiff.

"Just decided to spend our holidays on a trip to see the old town and the district where we first settled and round up former acquaintances of the early settlement days." The Standard regrets they will both fully enjoy their visit

FEDERAL HIGHWAY POLICIES ARE IN ELECTION SPOTLIGHT

Just having emerged from a provincial election campaign, Alberta now is in the thick of the federal fight.

In this dominion election, there is going to be a great deal of interest in what the candidates have to say about the completion of the Trans-Canada highway and further, their views concerning federal aid in western road building.

That assistance to highway needs in the dominion has given a stimulus to the province, even if this does fall short of what had been expected. But no matter what has been done, Alberta in particular, and the west in general, still await a direct outlet to the Pacific coast.

Are the candidates for the dominion house prepared to pledge that if they are returned, they will use every effort to bring about the speedy completion of this coast connection?

That is a question which should be put to them during this campaign.

As time goes on, the need of highway outlets to the Pacific and fairlities for the people of the coast province and the states to visit Alberta through new routes, becomes all the more pressing.

If our office of men are at work on the Big Bend section of the Trans-Canada highway between Golden and Revelstoke, B. C. But still there is some doubt that this work will be completed in 1936, unless operations are greatly expedited next season.

The Alberta Motor Association has taken a leading part in impressing local residents and others upon the provincial and dominion governments and intends to redouble its efforts to that direction during the forth coming dominion election.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

From the Neighborhood of the South-East

The weather man pushed every button last week and we received a full range of samples. We are hoping that threshing may begin in earnest on the 10th. The suspense is chilling.

The Woodvale Social Credit study group met last Friday evening to select a delegate to attend the Wainwright Federal Constituency Convention on the 18th. Mrs. D. Doyle was selected to represent the group, and Mr. Wm. Brown goes as representative of the Union polling district. It was decided to institute a membership fee to take care of Group expenses. The delegates-elect asked for the feeling of the group in regard to arrangements for election of the candidates, and were urged to bring to the attention of speakers the need for more campaign work in this immediate locality. A silver collection was taken to be applied to campaign funds, which was royally attended to, despite frozen crops and uncertain grades. It was decided to hold the next meeting at the home of Chas. Priedland on Saturday evening, September 21st, to receive the report of the delegates.

The Pie Plate is unanimously awarded to Mr. Artie and Chas. Priedland for volunteering the use of their car services so that the delegates could attend the Wainwright Convention.

Mr. Clarence Potter is the happy driver of a truck, an importation from Wainwright, to take care of the oil-delivery end of his service-station business. Now what we see of Clarence is a cloud of dust with a red splash in the middle.

If you want to start a real discussion, just wander about in the Neighborhood what is going to become of the interest of the numerous organizations which it boasts. It gets 'unsorous at times in view of the fact that the personnel of most of these is practically the same in each case, the only difference in each instance, apparently, being the purpose and aim of the Club. We don't think there is cause to become flurried however, more as organization wanted by the people, giving the service it is hoped for, is in no danger of being doomed.

A concensus of the opinion of most of the Neighborhood is that the news available is that if the major papers don't stop their nonsense and give us real news the way of information, they are going to lose a good slice of their subscription list. And no amount of apologies after election will rone out the patronage again. There is more than one paper burned around in homes now!!

(P. S. You bet not the Standard.)

Mr. M. R. Cowell, representative of the Gold Standard Oil Co., Wainwright, has had some flying visits to the Neighborhood to see relatives among the Priedland family, and to oversee business interests he has locally. Since his former visits here Mr. Cowell has journeyed to Toronto and back, and reports very fair fortune with his hobby, a string of racehorses, in the East.

Union and Tolland schools, as well as Woodvale were closed all last week owing to the threatened epidemic.

Convention Highlights:—A radio in Wainwright very appropriately carrying forth "There'll be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight!"

A most fortunate and pleasant meeting with friend after last!

The crowd's politeness to the ladies is almost altogether refraining from smoking.

Beautiful scenery created by Jack frost which rendered most pleasing to the eyes.

And if you found the black glove please return to the Standard office. Many thanks.

LOCAL NEWS

At the close of his farewell service at Allandale on Sunday last, Mr. J. G. Brown, student minister of the United church was presented with a well filled purse by the congregation. Mr. M. McBride who made the presentation on behalf of the Allandale folk, expressed their appreciation of the services which Mr. Brown had rendered and extended to him best wishes for happiness and success in his chosen career.

A Vermilionite in Edmonton on Saturday said that walking down Jasper he was almost like strolling along main street in town here, the faces of ex-Vermilion citizens being quite common, among those noticed were, Bill Swanson, Miss Lucrthea Graham, Benny Ostry, Tommy Bennett, Morley Swanson, Donald Ganton, and Mrs. Pulpblain.

Mr. T. H. "Tom" Hobbis and son Tom of New Westminster B. C. left for their home on Sunday morning after visiting the formers parents Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hobbis of Optimist and other friends in the Vermilion district. Tom reports that a good many poultry raisers in his locality have discontinued that line, owing to Alberta chicken feed, when laid down in B. C. costing $1.85 to $2.00 per bushel.

Miss Storey, P. Wyley, and Inspector Parker were the judges at the Clandonald district school Fair which was held in the Orange Hall, Clandonald, on Wednesday last, Sept. 11. There were 206 entries all told. Some of these being in the school work department.

TRAVELLING DE LUXE

Shortly after noon on Tuesday three big cars swept into town from the east, transporting a large number of dark skinned, dark eyed, swarthy dressed gypsies. As usual they were fully equipped for their wandering life, trailers being loaded with tents and bedding. But from these romantic peoples gather together money to buy gasoline to travel from one city to other cities. Altho' used to seeing gypsies travelling in style, this particular tribe out did any of its predecessors as they were driving two large Cadillacs, of no ancient vintage and a new old-mobile. Needless to say the members of the party were regarded with great interest as they piled out of the cars in front of the Boston cafe and quickly moved on to different parts of the business section of the town.

PASTOR'S $1,600 SALARY NOW $450 AND HOPES

MONTREAL Sept 10—Stipend greatly below the rates fixed by the diocesan regulations are accepted by large majority of parish priests in Montreal, it was reported today at a meeting of St. Pachome's local priests association. Only 30 members of the parish were regarded with great interest as they piled out of the cars in front of the Boston cafe and quickly moved on to different parts of the business section of the town.

Rev. A. Rioux said of Rouyn very small city would be expected a decent living. Rev. Rioux's organization should be to meet the financial needs of the parish priests and to protect their interests in regard to their stipends.

VISIT OF SALV. ARMY BAND

The Salvation Army Band of the Edmonton Citadel Corps made a tour of eastern Alberta over the Labor Day week-end. The band is under the leadership of Bandmaster L. Jones and the strength is 27 players at present. These make their place in the industrial and business life of Edmonton during the week and their time on Sundays is spent in playing Army music for the benefit of their fellow men.

Adjutant Morrison, the officer in command of the Citadel Corps accompanied the band on this week-end tour, leaving Edmonton at 5, Saturday afternoon making a stop at Vegreville where the residents and visiting farmers enjoyed the music dispensed by the band in an open air meeting. On arriving in Vermilion the Army Captain, Miss Miller, welcomed the band at a supper table. Proceeding to the city band stand the band was met by the Mayor, Hon W. A. Fallow and after a short programme, marched, led by the Mayor, to the Armouries where the band was scheduled to give a musical festival, presided over by the Hon. W. A. Fallow, who felt right at home in a Salvation Army programme, and during the proceedings expressed his admiration and gratitude for the self sacrificing labors carried on by the Army in the province of Alberta. The Band felt greatly honored when Mr Fallow accepted the baton from Bandmaster Jones and led the band in a march entitled "Spirit or Praise" and this proved to be one of the most delightful items on the programme which was brought to a close with the band rendering the selection "Eventide". During the programme Adjutant Morrison introduced each bandsman naming the particular walk in life followed which showed that a variety of professional and trades were represented. After the Concert the bandsmen retired to their billets provided in the hospitable homes of Vermilion.

During the Sunday the band visited Kinsmen Manderson and Lashburn, Sunday evening a united rally was held at Lloydminster when the band excelled themselves in a second concert. Rev Walker, of the Presbyterian church, officiated as chairman. Again on Monday the band held open air services, one of which was at Vermilion where an appreciative audience attended. On leaving Vermilion the band expressed the very kind welcome they had received in their return journey to Edmonton the band stopped at Mannville, Minburn, Innisfree, Hastrty, Lavoy and Vegreville. Arriving back in Edmonton the band felt tired but satisfied that the way in which they had spent the holiday had brought blessing and inspiration to the people all along the route and the places they had visited. The Edmonton Citadel Band was formed some 25 years ago and is still maintaining the high standard of life and service set for Salvation Army bandsmen of which there are some 14,000 throughout the world.

EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS AT VERMILION FLOUR MILL

Old Ways Give Place To Modern Methods

The Wiebe Flour Mill at this point, which makes improvements and alterations in various parts of their extensive plant every year, is hooping with their policy of giving the wide area served by the mill, the very best in milling service, have recently made provision for faster and easier handling of grains and flour. Previously it was possible to do one operation at a time, that is, either the loading of flour or the unloading of the grain. The flour sacking was done on the ground floor, and lifted by hand into the truck or wagon. Now two platforms are provided and loading and unloading may go on at the same time. The flour is sacked on the second floor and shot thru a chute right on to the load, a much more convenient and faster method than the previous way.

W H Wiebe operates two of those up-to-date Flour mills, one here and one at Myrnam. They serve a wide territory and from threshing time until Xmas both mills usually operate 24 hours a day, so great is the demand for flour milled by their equipment and reputable millers. Their reputation is such that steady customers from as far away as Viking and Hardisty bring their fall grists to the Vermilion mill and the Myrnam plant is equally as popular. Flour manufactured here, the well known "Marquis" brand is in steady demand thruout the province, and when roads permit, a trucking service to towns and points within a wide radii, is maintained by the mills.

The fame of "Marquis" flour was early last year, overseas were made to Mr Wiebe from the Prairie to open and operate a mill there

FARMER WRITER LAUDS VIRTUES OF BUSINESS

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 16.—Canada holds more unemployed possibilities, both for writers and sportsmen, than any other country, declared Rex Beach, internationally known writer, on his way through here over Canadian National Railways. Mr. Beach was returning from a trip which took him to Alaska via Canada. In Alaska he visited the settlement projects of the New Deal, "highly overrated and also renewed acquaintances in the territories he knew when he began writing his series of gold rush books in Canada he passed long enough at Jasper National Park in the Rockies to test the new Rainbow trout fish hig at Amethyst Lake in the Tonquin Valley and, he declared, it more than lived up to advance notices.

"I talked fishing with people from Jasper to the coast," declared Mr Beach, "and I am convinced that in addition to this marvelous Rainbow trout fishing at Amethyst, where I was a member of the first party to fish the lake since its planting, they have unequalled rainbow trout fishing from Jasper to the Pacific Coast."

"Canada is full of interest; there are so many things going on here. The exploration work which is being done all over Canada, with airplanes and other aids, and the discovery of mineralized areas, is an object lesson to the world. I advised the Alaska people to get back out of Canada's bush. Do you know, there isn't a prospector left in Alaska to day while northern Canada is just full of them. And in Canada they are

The Standard learns the town council is investigating the proposition of substituting crude oil for coal as the electric light and power plant. ISLAND HILL

Abyssinia's Emperor is much in the public eye at the moment and it may interest our readers to know his full title—Le Ambassa Zalamagada Tafarida Onduamar Haile Selassie Mymun Enriskerer Negusa Negast Zaikinglu, which means translated: "The conquering Lion of Judah Haile Selllassie I, Elect of God, King of Kings of Ethiopia". The Emperor is only 5 feet in height. Ethiopia is rich in minerals and oil, which may explain why Mussolini wants to get there.

The old committees' time having expired, a special committee of three representing the Catholics of Island Hill was appointed to interview their parish priest with the view of holding a concert program in aid of church funds, after threshing.

These notes will reach the Standard office earlier than usual as we are proceeding in a luxurious automobile to Wainwright Monday morning to attend the Social Credit convention. Next week we may tell of some of the incidents of this historic meeting. Just for one day we will hob-nob with lawyers, teachers, farmers, merchants, M. L. A.'s and M P.'s in embryo. And dear reader do not envy us our trip for it takes something these days to lift our mind from pondering on frozen wheat, debts and dues.

Noticed during the week— Geo. Schofield telling Bill Doogan all the news coming over the radio on Social Credit.; Bartly Haroon singing in a loud voice while milking (cows always give more milk when they are listening to music, Bartley asserts) Mr. and Mrs. O. Stephens, Mrs. Evans, Miss E. Evans and the Misses Jenkins proceeding south after attending Divine service Sunday afternoon. Bill Morrison and John McKinnon having a serious conversation in Gaelic Sunday morning, (at least it sounded serious to us)

Did Cromwell Suffer from Religious Monomania?

WOODBRIDGE, Suffolk. — The skull of Oliver Cromwell, which is in possession of Canon Horace Wilkinson, is now said to have forehead and is like the condition seen in the skulls of the insane, Sir Arthur Keith, famous anthropologist, found when, not knowing its identity, he examined the skull of the Protector. The author of an article on the subject in the Lancet state in their opinion Cromwell was not insane but did suffer from religious monomania.

The place where Cromwell's celebrated wart was to be found can still be clearly detected, and there is hair on the skull.

After the accession of Charles the Second, Parliament ordered that Cromwell's body should be taken out of its grave and drawn on a hurdle to Tyburn to be hanged. The skull was placed on a spike over the south end of Westminster Hall. It came into the possession of an ancestor of Canon Wilkinson, and now, by substitution or examination by various experts, its authenticity is stated to be definitely proved.

Cromwell's Skull Subject of Interesting Research

"As for writers, there is so much scope as in Canada today that it is an ideal country for them. You have new experiments in government (referring to Alberta) you have romance, you have mountains to keep a writer busy. And for the sportsman, you have marvellous hunting, fishing and anything else he wants."

SAFEST DRIVING AGE

Statistics compiled by motor-car insurance companies in England show the safest driver on the road is the man aged between 40 and 50 who has had at least a year's driving experience. The insurance companies declare that this type of driver is usually a family man who operates his car with a sense of responsibility. As a result he is a courteous driver, and, in consequence, is a safe one.

A.M.A. URGES NEED OF BETTER HIGHWAYS

Need of better highway conditions in this province is being emphasized by the Alberta Motor League.

Warnings are being given govern ment officials concerning the damage to the tourist industry through having roads badly out of condition. When these visitors return to their homes their adverse comments will turn thousands away from Alberta.

During the past season, sections of the main travelled highways of the province, over which tourists naturally go, have been torn up and at times were practically impassable.

While it is realized that if the roads are to be improved, work has to go on at has been accompanied by motor club officials that much of the work could be done before or after the tourist travel is at its peak.

In some parts of Alberta the roads are good but these are not carrying the largest share of the tourist traffic. In the particular road upon which praise has been heaped is that between Edmonton and Lloydminster. This has been stated by tourists to be one of the best in the country and even better than some parts I highways

Motor club officials point out the great benefits which would accrue if Albertans could refer with pride to many more of such highways in this province

Good roads, whether main, secondary or district, form one of the foundations of better business and progress. This is true in the small town and also in the region of the larger centres It is known only too well that the time town business men are when roads are bad and rural business under takes a

To Burn Or Not To Burn

There will be few people in Western Canada, whether farmers, business men or wage earners who will quarrel with the policy which resulted in the announcement of the Canada Grain Board's establishment of a minimum price of 87½ cents for No. 1 Northern wheat f.o.b. Port William.

Regardless of political affiliations or economic beliefs the general public in the west greeted the announcement with approval as soon as it was made and, it is to be hoped, it will be accorded general backing in the east as well.

But the extent to which this policy will ensure to the benefit of Western farmers, who are hard pressed as a result of a prolonged period of drought, followed th's year by a most disappointing situation as a result of wide-spread ravage of the wheat crops by rust, will depend upon the price appeals which, at the time of writing, are expected to be announced any day.

As harvesting and threshing operations progress, the amount of damage by rust is being daily revealed as a disaster of immense proportions, and while estimates of the extent of the loss sustained by farmers in Manitoba and Saskatchewan vary from day to day, it is quite apparent that the final figures will show a loss of great magnitude.

The rust which invaded large tracts of the best wheat growing areas of the west with such devastating effect, has not only reduced yields of wheat under in the season promised to be abundant crops but it has depreciated the grades to an extent comparable with the lowered yields

At the moment there are thousands of acres of low grade wheat standing in the field awaiting the time when the grain is sufficiently dry to ensure a good burn because it does not pay to cut it.

Before taking this drastic action to destroy a lot of grain which conceivably may be of some value at a future date, farmers would be well advised to at least await the promised announcement of spreads prices. It is quite possible that the spreads may be set at such figures that even the low-test grade wheat can be threshed and stored on the farm without too serious loss to the grower

The Federal government has recognized the loss sustained by farmers through drought in the past three years as a national calamity and it is surely reasonable to suppose that the loss from rust this year will be regarded in the same category and that recognition will be given to the fact when the minimum price for the basic grade is fixed.

No one can gainsay the statement that the blame for damage by rust cannot be laid at the farmer's door Rust damage is just as much a national calamity as the drought of the past three years and, this being the case, there is every reason why the national purse strings should be loosened to relieve the pred cament in which such a large number of Western farmers find themselves with winter looming near.

It must be remembered that the grain about to be delivered to the flames has already cost the farmer something in outlay and labor and would cost more if it were cut, threshed and hauled to the elevator.

Unfortunately the present market price is too low to cover all these costs, without taking into consideration any margin of profit for the farmer who raised the grain.

If the crop is destroyed by fire not only does the grower lose what he has already put into it in cash and labor, but it represents a loss to the country at large. It might be well worth the country's while to advance the farmer at least sufficient money to save the grain by way of a feed minimum price, thus salvaging what has already been spent on the crop and perhaps saving what might otherwise have to be expended later in the form of relief

Such a measure might well be regarded in the light of a partnership between the individual and the nation for the mutual benefit of both.

The issue is also the question of the effect on the morale of the unfortunate grower. After having a series of crops from drought the economic necessity of burning a crop which was not very long ago so promising must have a disheartening effect on the farmer's heart. If this effect can be averted without serious financial loss to the country, it may be well worth the expenditure.

Safety Campaign

Automobile Fatalities On Roads In British Isles

Mad as the slaughter on the roads continues to be we do not think there is any ground for the gloomy view that the safety campaign is more or less played out. It takes a long time to mould up the habit of self-protection amid the dangers of the road, says the London Daily Herald

The fact that fatalities and injuries are below those of last year is pretty convincing proof that safety habits are gaining ground, and there is no good reason whatever for believing the improvement has ceased. Indeed, the ministry of transport's analysis of accidents by age-groups indicates once again where education and propaganda should be directed with special energy. Only one-fifth of the killed were 15 to 24. Over two-thirds were over 55.

One half—a tragic figure—were under 25. It is clearly the young and the old who are in the greatest danger, and upon them should be concentrated the most energetic and instructive of the campaign.

Beach Shelter Do Lone

City Of Paris Building Protection Fort Air Raids

Thirty feet under the ground in the Avenue Foch, one of the most fashionable residential streets in Paris, a model concrete shelter has been constructed for use in the event of air raids. The shelter consists of several rooms equipped with all conveniences, including apparatus for detecting the presence of poison gas outside. It will serve as the model for many more wh'ch are to be built by the city of Paris. It is built under a mansion. Its roof is a block of concrete six feet thick. Above this is 20 feet of earth then a one-foot thick block of concrete, and finally another layer of earth. Two stairways lead to the shelter, and at the foot of each is a steel and concrete door weighing a ton. There are special rooms for giving first aid to injured persons, machine rooms for light and ventilation purposes and storerooms. Although it is connected with the city's regular light supply, the shelter is equipped with generators and batteries for providing its own light if necessary.

Jelly-Fish Kills Man

Sting Of Giant Type Proved Fatal To Fisher

A sting by a giant jelly-fish has resulted in the death of Salvatore Castarella, an Italian cane farmer near Brindisi. He was bathing at Cocgarro Beach when he suddenly cried out loudly for help. His companions rushed out and pulled him ashore. He was given artificial respiration and restoratives but in vain, and he died on his way to the hospital. Tentacle marks were found on his body and it was at first thought that he had been attacked by an octopus. Later, however, it was found that he had been paralysed by a giant "Portuguese Man of War," a type of jelly-fish that is found along the Queensland coast. These jelly-fish often have tentacles up to 12 feet long, and their sting is capable of causing temporary paralysis.

Michelangelo Had Hundreds Of Concealed Faces In His Paintings

A discovery that hundreds of concealed faces look down from Michelangelo's paintings in the Sistine and Pauline Chapels of the Vatican has been made by a Rome priest and art critic, Father Giuseppe Ferroni. It was in this way, Father Parroni says, that Michelangelo pilloried his enemies or immortalized his friends. Cardinals and some of the great men of the papal court figured among Michelangelo's subjects. The priest-art mound a tall scaffold and took minute photographs to complete his discovery.
